Big Tip Lost, But . . .

VANCOUVER (CP) — A city businessman will be a little more careful the next time he orders a glass of beer and tells the waitress to keep the change.

The man, who does not want to be publicly identified, reclaimed a $1,000 tip Friday after reading about himself in a front-page story.

Cocktail waitress Debra Webb said Thursday she received a $1,000 tip from a man who had a beer in the Highrigger lounge at the Hotel Vancouver. Apparently he just pulled the wrong bill out.

She said he was "very grateful" Friday, and left her a replacement tip. She wouldn't say how much.

'STILL OUTSTANDING DIFFERENCES'

Summit Ending Sunday

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — The Middle East summit will wind up Sunday although "there are still outstanding differences in important areas."

Making the announcement on behalf of the United States, Egypt and Israel, White House press secretary Jody Powell said it is impossible to predict "whether efforts to resolve the differences will be successful."

But Powell did say progress has been made in some key areas.

However, in south Lebanon Palestinian guerrillas have gone on alert fearing an Israeli attack if the Camp David summit fails, guerrilla sources said.

A Christian rightist leader said the Middle East may be "on the verge of war . . . and the United States is doing nothing to stop the crisis."

"The Palestinian resistance has received orders to stand by against a possible Israeli attack," a guerrilla spokesman said.

And in Cairo, state-controlled newspapers said chronic differences remain between the Egyptian and Israeli negotiating positions at Camp David and a fifth Middle East war could break out if the talks fail.

"The basic differences have persisted at Camp David because of the intransigence of Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin," the semi-official Akhbar El-Yom daily said.

"Efforts are being made to salvage the conference, but there is very little hope of success."

U.S. President Carter continued to pursue broader agreement, however. He arranged an afternoon meeting today with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and an evening session with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

Powell said he expects one or more summit-ending documents or statements will be made public Sunday or Monday, following the windup.

His announcement came amid rumors of poor personal relations between Sadat and Begin.

Powell, the conference spokesman, had said Friday that he had heard such rumors but knew nothing that would confirm them.

"I simply have not tried to keep a running tab on the personal feelings of these two men," he said.

At his daily briefing for reporters, Powell was asked if "personal reasons" accounted for the fact President Carter has not brought Sadat and Begin together for formal talks since Sept. 7.

"Not so far as I know," the White House press secretary replied.

Even after persistent questioning, Powell avoided making a flat denial that bad feeling has kept the two leaders apart.

An Egyptian official, commenting privately, said he doubted the two leaders would allow personal antagonism to stand in the way of the fate of their respective countries.

With Begin and the Israeli delegation observing the Jewish Sabbath until after nightfall, there seems little chance of a Begin-Sadat session today.

Sadat and his countrymen at this mountaintop retreat held a Moslem prayer service Friday, immediately after the Egyptian leader spent a half-hour with Carter. Earlier in the day, Carter met with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan.

Vice President Walter Mondale, here for the weekend, conferred separately with Begin and Sadat for about a half-hour each.

After acknowledging that the summit will not end before Sunday at the earliest, Powell said again that greater Egyptian and Israeli flexibility is needed if the summit is to succeed.

"If we had enough (flexibility)," he said, "presumably we would all go home now."

Trudeau Angers Posties

TORONTO (CP) — The head of the Letter Carriers union said Friday that Trudeau was irresponsible, foolish and a bit premature to talk about ending a postal stike by legislation.

Robert McGarry said Trudeau should not make such statements when the union is still at the bargaining table.

He said the 19,000-member union does not want a strike and wants the government to resume negotiations.

Trudeau said Friday he supports workers' right to strike, but would force letter carriers to submit their contract dispute to arbitation if Parliament decided that damage caused by a strike outweighed the workers' right to strike.

Cocke Stands By Davis Deal Story

GIBSON
. . . Ottawa-bound?

New Democratic Party whip Dennis Cocke today stood firmly by his story that a Socred backbencher tried to make a deal with him on the political future of former Transport Minister Jack Davis, convicted of fraud last Monday.

Both Premier Bill Bennett and the backbencher concerned, Delta Socred MLA Walter Davidson, denied Friday it ever happened.

Cocke, in an interview from his home in New Westminister, said he was approached by Davidson on June 13.

He said Davidson suggested that if the opposition agreed not to take any potshots at Davis and allowed him to retain his seat in the legislature if convicted and given an absolute discharge by the court, the Socreds would not press on with a committee inquiry into MLAs accused of improperly receiving government expense money.

Norm Levi (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) is one of four MLAs facing charges by the committee. The other three are Socreds.

Cocke said he asked Davidson where the offer came from and Davidson replied "from the top."

He said he regarded the suggestion as repulsive and repugnant, and following a meeting with the NDP caucus wrote to Bennett outlining the conversation.

Copies of the letter were sent to Davidson and the leaders of the Conservative, Liberal, and NDP parties.

Cocke said Bennett fired back a letter later the same day denying he had authorized such a deal.

The confidential correspondence came to light Friday.

Cocke said he regretted the matter had been made public and said he had no idea how the information was leaked.

"All I know is my file is intact," he said.

He said it was "a hell of a poor time," since the Davis case is still before the courts. The ex-minister will be sentenced next week in connection with his conviction of fraud for downgrading first-class air tickets and keeping the refunds.

Davidson described the revelation of the letter's contents as scurrilous and despicable.

"In fairness to Mr. Davis, and in respect to our judicial system, there can be no alternative at this time but to refrain from any further comment."

Bennett said Friday he questioned Davidson after he received Cocke's letter and, as far as he was concerned, the affair was a fabrication by Cocke.

Davidson also said the accusation was false and that Cocke had misunderstood his intentions in coming to him in the first place.

But Cocke was adamant the offer had been made.

"How could I have made up such a ridiculous scenario?"

Vote Talk Coverup, Says NDP

The provincial president of the NDP says Premier Bill Bennett doesn't have the guts to call a snap fall election.

Gerry Stoney said Bennett's comments that a vote might be called soon to shore up weak investor confidence were made to take the heat off problems the premier is having with some ministers.

"The election talk is just a smokescreen," Stoney said.

Bennett said in Kelowna that to regain investor confidence, an election might have to be called in the near future.

He hedged slightly Friday, however, saying that next spring is also a possibility for a provincial vote.

The Social Credit government, elected in December, 1975, does not have to go to the polls until December, 1980.

There has been however, a tradition of elections every three years in B.C.

Other political figures — including retiring Liberal leader Gordon Gibson — indicated they can't see a fall call by Bennett.

"I'll be quite surprised," Gibson said.

"There are no issues now and he has another year to go."

Gibson, unlike NDP leader Dave Barrett, said he believes B.C.'s economy will hold its own next year.

"He (Bennett) is just sabre-rattling," Gibson said.

Barrett said he believes this winter will be a bad one for B.C. in terms of both unemployment and a sluggish economy and the Socreds might want a vote before the bad news hits.

"I and the NDP are ready for a fall election but if he does call one, it's proof he's in an absolute panic and afraid to face the future," Barrett said.

Conservative leader Vic Stephens said his party would be delighted to fight a fall election even although it is not yet totally geared up.

There has been speculation Bennett will call an election for the end of October.

The premier, however, expects to be in Ottawa on Oct. 30 for a first ministers' conference.

If he is eyeing a late October vote, he would have to call the election around the middle of next week to meet the 38-day lead time required under provincial election laws.

Gibson Bows Out

By PAUL NICHOLSON

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson made it official Friday — his career in provincial politics is coming to an end.

But Gibson, who has been rumored ready to move to Ottawa and a federal role for more than a year now, says his move doesn't sound the death knell for the party provincially.

Gibson said the party has its largest-ever membership and is in better financial shape than it has been for years.

He says the 1975 election that saw the Liberals drop to 7.24 per cent of the popular vote while returning only himself to the legislature, was largely the result of a polarized electorate.

"There's no reason why the Liberals can't pick up a handful of seats in the next provincial election," he said.

Gibson says he will continue to work as the MLA for North Vancouver Capilano and will continue as party leader until other arrangements are made.

The party's annual leadership convention is not scheduled until next February.

Gibson said he decided he cannot accomplish his ideals in Victoria while "at the national level, as we consider a complete revamping of the rules under which we live together, there is a great potential."

But Gibson made it clear he's not jumping right into federal politics now that his decision not to run again at the provincial level is final.

WRONG ANSWER TAGGED AT $3,794

VANCOUVER (CP) — The municipality of Burnaby was ordered Friday to pay $3,794 to the owners of a building because a municipal employee gave them a wrong answer.

Justice A. B. Macfarlane made the British Columbia Supreme Court award to Stanley and Jean Jung after the Jungs went to the Burnaby fire department to ask if the building they were planning to buy would pass fire regulations, were told it would, bought the building and then were told it would not pass.

The Jungs said they were forced to spend $3,794 to meet the fire regulations, and also said they would not have bought the building in the first place had they known the information they were given was not correct.

The plaintiffs were led to believe the building complied with the fire regulations when in fact it did not," said Justice Macfarlane.

The Jungs relied on the municipal employee to give them reliable information on which they could safely act, he added, and held that the municipality was liable.

Tough Gun Rules May Trim Dealers

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Tough new federal gun control regulations may force a number of smaller gun dealers out of business, a spokesman here predicts.

Dave Richardson, assistant manager of Robinson's sporting goods, said in an interview smaller sporting goods shops, hardware stores and even department stores may decide to drop their guns because it won't be worth their while to develop security systems to meet the new regulations.

The regulations, released this week by the solicitor-general's office, go into effect Jan. 1.

They will require all dealers to be licensed. Guns will have to be kept locked and away from the public and stores selling restricted weapons such as handguns will have to have burglar alarms. Restricted weapons will not be permitted to be displayed in store front windows.

Dealers will also have to ensure all windows and doors leading into their premises are securely locked. Inspections will be carried out by police or firearms control officers.

Richardson said most of the larger dealers made the changes a year ago.

But the requirements, he feels, may penalize the smaller storeowners, many of whom are uncertain just what they will have to do.

"I think we'll see a number selling out."

Lorne Newson, chief provincial firearms officer in B.C., whose office will co-ordinate the inspections and licencing, disagrees however.

In an interview Friday he denied there will be any hardship to smaller dealers.

Although the inspectors will have broad discretionary powers, Newson said they will take a common sense approach to enforcing the regulations.

"I would hope our inspectors will work with people rather than be seen as Big Brother looking over them.

"We'll be taking a reasonable approach. Through the dealers we hope to get the message across to gunowners that there's a lot of good in this legislation.

"It's not the intent of those involved in the program to interfere in the responsible use of firearms."

Newson does expect some reduction in the number of dealers of guns and ammunition when the regulations go into effect. At present there are about 35 dealers in the Greater Victoria area.

He said he anticipates 1,500 applications for licences from dealers throughout the province.

NEWS BRIEFS

Own Gun Fatal

TORONTO (CP) — A Metropolitan Toronto police constable was shot dead with his own gun Friday when he intervened in a domestic dispute in the city's west end. Constable Henry Snedden, 22, was shot once in the neck after a man managed to remove the constable's gun from his holster.

Que. Vote in '79?

THETFORD MINES, Que. (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque said Friday the referendum on Quebec independance will not be held until the fall of 1979 "at the earliest."

Volts Kill Driver

OTTAWA (CP) — A Quebec construction worker was electrocuted on a job site Friday when 5,000 volts of current ran through him as he stepped out of the cab of his dump truck. Harold Davis, 38, of Luskville, Que., was killed when the box of his truck touched a high-power hydro line.

Another Draw

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (AP) — Challenger Viktor Korchnoi and defending champion Anatoly Karpov settled for a draw today in the 23rd game of their world chess championship match.

Spirit Ads Banned

DUBLIN (AP) — The government of the Irish Republic, concerned about the health of its citizens, has banned the advertising of beer, wines and spirits on state-run radio and television.

192 Casualties

NEW DELHI — At least 192 people have died from gastro-enteritis in India's flood-devastated northeastern regions, officials said Friday. Bihar state, where 178 people have died so far, is the worst-hit area.

NEW $ SLIDE

NEW YORK (CP) - The Canadian dollar, after recovering earlier in the week, slipped again Friday to a new 45-year low of 85.91 U.S.

The all-time record low for the Canadian dollar was 82.47 cents, set in April, 1933.

B.C. Crackdown on Used Car Dealers

Effective next January all used autos displayed for sale in B.C. must carry a sticker with the asking price.

The price posting is ordered under new regulations aimed at giving car buyers a better deal and curbing the activities of shady dealers.

The new rules for the auto dealers were revealed Friday by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair.

Mair said B.C. is the first jurisdiction in North America known to require this for used cars.

The minister also said the fee for the basic dealer's licence will be increased in two stages, to $84 from $24 and to $168 by January, 1980, to pay for more vigorous enforcement of the legislation.

He said the new regulations require car dealers to give their customers more information and higher standards of protection.

Mair said the majority of automotive dealers support the rules to inhibit the operations of an unscrupulous minority of shady dealers.

Other regulations state:

—All unsafe cars being sold for parts must display a sticker warning that they are not suitable for transportation;

—Dealers must disclose their knowledge of whether a used car was brought into B.C. for resale from another province which may, for example, use road salt that contributes to rusting;

—Previous damage to used cars that cost more than $1,000 to repair must be disclosed;

—Previous use as a taxi, police car, racing car, emergency vehicle or lease or rental vehicle must be disclosed;

—Dealers must disclose previous mileage according to what they know and believe about the accuracy of the odometer reading;

—Cars may not be described as demonstrators, company cars or executive vehicles unless they were bought new and used for those purposes;

—Dealers must disclose all pertinent details of the transaction, including total cost and cost of any credit, repairs or additional options agreed upon.

Mair also announced proclamation of the Motor Dealers' Licensing Act, approved by the legislature last summer, which requires all registered motor dealers to maintain showrooms and either repair facilities or contracts for repair services for their cars.

He said car rental and leasing firms which sell their used cars to the public will for the first time be required to register and comply with the rules.

The minister said dealer inspectors will give a high priority to cracking down on dealers who violate the act by selling more than four cars a year without obtaining a licence.

Nicaragua Claims Leon Recaptured

MANAGUA (AP) — Government troops smashed a week-long rebel defence of Leon and recaptured the northwestern Nicaraguan city in fierce overnight fighting, a national guard spokesman said today.

Col. Aguiles Aranda Escobar, the guard's public relations chief, refused to say how many casualties resulted from the fighting for Nicaragua's second-largest city.

Aranda said troops have also retaken part of Esteli, another rebel strongold, and "cleaned out snipers who caused great loss in lives and property." He gave no casualty figures for the fighting in Esteli.

President Anastasio Somoza's ground and air forces had been pounding rebel defenders in both cities. The insurgents are led by leftist Sandinista guerrillas in a bid to drive Somoza from power.

Aranda's annoucement of the government victory followed word that Roman Catholic Church groups have appealed to U.S. President Carter to cut off aid to the embattled Somoza government.

Church groups in the predominantly Roman Catholic Central American country, led by the presbyterial council of the Managua archdiocese, addressed their appeal to Carter in an open letter dated Friday and made public today.

It asked that Nicaraguans be allowed to determine their own future, described the current government as "a regime sustained by death" and called for Somoza's resignation.

The letter, copies of which were given to reporters, noted the United States has sustained the Somoza family in power by "brute force" since U.S. Marines invaded Nicaragua in the late 1920s and helped install Somoza's father as president.

The Carter administration has suspended military aid to the Somoza government but still provides economic assistance.

Hydro to Increase Directors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett plans to announce soon an expanded board of directors for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority in answer to complaints the government-owned utility is subject to control by too small a group, including its own management.

Bennett said Friday that he has almost completed a list of names for "a broader selection of directors on both geography and thought."

It will be a group of "very positive directors" who "can give encouragement to Hydro management" but also make the utility more accountable, Bennett said.

Hydro often has been criticized for having only four members on its board of directors — Hydro chairman Robert Bonner, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, Charles Brazier and John Steele.

Bennett declined to indicate who he has in mind for directorships, or how many, but said: "You will be very pleased, as will all of British Columbia, with the broad selection of people that have agreed to serve."

Bennett said, "We are going to get some very positive directors who won't be full time, who won't be a drain on the public purse but can give direction.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver Friday the legislature's Crown corporations reporting committee was told that the B.C. Energy Commission does not have the expertise to determine if Hydro's rate hikes are justifiable.

"I would not welcome such a move," said Bonner.

Bonner also told the committee that the provincial government should allow Hydro to make long-term power export contracts with the United States.

Commission deputy chairman John Ludgate said the commission needs funds and an opportunity to begin evaluating Hydro's rate increases.

"I don't think he's correct to say we lack the expertise — it's an easy thing for Bonner to say that now, if we're not evaluating Hydro's rate increases," said Ludgate.

"We do the same thing for other utilities in the province, large and small, and the principles are basically the same."

Bonner was responding to Liberal leader Gordon Gibson who asked if he favored regulation of Hydro's rate increases by an outside body such as the commission.

"Certainly it would require more staff and more funding if we were to take on Hydro, said Ludgate. "It would be a huge workload because it's the largest utility in the province.

"But if we were asked, we would do it and it is well within our expertise."

Extradition of Proll Set

LONDON (UPI) — Astrid Isolde Proll, getaway driver of the Baader-Meinhof terrorist gang she helped found, today lost the first round of her battle against extradition to West Germany, where she claims she will be killed.

Ms. Proll, 31, was arrested Friday in a north London auto garage where she worked under the alias of Anna Puttick as a $152-a-week mechanics instructor in a government-run course.

Ms. Proll did not attend the hearing. Scotland Yard requested her extradition to West Germany where she is wanted for the attempted murder of two policemen.

A magistrate's court issued a provisional extradition warrant but ruled the West German government must submit formal evidence before the warrant can be confirmed.

She disappeared from Germany in 1974 after being freed conditionally on health grounds while awaiting trial on the charges.

Ms. Proll's love of cars dates back to her early days with the Red Army Faction, where she was reputed to be the getaway driver of the gang that terrorized West Germany from the mid-1960s.

But in a statement issued through her lawyer, Dean Sargeant, Ms. Proll said she would come "to the same sticky end as the others in Germany's prisons."

Both namesakes of the terror band — Andreas Baader and Ulrike Meinhof — died in German cells. The government says they committed suicide but supporters claim they were murdered.

McCarthy Says Pay U.S. Exchang

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said Friday she has told staff on the government-owned ferry Princess Marguerite to pay the current exchange rate for United States money.

Throughout the summer, U.S. funds were accepted at par, with change being given in U.S. currency.

Mrs. McCarthy said she thought this system was working but recently has received complaints about it.

Lengthy Strike Looms

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A potentially lengthy and economically crippling strike began Friday when workers at the Inco Metals Co. operation rejected the company's latest offer for a one-year contract.

Picket lines went up after about 61 per cent of 10,487 workers, members of Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers of America, voted against a proposal drafted in part by Ontario Labor Minister Robert Elgie and accepted earlier in the week by the company.

There are 11,500 workers in the local.

Inco officials have said the company has a seven- to eight-month stockpile of nickel at locations across the continent, increasing the prospect of a lengthy shutdown.

Typhoon Strikes

TOKYO (Reuter) — Typhoon Irma, smashing a trail of havoc across southwest Japan, killed six people and made 3,000 homeless, police said today. Four people were listed as missing.

No Action in Beer Strike

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — No efforts were made Friday to quickly resolve a three-day wildcat strike at the Labbatt Breweries of B.C. Ltd. plant here.

Union leader John Langley said he believes the company is taking no action because a surplus of American beer is holding back domestic beer sales. About 1.7 million dozen bottles of United States beer must be sold before the Liquor Distribution Branch will increase British Columbia beer orders.

About 270 Labatt's workers have been off the job since Wednesday to protest the hiring of non-union security guards during the recent three-month labor dispute.

Brewery workers want the non-union Kaban Enterprises Ltd. firm to be replaced with union workers now that the labor dispute has been resolved.

The Canadian Union of United Brewery, Flour, Cereal, Soft Drink and Distillery Workers will ask the labor relations board to intervene, Langley said. He said the parties will meet informally Monday with board officials.

At Molson's brewery in Vancouver, a planned shutdown of bottling operation went ahead Friday, but a management spokesman said the company hoped to keep its 175 permanent employees at work doing general repairs.

Careers by Computer

TORONTO (CP) — Job seekers in 60 Canadian cities may soon be able to use a computerized career-planning program to find employment.

The program has been used in pilot projects in British Columbia and Alberta secondary schools. Philip Jarvis of the department of employment and immigration developed the program, called the Canadian heuristic occupational information and career exploration system (Choices.)

Jarvis said plans call for the installation of 350 Choices terminals in Canada Employment Centres.

The treasury board now is considering appropriation of the $1 million the program would need annually.

The system would allow users to explore jobs available to them in terms of such things as their income expectations, interests, education and preferred work conditions.

Each user would spend about half an hour in so-called conversation with the computer and receive a printed transcript of the session.

Jarvis said the program has information on up to 620 primary jobs taken from various sources in the department.

There is also less complete information on about 3,000 related but less common occupations.

Jarvis said information in the computer would be updated every three months and a complete new data base provided each year.

Jarvis said British Columbia and Nova Scotia plan to implement the system within the next year and several other provinces are interested.

A Provincial Election?

Election speculation generates a momentum of its own. During the summer, both major political parties in British Columbia began preparing for an election this fall, three years after the last ballot.

The New Democratic Party attracted some promising new faces. Social Credit sent in printing orders for hundreds of thousands of copies of a pamphlet, Getting Things Done for People — said by party president Les Keen to be destined for party members only, but how many copies can even the most fervent Socred read?

The man who will decide whether British Columbians go to the polls at Hallowe'en, Premier Bill Bennett, assiduously cultivated the voters. He made numerous trips around the province, distributing cash as he went. A grant for a trailer park in Prince Rupert. A new bus terminal for Courtenay. Money for a senior citizens' apartment tower in Kamloops. Well-publcized appearances at the B.C.-funded summer games in Penticton. Individual photos taken with every Miss PNE contestant and sent to their hometown newspapers. The premier got out and mingled with the people in an exercise that looked like a dress rehearsal for an election campaign. But he continually maintained that autumn 1978 was just one of four possible slots for a provincial election.

A few new developments have changed his mind, it seems. Now that Prime Minister Trudeau has definitely closed out the fall as a venue for a federal election, Bennett has suddenly discovered that it is highly necessary to have a provincial election soon. Suddenly, investors are "afraid" of the NDP getting back in, so we need a second Socred win to banish the blues.

It's a fairly good first attempt at throwing together an election issue, but hanging the "investor-confidence-is-weak" argument on the NDP is getting to be a pretty threadbare ploy. The New Democrats have kept a tight leash on the anti-capitalists among their ranks, and done and said little that could be interpreted as even mildly offensive to business in this province. Bennett's speech in Kelowna in effect was an admission of failure on his part to "get this province moving again," as Social Credit promised in 1975.

The resignation of Liberal leader Gordon Gibson is another strong indication of an impending election. It was nothing unexpected, but Gibson's departure throws a curve into both parties' hopes. It would seem to be the final collapse of the B.C. Liberal party. Attracting a new leader and, more important, raising funds and finding candidates will be difficult at such short notice if Bennett does call an election.

With the Liberals gone, where will their traditional supporters go? In 1975, there were 12 seats where the Liberal votes could have made a difference. Six were won by Socreds, six by New Democrats. If the Grit vote went all NDP, it would have made the outcome 29 Socreds and 24 NDP instead of 35 to 18, still not enough to reverse the over-all results.

But such is unlikely to happen. The Liberal vote — seven per cent of the total ballots cast in 1975 — will be spread around and may be a key factor in a few constituencies, but it will be too thinly spread to affect the larger picture. Nothing seems likely to interfere with the pattern that has developed over the last two decades — politics in B.C. has come down to a straight right-left battle between Social Credit and the NDP, and the traditional centrist parties are being ground to fragments in the no man's land between them. The tragedy of Gibson's resignation is that it deprives the legislature and the people of B.C. of the only effective opposition to the government. The party which is supposed to be playing that role has a leader with a near-invisible public profile.

As for the Conservatives, their new leader Vic Stephens talks bravely but we doubt the provincial Tories will make any bigger impression than they did in 1975, regardless of Stephens' "tax revolt" campaign to chip away on Social Credit's right flank.

But the NDP is beginning to attract some strong candidates. Part of Bennett's haste must lie in a desire to cut off time for the opposition to find any more people like federal MP Stu Leggatt and local lawyer John Brewin to run as provincial candidates. The new faces certainly won't hurt the NDP's chances.

By contrast, the premier's own party is looking a bit shopworn. Several scandals have left a bad odor around Social Credit. It is understandable why the opening shot in what seems to be Bennett's re-election campaign takes the offensive to the NDP with the so-called "investor confidence" issue, when his own record is pretty slim. People retain an impression of Social Credit as the tax-boosters who meted out punishment to those who dared to vote socialist with higher ICBC rates, doubled ferry fares, higher sales taxes and so on.

The NDP's undramatic performance of the last three years — like Social Credit's in the three years before that — makes it the natural repository for all the anti-government sentiment generated during this administration's term of office. Whether it is as strong as the wave that deluged Social Credit in 1972 will be explored closely and carefully by the politicians in the next few weeks.

Maurice Wrixon

Maurice Wrixon, or M.P.B. as he signed his many letters to the editor, wouldn't want any sad faces at his passing, although there are many, many people who will miss him. It's just that in life he was always too active for regrets or recriminations.

There's a story about him that perhaps also illustrates his attitude towards life. For years after he retired he spent much of his weekends as information officer for Victoria rugby clubs. He spent one Saturday at two matches, played on side-by-side fields. Watching one game from the sidelines dividing the fields, he didn't see the play of the other approaching at his back.

Soon he was engulfed, knocked down in tangle of players — no insignificant event for someone of six decades. He was pulled to his feet and dusted off, and after a pause he said: "Most activity I've had in years" and went on.

He was also an ardent fly fisherman (a fishing friend of Roderick Haig-Brown) and cultivated an Irishman's interest in argument and controversy. Editors and politicians everywhere must have dozens of his letters. A selection of his correspondence would make a wonderful book. We've lost a great individual.

EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

Are the Civic Triumphs Coming Too Easily?

The triumphs that disprove the cynical old notion that you can't beat city hall are still too few and far between, though they are perhaps more frequent than they were a few years ago. But the triumph scored by the residents of northwestern Saanich this past week was so dramatic and, in its way, so amazing that the worst cynics should be thinking there is yet hope for the responsiveness of local government.

It was not that Saanich council defeated the proposal to build an industrial park along Interurban Road — it had been touch-and-go from the beginning whether a majority on council would go along. At the beginning of the public hearing on the issue nearly every observer was predicting a five-to-four split, the only unknown whether the negatives or affirmatives would prevail.

What was so unexpected was that each and every alderman who had favored the industrial proposal changed his mind in response to the clearly-expressed wishes of the local citizenry. When the final vote was taken, Mayor Mel Couvelier was left alone holding the bag on the proposal he had developed from the beginning.

It amazed many of the 300 residents who attended the hearing, a fair proportion of whom had never been involved in any public issues before, that their speeches had had such an effect.

The residents of the spread-out Interurban area have never been organized. They live in subdivisions of only a few lots or on huge, almost-rural lots, divided by undeveloped land and by a variety of institutions — a couple of hospitals, the vocational campus of Camosun College. They are not organized into any "ratepayers' association" or "neighborhood association." Their planning for the public hearing consisted of little more than a couple of informal meetings between neighbors.

Curiously, their lack of formal structure probably ended up doing their cause good rather than harm. Faced with a crowd of individuals rather than a brief from some formally-named organization, council felt it was really hearing the voice of the people.

Also, unaware of the effect of simply providing a raw show of strength in numbers, most of them had done their homework carefully. They were well aware of the details of the proposal, and several could quote statistics, tax figures and financial statements as well as could municipal staff or aldermen.

By the end of the hearing, it was clear that for council to vote in favor of the proposal would have been for it to show itself, on the face of it, as unresponsive and insensitive in the extreme.

Yet Couvelier, speaking after he knew he had been deserted by his entire council, raised some interesting and valid points about the problems of council in such a situation. He agreed that the feeling in the neighborhood — and thus at the hearing — was overwhelmingly against the industrial proposal, but did those people really represent the residents of Saanich? To agree to respond to every neighborhood concern, he said, was tantamount to virtually no major developments at all because the residents in a single neighborhood would always be against a change.

The question he asked, almost rhetorically, was whether sometimes the feelings of the individual neighborhoods had to be overridden for the greater good of the entire municipality?

This is an almost impossibly difficult question to answer. It was a generation of councils who made their own decisions on what constituted the "greater good" that led to the entrenched beliefs of so many that local government is indeed alienating, insenstive, unresponsive and even dictatorial.

Yet Couvelier is quite right in saying that no neighborhood will ever willingly accept an industrial development, a major shopping centre, a jail within its borders. If these things are really necessary, it must be the elected officials that make the tough decisions to put them someplace.

After the Saanich meeting, one of the Interurban residents said in wonderment: "It was so easy. We never dreamt it would be that easy."

It should certainly always be possible for residents to take on city hall on the basis of the rightness of their cause and stand a good chance of winning. But maybe it shouldn't be that easy. — B.McL.

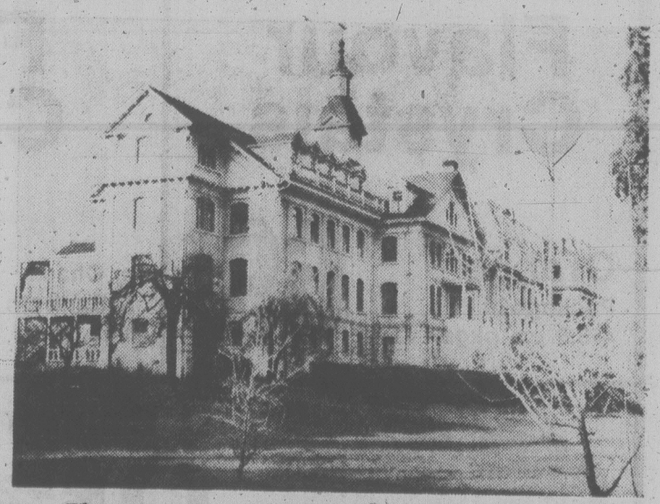
Lebanese War

Do you stand for peace and freedom? If so, then it is time to speak to those who understand and appreciate the values and principles by which mankind can live harmoniously with all living creatures in an environment of relative peace. To remain passive and uncaring about civil strife and greater conflicts is to threaten the downfall of man as a rational being.

How long can a small and once progressive and peace-loving country such as Lebanon endure the hardships imposed upon it? It will be recalled that, from Lebanon, came the Roman Catholic Church's latest saint, St. Charbel Maklouf, proclaimed by Pope Paul VI in 1977. Modern-day Lebanese Christians are dying like martyrs of old in Beirut, and Christ is being spiritually crucified with them at the hands of the deceiving Syrian armies. The Syrians, in their quest for peace, are indiscriminately bombing civilian homes, schools, hospitals and any structure providing safety and habitation. It is an insensitive and ruthless war machine at work.

I ask you: where is the respect for innocent human life, human rights and human dignity that should prevail among free people of the world? With power and authority comes responsibility for law and order. The Lebanese people are being forced to leave their country to make room for the Palestinians they once welcomed as unfortunate, desolate and homeless neighbors. Since then the two superpowers and Syria have forgotten the deeds of the Good Samaritan. We want them out of Lebanon.

Rest assured that, for as long as there is Christian blood in Lebanon and the world over, there is hope. In the name of love and humanity, do not fear to speak out in protest against injustice wherever and whenever it occurs. Start with yourself and go from there, and may Divine Providence help you along the way. — Canadian Lebanese '76 Association, Frederiction, N.B.



Why can't old St. Ann's Academy be a new Victoria library?

Library at St. Ann's

The James Bay Residents' League wishes to congratulate and thank all those aldermen in the four core municipalities who voted against the new Victoria library proposal, especially those members of Esquimalt council who defeated the proposed relocation.

To move Victoria's library to a rental location at this point would be ludicrous. Taxpayers in the four core municipalities already face enormous increases in their property taxes as a result of the provincial government's changes in the tax laws. At the same time the province has decided to give the municipalities the responsibility for operating the public transit system. Add to these factors the as yet unknown bill for Clover Point outfall and the equally unknown price for the library move, the average taxpayer could be facing public bankruptcy.

Are we to be faced 10 years hence with the impossible choice of staying in the province's white elephant or being forced to find a new location at inflated prices? Either way the taxpayer will have to pay the bill. Now is the time to decide. Now is the time to find a new site and purchase it and build our new library there. We will then have a facility we can be proud to own.

We would recommend that the four core municipalities approach the provincial government and suggest the purchase of St. Ann's Academy for $1. Just as the Crystal Gardens was sold to the province for $1 the province could in turn sell the St. Ann's site to the municipalities for the same price. By doing this the municipalities would be saved the expense of finding and purchasing a site at enormous cost and would at the same time acquire a more than adequate site for a new library. Renovation of St. Ann's or the construction of a new building on the site would in the long run be no more expensive than the white elephant rental scheme proposed at present.

It is our hope that our elected officials will see the merits of such a proposal and pursue the possibilities, before decisions are irreversible and we are left with a very expensive white elephant of our own. — Charles Ball, Information Officer, James Bay Residents' League.

Everybody Wins

The Air Canada strike is over! Pardon me if I don't applaud. I got caught cheering when the beer strike ended, only to find that it was merely a player change in the game of business versus labor. I am not sure what it was that I was cheering about anyway since no one seems to know who won that last inning. Of course we all know who lost. Joe Public!

It is probably true that strikes and lockouts are a necessary evil in today's society; it would be naive to think that business and labor are ever going to form a mutual admiration society. I am just tired of being used as the game ball. Both business and labor seem to have decided on a game plan that involves creating as much hardship for the public as possible, and then blaming it all on the other side in the dispute for being unwilling to negotiate. We, the public, are then supposed to join the "good guys" in applying pressure to the "bad guys" to force a settlement.

I must admit that I was fooled for awhile, getting caught up in the excitement of the game as it were, taking sides, and not even minding the kick in the ribs at the sound of each whistle. However, I think that it must be obvious to everyone by now that in this era of world trade deficits, lost man-hours, runaway inflation and high unemployment, that we cannot continue to play a game in which everyone loses. As in the infamous beer dispute, a total shutdown of the industry opens the door to foreign competition, which often results in a slower market when the dispute is settled, meaning less production, layoffs of employees and in the meantime, makes me very thirsty.

At the risk of being tarred and feathered for daring to enter onto the field as a player, I would like to suggest a slight change in the rules. When the flag goes up to signal the next inning (strike or lockout), we can send in a bunch of our boys off of the unemployment benches as a temporary work force, and our coach, the government, can see to it that any profits the company makes during the dispute are paid over as a special gross national product continuation tax. In other words, maintain the principles to the dispute, business and labor, in the same position they would be in now in a shutdown, the difference being that it's business as usual with the profits going to the government, wages to the unemployed and the rest of us can still fly Air Canada to the out of town games, sit back with a couple of draught and enjoy the action. Aside from whatever outcome of the eventual settlement, everybody wins! — Richard White, 1071 Jasmine Avenue.

A Rich Heritage

Does anyone else, I wonder, ever feel (even just a little bit) distressed, ashamed, or disgusted with the letters they write to the papers? I hope so and have in mind especially J. N. Christie, whose letter (Benevolent Dictator; Times, Aug. 30) displayed such ignorance of and prejudice and condescension towards Canadian culture, that is, North American French culture, which the author goes so far as to deny exists! Has Christie never heard O Canada? The music, he/she should know, is a product of French North American culture. Is Christie unaware of Hector de Saint-Denys-Garneau, Claude Champagne, Anne Hebert, Gabrielle Roy, Jean Papineau-Couture, Clarmont Pepin, not to mention Gratien Gelinas, Wilfrid Pelletier, Jean Gascoin, Genevieve Bujold, Claude Jutra, or even 'teen-age idol Rene Simard? What about Sir George Etienne Cartier or (surely!) Sir Wilfrid Laurier? Frenchmen all.

Voices from the past, French voices, mock Christie: "If ever this country (Lower Canada before Confederation) should cease one day to be British, the last gun fired in defence of British sovereignty in America will be that of a French-Canadian." — Etienne-Pascal Tache, Montreal, 1846. "I view the diversity of races in British North America in this way: we are of different races, not for the purpose of warring against each other, but in order to compete and emulate for the general good." — Sir George Etienne Cartier, Confederation Debates, 1865. "If one knows his neighbour's tongue, he possesses the key to his house." — Abbe Arthur Maheux, What Keeps Us Apart?, 1944. And, finally, a scoff in J. N. Christie's direction from a fellow anglophone circa 1935: "Quebec remained British because it was French." — George M. Wrong, Canada and the American Revolution. — Robin Terry, 524 Dalas Road.

Security Core of Mid-East Problem

By COLIN LEGUM
London Observer

In this article, the author comments on arguments presented in Peace in the Middle East: Super-Powers and Security Guarantees by David Astor and Valerie Yorke, published in London for the World Security Trust.

Whatever the final outcome of the Camp David summit, the hard problems associated with bringing peace to the Middle East will remain.

At best the current talks can only hope to establish agreed guidelines about how to tackle the central issues of the conflict — Jewish and Arab rights in the former Palestinian territory, the future of the territories occupied by Israel since 1967, the creation of internationally recognized borders, and some guarantee of security for Israel and its neighbors . . . .

Four wars and 30 years of history have transformed relations between Jews and Arabs. The great majority on both sides are now ready to live together as peaceful neighbors provided only that they can be reasonably sure that the concessions which will be required from each side will not leave either vulnerable to future attacks. So, the core of the problem of bringing peace to the Middle East is security . . . .

Although there has been much generalized talk about security guarantees, there has been little detailed examination of what these might entail in practice. A report just published by the World Security Trust offers the first comprehensive plan for creating a new security system for the Middle East. Its radical proposals challenge the whole basis on which the current negotiations are being conducted at Camp David . . . .

The most controversial aspect of (the) proposals is that peace in the Middle East depends on a security system jointly underwritten by the U.S. and the Soviet Union. This proposal to involve the Russians in the security of the region is unlikely to find much favor with either the Israelis or the Egyptians, but it is by no means unacceptable to the Americans.

The authors' case for Russian involvement is that the local parties to the Middle Eastern conflict have become undefeatable. Battles between them can be won, but if either side looks like winning the war, both superpowers will move to prevent this for fear that this could involve them in an escalation. This situation guarantees a stalemate.

There is no good reason why undefeated states should make major concessions, especially where major issues of security are involved. So long as any of the parties can rely on the support of one of the superpowers, the stalemate will continue, and peace will be impossible.

Therefore, so the argument goes, the only way of breaking the stalemate is through an agreement between the superpowers themselves to end the stalemate and remove the constant dangers of a new war.

The report produces convincing evidence to show that the possibility of American hegemony in the Middle East is a fantasy, and that the Soviets have demonstrated their interest in wishing to achieve a detente with the Americans in the area.

Although the Soviets' influence has been eroded in the Middle East, perhaps temporarily, they show no sign of accepting less than political parity. As an important source of arms and aid, as a diplomatic counter to the U.S., they remain a crucial factor in the Arab-Israeli equation.

If America does not persuade Israel to withdraw, the Arabs could turn in earnest to the Russians for support. Besides, Washington needs the Soviet Union to underwrite any settlement and to maintain arms limitation and demilitarization agreements if they are to be successful in preserving regional stability in the event of a serious conflict.

The report proposes a comprehensive Middle East peace treaty based on the Security Council resolutions 242 and 338 and on the creation of a Palestinian "homeland" on the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Such a treaty would include international agreements for demilitarized zones astride all Israel's frontiers with at least a token strip on Israeli territory.

UN peacekeeping forces and local early warning stations would be established on Israel's borders with Egypt, Syria and, possibly, Lebanon for a period of at least 15 years . . . .

Formal multilateral political guarantees would be undertaken independently by the United Nations, the United States and the Soviet Union, as well as by other powers, to guarantee both the demilitarized zone and the borders of Israel and its neighboring states . . . .

A permanent standing arms control committee of supplier and recipient states would be set up to maintain a military balance between Israel and its neighboring states.

. . . Israel and other states would have the right, if they wished to exercise it, to enter into mutual defence pacts with the United States or the Soviet Union to provide guarantees of "last resort" for their security.

Bilingualism in Canada Beating Geographical Retreat

By DOUGLAS FISHER

The flair given a report by the C. D. Howe Research Institute on the state of bilingualism in Canada may bring more common sense to discussion about language in Canada.

Richard Joy for the Howe group has taken census data, including some from 1976 still being pieced out by Statistics Canada, to tell us bilingualism, French-English, is declining in terms of percentages, and also is in geographical retreat.

The data which showed such trends has been there more than a decade. In the heyday of bilingualism, when ayone used it — as I did as a columnist — one would be typed as a red-neck or a bigot or anti-French or anti-Liberal or anti-Trudeau.

I am personally somewhat shamed about bilingualism: Indeed a part of me has been downcast for years. I had 17 years of French in school, plus several individual assays at mastering it.

Toronto French class: Optimism vs. common sense?

After all that, I'm a unilingual anglophone with a very modest reading capacity in French . . . .

Even someone trained to use the data of social science, like myself, let optimism carry away common sense.

I knew, I really knew better, but brushed past the data which showed the steady rush in the Western world of English as the dominant language, largely because of the triumph of American communications technology and its distribution of American popular culture.

I . . . like so many other Canadians . . . took up the belief that if we spent enough on teaching French and insisted upon opportunities for bilingualism in the workplaces of our bureaucracies, a steadily-increasing number of Canadians would become bilingual. Such optimism was very shallow . . . and callow.

I began to admit this about five years ago. The recalcitrance and boondoggling about bilingualism in the federal department, and agencies in Ottawa had become glaring, while out in the country where it was either overwhelmingly English or French, antagonisms raged over bilingual promotion.

In short, the dream in its full grandeur was a foolish one. Better to have been more realistic . . . .

Everyday life of plain folk in our communities in most of Canada has no place for bilingualism.

It's unnecessary because most people believe it is unnecessary.

I, for one, am acknowledging a self-swindle by those of us who had too much arrogant faith in education and the teaching of languages. The children of the affluent and the degree-holders (usually one and the same) have not taken to bilingualism or other languages with elan and success. Indeed, more and more have chosen not to take a second language in school.

The paper by the Howe Institute notes the category of "mother tongue" in census data is somewhat suspect because so many who give French as their mother tongue — honestly of course — now "live" in English, even at home, if they are located outside the main concentration of French-speaking people in Quebec.

Of the 1976 population, which was 7,400 short of 23 million, 14.1 million have English as mother tongue and only 5.8 have French. Of this latter figure, 4.9 million are in Quebec. Only 900,000 Canadians in 1976 with French as "mother tongue" lived outside Quebec. Only a bit more than 200,000 of these were in the seven provinces other than Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick.

(Of the 462,000 Ontarians who list French as their) mother tongue, more than 300,000 are concentrated (in pockets). . . .

If one contrasts the census data for language from 1961 to 1971 it's obvious that outside Quebec . . . (the use of French) . . . and bilingualism . . . have been slipping, except in that smallish enclave based in Ottawa and the triangle of the province (of Ontario) east of it between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers.

Perhaps the best way to put it is bilingualism as a major prospect and widespread reality for Canada has been killed by the people as they live, where they live. Any future for it is merely where it is functional.

TOLSTOY IN FAVOR; WORKS HARD TO FIND

MOSCOW — The 150th anniversary of the birth of Leo Tolstoy is being celebrated this month throughout the Soviet Union and the efforts befit this giant of letters, whose vast novels and intricate plots and bold characters have stood in the minds of millions of Westerners as epitomizing the complex panorama that is Russia.

Tolstoy occupies a unique and revered niche in the pantheon of accepted geniuses of the arts, whose works may be read in the Soviet Union without fear of official disfavor.

Tolstoy's position is based on the author's strong sympathies for peasant life, his attacks on the Russian Orthodox Church and the church's eventual excommunication of the aristocratic novelist.

Despite this, it is nearly impossible to find his works on the shelves of Moscow books stores — not because of unusual demand, it seems, but because plans or special commemorative editions may have fallen through.

The city's largest and fanciest bookstore, House of Books, has none of the promised souvenir Tolstoy works and other stores showed only a random volume or two on the shelves. In this regard, the author's works are simply among a lot of other items of life which people sometimes yearn for here, but frequently can't find.

Birdwatching And Lady Luck

Don't ask me how I got started on this, but I've been thinking a lot about luck lately, about what I like to call birdwatcher's luck.

Birdwatcher's luck is a term "unlucky" birdwatchers might use to describe "lucky" birdwatchers, "lucky" birdwatchers being those who turn up rarities with such regularity that they seem to have a whole series of these oddities on a string just waiting to be produced for other envious birdwatchers.

While there's a good case to be made that "lucky" birdwatchers make their luck by working at their hobby, by being out often, and by being alert to anything that moves, an element of honest luck sometimes cannot be denied. Like last Saturday, at Quick's Bottom, when I saw a Green Heron.

Green Herons at Quick's Bottom, this year at least, have not been rare; but my chance encounter with one had to be luck.

Picture, if you will, the Bottom — except for a few small pools of open water — as a wide green expanse of aquatic vegetation, a foot or so high. Picture, too, a rather nondescript, brownish-streaked bird that, in its normal hunting stanee, would hardly break the surface of that greenery.

Now, into your picture insert a brash old birdwatcher with ideas of seeing his first Green Heron on Vancouver Island. The birdwatcher raises his glasses, focuses them and, suddenly, as the field comes into clear view, a Green Heron appears right in the centre!

If that isn't luck, then I don't know what is because, under the circumstances, I — the old birdwatcher — could have spent the next half hour scanning the slough and have ended up with nothing more to show for my efforts than a pair of watery eyes.

This will show you just how lucky I was. After I had looked at the heron for a minute or so, it turned its head and suddenly the streaked neck — it was a bird of this year's hatch — which had made it visible to me, was gone and so was the bird. And I never saw it again.

Now, I'm not one of those who works hard at this birdwatching game. I try to take things as they come. Therefore, luck plays a big part in my success — or lack of it. Like the time I saw the only Yellow-billed Cuckoo I've ever seen, or the equally rare — for me — Black-throated Blue Warbler.

The first, an extremely rare bird in Manitoba — which, incidentally, is where both of these incidents occurred — came to me while sitting in the shade of a clump of aspens on a hot day in June, after a session of banding cormorants and pelicans. A cool drink was close to hand and further birdwatching was as far from my thoughts as anything could be at the time.

By chance, I happened to glance up into the foliage above me and found myself gazing straight into the most beautiful pair of brown eyes I'd ever seen. They belonged to a robin-sized bird that was whitish underneath and rich brown on the back, and which had a long tail with prominent white, thumb-nail marks — a Yellow-billed Cuckoo.

There was a quick scramble for binoculars and, before the bird disappeared forever, my three mates got a brief look at it.

Now, that's luck!

The Black-throated Blue Warbler came even easier — at the breakfast table. It was a drizzly cold October morning in Winnipeg and I'd just decided that this was the kind of Sunday better spent by the fire with a book than in the woods with the birds.

I was gazing vacantly out the steamy window, only vaguely aware of the juncos at the feeder and the Red Squirrel and Blue Jays in vociferous debate in the nearby oaks, when a small, dark, junco-like bird landed on the top wire of the fence. Its head appeared black and its back and wings greyish. It looked like a junco but as it turned quickly, two tiny white patches — one on each folded wing — revealed that this was no junco!

At that moment the bird disappeared and I never saw it again.

Later, by checking my Peterson Field Guide, I convinced myself that it was a Black-throated Blue Warbler — the first, and only one I've ever seen.

Assuming of course that it was a Black-throated Blue Warbler I saw, and not something I imagined, you've got to admit there was an element of luck in my encounter with this rare little eastern warbler.

Island Trust Citizens Get Full Vote Rights

The provincial cabinet has granted full voting rights to all eligible voters residing in the Island Trust Area in the forthcoming local trustee elections, Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said Friday.

He said that as a result, electors on 176 islands in the Strait of Georgia will be permitted to vote for local trustees rather than limiting the franchise to those on the original 13 islands in the trust.

Curtis also disclosed he has been granted the authority to sign a funding agreement with the federal government for the delivery of assistance to housing in B.C.

He said that under terms of the agreement, the federal government will provide funds to the province, and B.C. will administer both the federal and provincial shares to meet local and regional housing needs.

He said this will eliminate duplication.

Housing Beefs Go To CMHC

SMITHERS (CP) — Six homeowners in east-central British Columbia have asked the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) to help them get a solution to problems they say were caused by a CMHC-approved contractor.

The trouble centres on the construction by Goumans Enterprises Ltd. of Smithers of a number of CMHC Assisted Home Ownership Program houses in northern B.C.

Edith Eisert of Topley, 60 kilometres southeast of here, said she must use a hair dryer on her home's metal doors to thaw them out on winter mornings.

Frances Gardner, also of Topley, said she had to haul drinking water 16 kilometres because a pump broke down and Goumans did not carry out a promise to fix it.

Ron Renko, CMHC manager in Prince George, said the corporation is withholding funds — he did not say how much — from Goumans because the company has not returned to finish the houses.

McMILLAN GETS FISH BONANZA

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. S. McMillan Fisheries Ltd. of Vancouver has been selected to buy all surplus salmon from six federal hatcheries in British Columbia until the end of the spawning season in mid-december.

Despite protests from the Fishermen and Allied Workers Union that the salmon should be caught by commercial, sport and native fishermen, McMillan bought approximately 50,000 surplus fish from the Capilano hatchery this week for an undisclosed price.

The company had the highest tender in bids received by the Crown Assets Disposal Corp. for the 330,000 kilograms of fish expected by the end of the year.

A federal fisheries department spokesman said Friday that the method of disposal had never been advertised as a public auction because of the technical problems associated with such a sale.

She said McMillan would receive fish surplus to the needs of hatcheries and Indian fishermen.

Ex-Mountie, 60 To Commission

The provincial government has named Geoffrey Mortimer as chairman of the B.C. Police Commission.

Mortimer, 60, served in the RCMP for 35 years, retiring in 1972 with the rank of deputy commissioner.

He has been acting chairman of the commission since April after serving as director of sheriff services for four years.

Mortimer will be responsible for the training, standards and co-ordination of activities of municipal police throughout B.C., Gardom said in a news release.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom also announced the appointment of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Kiely as a commissioner of the Legal Services Commission.

We can help you buy your first home with our FAMILY FIRST HOME PROGRAMME

It's a new programme of the British Columbia Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing to help families buy their first moderately priced home. Home ownership can be an important basis for a family life and this programme is designed to create a favourable environment in which to raise our future citizens in the "family home".

It's a big step, particularly for a young family. We'd like to make it easier with a Grant worth $2,500 for families buying their first home. You can choose which form of payment suits you best:

OPTION 1 $52.50 per month for five years to reduce your monthly mortgage payments.

OR:

OPTION 2 Lump sum payment of $2,500 to reduce your first mortgage.

Here's how it works. If you're a family with at least one dependent child under age 19, and you're buying your first home, you could be eligible to receive the Grant in whichever of the above options suits you best. There are no income restrictions and no income tax payable on the Grant. Single parent or adoptive families can also qualify.

The Grant can be used for:
NEW HOUSES	✓ YES
OLDER HOUSES	✓ YES
TOWNHOUSES	✓ YES
CONDOMINIUMS	✓ YES
MOBILE HOMES	✓ YES

You must have a minimum equity of 5% of the value of the home and the home must be priced within certain maximum price limits for the area. These price limits vary from place to place, but as a guide, the price limit for Delta is $50,000; for Saanich $50,000; for Prince George $44,000; and for Cranbrook $42,000.

Remember, the programme is for families who have never owned a home before, whether in British Columbia or elsewhere. The Grant is retroactive on all purchases made on or after April 11, 1978.

If you're thinking about buying a home, and you think you may be eligible, be sure to find out about the Family First Home Programme. Further information and application forms are available from all Government Agents, all Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing offices and many realtors.

Visiting Decision Reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Justice G. S. Rae reserved his decision Friday on a British Columbia Supreme Court bid by Claire Culhane to quash a ruling that suspends her visiting privileges at the Lower Mainland Regional Correction Centre.

Edward Harrison, regional director of provincial corrections facilities, barred Culhane March 9, 1978, as a visitor, but no reasons were given for his decision.

It was argued for her that Harrison, who has a discretion as to who may visit Oakalla, is required by the laws of natural justice to provide her with the reasons for his decision and be given an opportunity to answer them.

Two-Bus Service

VANCOUVER (CP) — Passengers at Vancouver International Airport will continue to have the choice of two bus companies for the time being.

Justice Ken Fawkus dismissed Friday an application in British Columbia Supreme Court to stop Trailways Northwest from continuing its air porter bus service to downtown Vancouver.

Trailways had a 10-year contract to pick up Vancouver-bound travellers until a new contract with Perimeter Transportation Ltd. took effect Sept. 9.

Since then, drivers for the two companies have been jockeying for position in the airport's bus parking zone.

$100M Needed for Buses

VANCOUVER (CP) — Up to $100 million will have to be spent on new buses and service facilities over the next 10 years to maintain present transit service levels in the Vancouver area, Mayor Jack Volrich said Friday.

Volrich said the massive problems involved may strengthen the argument for the introduction of rapid transit.

His comments followed a meeting between some Urban Transit Authority (UTA) interim board members and British Columbia Hydro Transit staff. The UTA board, of which Volrich is interim chairman, will be responsible for transit from April 1, 1979.

"It is clear that we have very serious problems on our hands," he said. "A great deal of the equipment is rundown and needs replacement."

Premier Bill Bennett said in an interview Friday that he expects Hydro bills to be reduced after the bus system, with its $60 million plus deficit, is transferred to the UTA.

"I expect their (Hydro's) management and operations and rates to reflect this burden being taken away," Bennett said.

He had said earlier that Hydro customers have been subsidizing transit losses on their electricity bills.

He said he will expect Hydro management to respond to the removal of the financial burden. "We are trying to give it (Hydro) a mandate where it can be accountable."

Hydro now operates 858 vehicles in the Vancouver area.

Some 251 30-year-old trolley buses need replacing at an estimated $35 million to $40 million, or $140,000 to $160,000 each, Volrich said.

Some 265 diesel buses will need replacing over the next 10 years, he said. Volrich did not say how much they'd cost, but the going rate for standard diesel transit buses is about $120,000 each—about $32 million for 265.

A new $18 million to $20 million maintenance garage is needed, he said. Hydro has already acquired the land for it in Burnaby.

"We're looking at capital costs in the order of $80 million, and perhaps close to $100 million, over the next few years," said Volrich.

"All this seems to be necessary just to maintain the present fleet level."

Volrich said Hydro doesn't seem to have any fund for replacing vehicles and that, combined with the state of the fleet, was rather disappointing to the UTA.

MAJOR POT CROP

NELSON (CP) — RCMP have confiscated about 680 kilograms of marijuana from 27 plots in the West Kootenay area.

RCMP Sgt. Eli Tetrault said Thursday that RCMP officers using a helicopter found 1,100 plants ranging up to 3.5 metres high.

The plants were found in the Grand Forks, Kaslo, Christina Lake and Crescent Valley regions.

Sgt. Tetrault said no charges have been laid yet, but the investigation is continuing. The marijuana is being held by several RCMP detachments until required as evidence in court.

College Rejects Arbitration

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Cariboo College council has refused to enter into binding arbitration to settle a month-long dispute with locked-out non-teaching employees.

College council unanimously passed a resolution Thursday stating that it does not intend to resolve its dispute with members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, Local 900, through the binding arbitration process suggested by the faculty association.

Council chairman Don Murray said the council decided against arbitration because the council has "gone as far as it can possible go" with its offer.

Dave Reiter, president of the college faculty association, said his group will stand by its decision to withhold teaching services beginning Monday if the council and union do not agree to seek arbitration.

Murray said the college is "so badly fouled up" that it could be shut down until January if instructors remain off the job.

CUPE members were locked out Aug. 18 by the college and have set up picket lines in a dispute over contract negotiations.

Disguised Iran Rebels Ambush Patrol, Kill 7

TEHRAN (AP) — Three anti-government rebels disguised as soldiers ambushed a martial law patrol in the northwestern city of Tabriz, killing six security officers and one civilian, officials reported today. Two of the attackers were killed and the other was captured.

The rebels, armed with sub-machine-guns and wearing full military gear, approached the patrol Friday night during martial law curfew hours, the report said. When they got within a few yards of the patrol, the rebels opened fire, killing several security men. The patrol returned fire and killed one of the rebels.

The attackers then took up positions on a street corner and continued to shower the patrol with bullets for about an hour before the second rebel was killed and the third captured, the report said.

Tabriz, along with Tehran and 10 other Iranian cities, has been under martial law since Sept. 8 when the government issued the decree in an effort to stem increasing violence by opponents of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi and his liberalization program.

The shah's program includes distribution to peasants of lands owned by the church, gives women the vote and allows them to discard their traditional veils and attend universities.

Conservative religious leaders of the Shiite sect, the majority religious faction in this Moslem country, have led a steadily growing revolt against the changes. A wide spectrum of opponents, including radical leftists described by the shah as "Islamic Marxists," have massed under the banner of the Moslem religious leaders.

Premier Jaffar Sharif-Emami, who received a vote of confidence today from the Iranian parliament, told legislators the recent spate of riots and arson is the work of the Marxists.

Loss May Halt Historic Railway

ANCHORAGE (AP) — The historic narrow gauge trains which chug 180 kilometres from Skagway, Alaska, to Whitehorse, Yukon, are running on shaky financial ground these days and may be forced to a halt.

Railroad officials said this week unless the Canadian government approves a $6 million subsidy for the White Pass and Yukon Corp. Ltd., the Vancouver company may quit running its Skagway-to-Whitehorse trains.

The picturesque mountain railway, which follows the route miners and adventurers took over the mountains to the Yukon and the Klondike gold fields in the 1890s, attracts 60,000 to 70,000 tourists a year.

But railroad superintendent Ward Hisman of Skagway said tourist dollars cannot make up for the recent loss of contracts to haul ore for Cassiar Asbestos Corp. of Vancouver.

Hisman, interviewed Friday by telephone, said the company's president, Jack Fraser, estimates railroad losses over the next year will be about $2.4 million dollars due to cancellation of ore contracts from Cassiar.

He said the contracts usually provide about 18 per cent of the company's gross income.

Hisman said the company will now ship by truck over a newly-improved road. "There have been big improvements in the road from the Cassiar to Stewart, British Columbia," Hisman said.

Fraser has called for Canadian government subsidies to save the route. Hisman expressed confidence that subsidies will come through. He said other mines in the area rely on the railroad to ship ore.

Hisman added: "I don't think people in the Yukon are going to let it close. That'll put Canadians out of work and right now they can't afford it."

'Death Help' Pair Convicted

STOCKHOLM (AP) — A doctor and authoress championing "death help" were convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to eight months in prison Friday for helping a paralysed man die.

The convictions and sentences are Sweden's first in a euthanasia case.

The court found that Berit Hedeby wrongly killed her journalist friend Sven-Erik Handberg last year by giving him pills and injections, although he wanted to die.

Dr. Ragnar Toss was convicted of prescribing the medicine while knowing how it was to be used. The sentences are expected to be appealed.

Hedeby, former leader of a group called The Right to our Death, disclosed in a book after Handberg's death that he had asked her to help him die since he was totally disabled by multiple sclerosis and could not commit suicide.

Dr. Toss reported the case to the National Social Welfare Board.

"Berit Hedeby took Handberg's life. That he himself wanted to die makes it manslaughter instead of murder," the court said.

The maximum penalty is six years. The prosecution asked for an unspecified stiff sentence.

"Hedeby used insulin injections without having medical training. She should have realized the effort might fail, risking serious injury to Handberg, and that she was unfit to aid someone to die," the court stated.

Dr. Toss was criticized for not having seen Handberg to ascertain his condition and will to die. The court said Dr. Toss miscalculated the amount of insulin and digitalis needed to cause a painless death for Handberg, leading to two botched attempts.

N.Y. PAPERS TO PUBLISH?

NEW YORK (AP) — Publishers of New York's three major dailies say they might resume publication despite a strike of pressmen that has kept the newspapers off the streets for the last five weeks.

"We have plans to publish," said Rupert Murdoch, president of the Publishers Association of New York City and publisher of the afternoon Post.

He said the papers are "not at the stage yet of saying we are going to go ahead," but advertising sales and plans for sports coverage indicate that Sept. 25 might be a target date for resuming publication.

William Kennedy, president of Printing Pressmen's Union No. 2, said he does not believe the Times, News and Post can publish without his 1,550 union members. The papers normally print 3.3 million copies a day.

But with extensive automation and support from other unions which now are backing the pressmen, publishers believe they can circumvent Kennedy's union.

The Allied Printing Trades Council, an organization which includes presidents of 10 unions involved in the newspaper dispute, has scheduled a Monday meeting that could determine how much future support the pressmen can expect.

Dutch Police Shoot

BREUKELEN, Netherlands (AP) — Dutch police said they intercepted a car carrying four armed South Moluccans on Friday and killed one and wounded another in a shoot-out. The other two were arrested.

Police said they trailed the car 25 kilometres from Amsterdam, halting it after it turned off the main highway. The occupants were told to get out of the vehicle but reached for weapons and police opened fire, a spokesman said.

The police said the Moluccans were observed loading what appeared to be automatic weapons into their automobile in Amsterdam.

The police are treating the incident as a criminal case, not connected with Moluccan political extremism. The spokesman said surveillance had been kept for some time on Moluccans suspected of arms and drug dealing.

The last Moluccan terrorism was in March when three young militants stormed a provincial government building in the northern city of Assen and grabbed 70 hostages.

French Government Plans Steel Takeover

PARIS (UPI) — The government has drawn up a master plan to take over the bankruptcy-threatened steel industry in the most dramatic action in French industry since the end of the Second World War.

The plan will pump billions of francs into French steel mills in an effort to salvage the industry which has lost $3 billion since 1974, industry sources said Friday.

Placing the already heavily subsidized steel industry under state control is the most dramatic industrial act since a spate of nationalizations in 1945.

The planned measure follows widespread unrest over the increase in unemployment in France amounting to 5.9 per cent of the work force.

The planned nationalization also comes after the closing of several steel plants.

Production in the steel industry has fallen to 22 million metric tons this year and the mills have a crushing debt of $12 billion.

State control of the key industrial sector will be brought about by having the steel industry convert money owed the government into government-held shares or bonds.

The government will put its men in top executive posts and impose dramatic structural changes.

But even if the industry is salvaged, the mills will have to dismiss 10,000 to 12,000 workers, industry sources said.

Oswald Informant Held In Torture Vault, CIA Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) says a Soviet defector who had information on Lee Harvey Oswald was held in a concrete vault for nearly three years, and one official considered killing him or driving him "to a looney bin."

CIA spokesman John Hart told the House of Representatives assassinations committee Friday that the agency held Yuri Nosenko in isolation in the bare vault and abused him with inadequate food and mental harassment.

"The interrogation was designed to break him, get him to confess he was a KGB disinformation agent," said Hart.

Representative Harold Sawyer (Rep. Mich.) described Nosenko's cell as a "torture vault" and other committee members expressed disgust with what they said was a violation of human rights.

Hart agreed the operation was "an abomination," the worst handled and "most dismal" CIA operation he knows about during his 24 years with the agency.

Hart said the CIA was not interested in verifying information from the defector that Oswald had no KGB connection.

Oswald, who the official Warren commission concluded was the lone assassin of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, lived in the Soviet Union from 1959 until June 1962.

Hart said he now believes Nosenko told the truth as he knew it. But Hart maintained that Nosenko might not have known the truth, making his story useless.

When efforts to get a Nosenko confession failed, Hart testified, a CIA official in charge of the operation wrote a memorandum to himself listing options including:

—"Liquidate the man."

—"Render him incapable of telling a coherent story (special dose of drug, etc.) Possible aim commitment to looney bin."

—"Commitment to looney bin without making him nuts."

Hart said the same official, who was deputy director of the CIA's Soviet branch, earlier wrote a memo saying the purpose of lie detector tests was not to get the truth but to get details for possibly fabricating a confession.

FBI Agent Indicted For Bribe

WASHINGTON (AP) — An FBI agent accused of lying about an alleged bribe from a reputed underworld figure has become the first active agent in the bureau's history to be indicted on criminal charges.

Joseph Stabile, 50, who has been with the FBI since 1962, was indicted Friday by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Stabile, a special agent in the FBI's Queens, N.Y., office, is accused of sharing a $15,000 payoff with a former New York City police detective and of lying to another grand jury investigating organized crime gambling activities.

Stabile has been suspended and FBI Director William Webster said he will take further disciplinary action if appropriate.

The only previous case of criminal charges against an FBI field agent involved John Kearney, a former agent in New York City who was indicted in connection with alleged break-ins by the FBI against the radical Weather Underground in the early 1970s.

The indictment against Kearney was dismissed in April when three former FBI officials were charged with authorizing the alleged illegal surveillance.

PLANE DOWN

PORTAGE, Alaska (AP) — A single-engine float plane believed to have been carrying six persons crashed in a lake near Portage, about 80 kilometres southeast of Anchorage, an Elmendorf Rescue Co-ordination Centre spokesman said Friday.

Rescuers reported they had found the plane wreckage in Ceem Lake. There were no signs of survivors, they said.

Mormon women to hear Prophet speak

Victoria women of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will gather in the chapel, 2990 Quadra, at 6 p.m. today.

For the first time in the history of the church the Prophet will address hundreds of thousands of Mormon women throughout the English-speaking world in a live broadcast from the Salt Lake City Tabernacle.

The 83-year old leader of the world's four million Mormons will speak over a special closed circuit audio line to hundreds of individual gatherings in LDS meetinghouses and other locations in the U.S., Canada, Great Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

Joining President Spencer W. Kimball as speakers will be three outstanding leaders of women's activities in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. They are:

Barbara B. Smith, president of the Relief Society, 1.4 million member women's organization of the Church;

Elaine A. Cannon, new president of the Young Women of the Church, worldwide activities and services organization for more than 265,000 girls, ages 12-18;

Ruth H. Funk, who was recently released as president of the Young Women.

The addresses will be translated into other major languages, and cassette tape recordings of the translations will be mailed immediately to church leaders in non-English speaking parts of the world.

All Latter-day Saint women 12 years of age and older will be invited to attend the special meeting which is sponsored by the First Presidency, the chief governing body of the church.

The worldwide meeting will be similar in nature to the semi-annual Mormon priesthood conferences in the Tabernacle for men and young boys in the church. The priesthood gatherings are also disseminated around the globe via a closed circuit broadcast.

Music for the broadcast will be provided by the combined women's choruses (some 400 singers) of the world famous Mormon Tabernacle Choir and the Mormon Youth Symphony.

Presiding at the Victoria meeting will be Ruby Harrington, president of the Relief Society in the Victoria Stake and Katie McCue, president of the Young Womens organization.

Perspectives

By Rev. J. A. Davidson

Wisdom has many dimensions: as the Old Testament book, Proverbs, tells us, "Wisdom hath builded her house, she hath hewn out her seven pillars." Wisdom is not simply a matter of intelligence, of mere cleverness. You can have a frightfully high IQ and yet not come to wisdom. Wisdom is not so much a matter of your intelligence as a matter of what you do with it.

Capacity to learn is as important as intelligence in the quest for wisdom. And this is not simply a capacity to take instruction and to pass examinations although such things are not to be despised as agents of wisdom.

A. N. Whitehead, one of the great philosophers of this century, in his book, The Aims of Education, wrote this: "A merely well-informed man is the most useless bore on God's earth." Then he added, "Wisdom is the way in which knowlege is held. It concerns the handling of knowledge, its selection for the determination of relevant issues, its employment to add value to our immediate experience."

It is possible to pass examinations and obtain certificates and degrees and still miss wisdom although what you make of your opportunities for such things will have much to do with your achieving of wisdom. Stephen Leacock said, "An education; when it is all written out on foolscap, covers nearly 10 sheets." Leacock offered a valid hint there: much of the real value of your education is to be found in what remains after you have forgotten most of what you deliberately set out to learn.

Some persons seem naturally endowed with a tendency to wisdom. But most of us have to struggle for it. Wisdom, generally, does not just happen to a person; it comes only with time and patience and hard work.

In any education that is to count there is an inescapable element of sheer dogged grinding. If you wish to advance from milk to meat you must be willing to chew gristle. And you must not expect to be spoon-fed: spoon-feeding in education may have some usefulness with children, but it has little value beyond childhood. The English novelist E. M. Forster put it in this way: "Spoon-feeding in the long run teaches us nothing but the shape of the spoon."

A key to wisdom is that old-fashioned virtue, humility. Not the kind of humility that grovels in self-deprecation and whines in morbid self-criticism, but the kind that consists in honesty about oneself, in honest acceptance of one's limitations and one's ignorance. Humility has much to do with growth into wisdom. Claude Bernard, a great French medical scientist of the 19th century, gave this warning: "It is what we think we know that prevents us from learning."

Here is an ancient prayer which, if you make it your own, can help you on the way to wisdom:

"O God of Truth, deliver us
From cowardice that shrinks from new truth.
From laziness that is content with half-truths.
From arrogance that thinks it knows all truth."

Local artists behind camp music school

A new Sunday afternoon concert series, called Interlude, will start Sunday at 3:30 p.m. at Central Baptist Church, 833 Pandora.

Appearing in the series will be a core of believing Christian professional musicians, all from the Victoria area, who will spearhead the establishment of a music camp for high school and junior high music students in the summer of 1979.

Admission is free, but a plate collection will be taken for the new music camp, which will open under the auspices of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship.

Central Baptist Church will sponsor the entire Interlude series of six concerts, all to be held in the church sanctuary.

Performances will feature classical and sacred compositions, and each concert will last an hour. Performers will present musical compositions along with a short, informal discussion of the relationship between musical art and the Christian faith, and how an individual can be both Christian and a classical musician.

TRIO OF Susan Eddlemon, Larry Skaggs and Scott Eddlemon rehearse for first recital of series

Violinist Susan Eddlemon will begin the series Sunday with a program including works of Bach and Kodaly. She has made concert appearances in the U.S. and is assistant concert master of the Victoria Symphony and a member of the Victoria Conservatory faculty. She is enrolled in the Doctor of Musical Arts program at Juilliard School in New York City, where she graduated with a Master of Music degree.

Scheduled for appearance in the series Nov. 5 is a brass quintet with Anthony Hendricks and Wes Jansen, trumpets; Bill Brennan and Bruce Hoadley, trombones; and Eugene Dowling, tuba. Soprano Elizabeth Taylor will appear Feb. 25, followed by cellist Larry Skaggs on March 11. Clarinetist Steve Pierre will be featured in a program of chamber music April 1, and the final concert on May 6 will feature violinist Adele Pierre.

The proposed music camp will be open to students of any background or religious faith who wish to study on their respective instruments for their own advancement. The Interlude series will provide an excellent introduction to the counsellor-faculty of the camp.

Rector defends African grants

The recent controversy surrounding disbursement of grants to African black nationalists by the World Council of Churches will be the subject of sermons by rector Robert MacRae at the 9:30 and 11 a.m. Sunday services at St. John's Anglican Church.

The grants were made to the Zimbabwe Patriotic Front by the World Council of Churches Program to Combat Racism.

MacRae says the program was started to "commit Christians to end discrimination based on race, to end the exploitation of man by man—based on feelings of superiority in some people toward certain other people—and to help the churches in the understanding of their Christian mission.

"Quite simply stated racism is a sin because it denies that all people are made in God's image. Racism is a worldwide problem and is not confined to any one continent."

MacRae states that racism is often entrenched in social, economic and political structures and it smothers the development of those who suffer from it.

"It is only in the Gospel that we can find the liberating message that sets us free."

MacRae is a former staff member of the national office of the Anglican Church of Canada and has followed closely the justice and service actions of the World Council of Churches for a number of years.

He says the issues in southern Africa are highly complex and it is difficult for anyone to be sufficiently detached from specific aspects of the situation to be objective.

The grants of the WCC are intended as an expression of commitment to people who seek to eradicate the root causes of so much racial conflict in the world, he says.

"The grants are only for humanitarian activities such as social, health and education purposes as well as legal aid. There is not a shred of evidence that the grants have been abused in any way and to suggest that they have been used for military purposes is absurd.

"What the grants have done for many western Christians is to raise the level of consciousness of the violent expression of racism in many parts of the world."

MacRae says everyone is welcome to hear his sermon.

Battle of Britain observance set

Hundreds of present and former Britons are expected to attend the annual Battle of Britain service at Christ Church Anglican Cathedral on Sunday at 3 p.m. to commemorate the 37th anniversary of the defeat of the Luftwaffe in 1940.

The service will be conducted by Rev. Robert Crawley, a former RAF pilot, and the scripture reading will be by Lt-Gen. R.J. Lane, DSO, DFC and Bar, president of the Air Force Officers' Association of Vancouver Island.

The address will be by Canon Ronald Hanstock, former squadron leader padre, RCAF.

The service will be followed by another at the Cenotaph, with Hanstock giving the prayer. The Naden and 89th (Victoria) Air Cadet Squadron bands will be present.

The march past will be under the command of George Aitchison, vice-president of 800 (Pacific) Wing, RCAF. Taking the salute will be Lane and Jack Greenwood, 800 president.

First Christian Reformed Church welcomed its second pastor Thursday, when the Rev. Dan Tigchelaar was installed into the ministry, in a service conducted by Rev. Peter DeBruyne, the minister for the past seven years.

Tigchelaar, who will preach his inaugural sermon Sunday at 10:30 a.m., comes to Victoria from Pembroke, Ont., where he had been serving since 1973. He is a graduate of Calvin College and Seminary, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Tigchelaar

The congregation decided earlier this year that because of the increasing demands of the ministry, a second pastor was needed, with the ultimate object formation of a second congregation.

Tigchelaar and his family live at 4016 McLellan.

The Pro-Cathedral of the Assumption Parish in North Bay, Ont., is celebrating the 75th anniversary of its founding, and would like to hear from all former members of the parish.

The church is compiling a mailing list of people who were at one time members of the parish in order to inform them of upcoming parish anniversary events, and asks that they send their names and address to the church: Pro-Cathedral of the Assumption, 480 McIntyre Street West, Box 510, North Bay, Ont., P1B 2Z4.

The University Way UCW unit will hold a secret auction and donation dessert party at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 23, at the Fellowship Harbor Hall, 932 Balmoral. Lawrence Moon will be the auctioneer.

There will be a workshop on the Canada-China program from 2-7 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 24, in the lounge of First United Church.

Theme of the workshop is Search for Community—China today. Leader is Dr. Ray Whitehead, Director of the Canada-China program for the Canadian Council of Churches.

Cathedral begins triduum today

A triduum will begin at the 5 p.m. vigil mass today in St. Andrew's Cathedral, 740 View Street. Preacher is Rev. Vincent J. Sampietro, a member of the Paulist Fathers from Portland, Ore.

Triduum is the religious term describing three days of special services in honor of the Mother of Christ. This evening at the vigil mass and on Sunday at all the masses, Father Sampietro will introduce the triduum and strike the special theme of the following three days.

On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the speaker will preach a short homily during the 8 a.m. and 12:10 p.m. masses. In the evening, at 7:30 p.m., he will conduct the regular triduum service consisting of prayers, sermon and benediction of the blessed sacrament.

The missionary will be present for the sacrament of reconciliation before and after each of the daily services and at any time on request.

Because of the close association of the Mother of Christ with her Son in the life of the Christian, it is the aim of the speaker to encourage love for Mary as a means to a more intimate union with Jesus Christ. Titles of the topics are:

Today and Sunday—To know Christ Jesus.

Monday—Why devotion to Mary?

Tuesday—Mary and the role of woman today.

Wednesday—The Mother of Christ, hope for our times.

Sampietro has been engaged in the preaching apostolate throughout northwestern Canada and the U.S. for the past 26-years and has conducted parish renewals, missions and retreats in many of the Catholic parishes in B.C.

Catholics aid flood victims

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace has responded to a request from Caritas International by sending $50,000 in emergency relief funds for victims of flooding in India's northern states.

The money will be used to purchase blankets, clothing, temporary shelters and medicines, which are difficult to acquire in the area.

Revelation day set for Empress

George Vandeman will preach in a Revelation Seminar Sept. 30 in the Empress hotel. The all-day session will be open to the public and will include a Bible-marking course and a full-course vegetarian meal served in the Empress dining room.

Vandeman has been seen on the It Is Written television program for 22 years. The show is seen on 117 stations, 23 of them in Canada, 60 in the U.S. and 24 in Australia, Bermuda and the Caribbean. Many of his scripts have been translated into French by George Herman, who does the same program, called Il Est Ecrit, in Quebec.

The program has aired in B.C. for several years and enjoys a large audience during its Sunday telecasts.

Vandeman is also an author, having written Planet in Rebellion, A Day to Remember and Psychic Roulette among other titles.

Revelation seminars were launched by Vandeman and evangelist George Knowles in 1975. More than 180 seminars attended by 160,000 people have been conducted. Vandeman's visit to Victoria is part of his fall itinerary of seminars.

The seminar should be of special interest to Bible students, people wishing to learn how to follow a theme in Bible study and how to use a cross-reference method of study.

Phone 721-3739 for further information or to pre-register.

Movie will tell story of hiding

Corrie: Behind the Scenes With the Hiding Place, a full-length color movie, will be shown at Oldfield Road Gospel Chapel, 5506 Oldfield, on Sunday, Sept. 24 at 7 p.m.

The Hiding Place, a true story filmed in Holland and other European locations, is based on the experiences of Corrie ten Boom, who, with her father, sister, and brother, provided refuge for countless Jewish families. A secret room was constructed in their home as a hiding place for use during Gestapo raids. The ten Boom's activities were discovered, and they were sent to prisons and concentration camps.

Corrie was produced to give people who have seen The Hiding Place or read her many best-selling books an opportunity to hear her share many of her memories about her life in Holland, her family and her lifetime of service to others.

The pastor of Oldfield Road Chapel, Rev. Ken Finstad, said admission was free and families were welcome.

CHURCH CHRONICLES

Registration is $2. There will be a display of literature and visual aids. For further information contact Rev. Geoff Smith, 598-6170.

Don't Touch That Dial, Blame Magnetics, Sun

By AB KENT
Times Staff

Topsy-turvy radio reception caused by solar radiation and earth magnetics is likely to be prevalent in North America for the next two or three years, predicts a Victoria astronomer.

Ernie Pfannenschmidt, a member of the National Research Council's Astrophysical Observatory, said solar aberrations occur in roughly 11-year cycles. The current cycle is expected to peak next year.

Transmissions by radio, long distance telephone, microwave and television communications, navigation and data processing systems are affected in varying ways by magnetic storms affecting the earth's magnetic field.

This in turn is believed to be related to unusual displays of northern lights.

Sun spots and solar flares also play a part in disrupting wireless communications. These are monitored closely by observatories with radio-telescope antennas in order to predict the effect of solar weather on earth. A warning service is co-ordinated by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration through its Boulder, Colo., observatory.

But earlier this month a surge of trouble with high frequency radio communication affected much of the U.S. without warning.

In Victoria, the observatory said a number of inquiries were received in early September from CB radio operators who were having trouble with reception and transmission.

"There's going to be quite a lot of this for the next two or three years," Pfannenschmidt said.

He said with the proliferation of more sophisticated and sensitive electronic equipment — at least a radio and TV in every home — any interruption of normal service is noticed immediately.

Most forms of electronic communications rely on energy transfer in the atmosphere, Pfannenschmidt said. This takes place in the high ionized layers which are also sensitive to radiation from the sun. When there are solar storms the effect can almost be measured in radio interference.

A solar flare is a brilliant jet from the sun's fiery surface that send showers of intense radiation toward earth.

They appear to be the cause of magnetic storms that affect the polar field and produce the colorful, glittering aurora borealis and play havoc with communications.

Private and government broadcasters, the armed forces and others have been able to rely on NOAA's forecasts until now. This month they were taken by surprise because there was no solar flare prior to the disruption.

Chief astronomer Dr. Patrick McIntosh of NOAA, said his researchers are trying to find the reason for this storm and theorize it was brought about by a different kind of solar phenomenon — a filament.

He described a solar filament as looking like a dark thread visible by telescope on the surface of the sun. Up to now, they have not been considered of importance to earth.

The worst part of the recent storm was just four days after the appearance of a solar filament.

"And four days is just the time the solar wind would take to carry the charged particles to us that cause magnetic storms," McIntosh said.

FREEDOM SOUGHT

LONDON (Reuter) — The British associated state of St. Vincent in the Caribbean will seek its independence at a constitutional conference to open here Monday, the foreign office announced Friday.

St. Vincent, with a population of about 100,000, has had associated statehood — internal self-government with Britain responsible for defence and external affairs — since October, 1969.

The conference will be presided over by the foreign office's minister of state, Ted Rowlands.

The St. Vincent Labor government delegation will be led by Premier Robert Cato.

N.W.T. TB Outbreak

OTTAWA (CP) — An outbreak of tuberculosis has struck the tiny community of Watson Lake, N.W.T., about 160 kilometres east of Whitehorse.

"Between 30 and 40 cases are being investigated," Rene Mercier, a federal health department spokesman said Friday. "But it's impossible to determine at this time why it did happen and how long the cases have gone undetected."

However, some news reports later indicated that only 15 persons may have been affected by the outbreak which they said may have begun a week ago.

The department had no indication about the severity of the lung disease cases but Mercier said there were adequate medical personnel to handle the problem.

He said the department had abandoned yearly x-ray examinations several years ago in favor of periodic and "more effective skin sensitivity and spitting tests."

"The x-rays were wasteful and dangerous" Mercier said.

Nurses were advised to administer the new tests whenever they thought the need arose, he added.

Courts Won't Block LRB

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board made it clear Friday that the courts may not be used to keep the board out of a labor dispute.

An LRB panel decided that it will deal with a request from the Hospital Employees Union (HEU) although the employer, Medical Associate Clinic of Nelson, B.C., started court proceedings to prohibit the LRB from hearing the union's application.

After the union asked the board to decide whether the Essential Services Dispute Act is applicable to this labor dispute, the employer went to courts.

A three-man panel, headed by chairman Don Munroe, decided that "the mere filing of a petition under the Judicial Review Procedure Act does not operate to deprive the board of its jurisdiction, either permanently or temporarily."

A hearing to decide if the dispute comes under the Essential Services Dispute Act now will be held at the earliest possible time.

A major factor in the LRB decision was the clinic's request that the court hearing take place Nov. 6, more than three months after the proceedings were started.

The panel said it could not accept the employer's contention the "this is not a case that requires expeditious treatment." That submission ignores the history of the case, it said.

The HEU is hoping to have the Nelson clinic dispute go to binding arbitration under the essential services legislation. The non- professional workers at the clinic have been trying to get a first contract for 21 months.

The Industrial Woodworkers of America was certified to represent them in December, 1976. After the IWA failed to win a contract, They joined HEU in January, 1978.

Fire Curtis: Barber

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber has called for the dismissal of Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis as the minister responsible for transit.

"We have seen service cutbacks and fare increases for the last three years," Barber said in a news release.

"Last month Hydro announced a second fare increase of about 40 per cent and Curtis claimed he knew nothing about it."

He said last week Hydro raised Sunday bus passes from 75 cents to $1.25 and "Curtis claimed he knew nothing about it."

"Hydro has broken another promise by cutting service on six major routes in Greater Vancouver. Without doubt, Curtis will claim he knew nothing about it."

Barber said that if Curtis does not know about the withdrawal of services, he should not be the minister responsible for transit.

"The premier should consider replacing him as transit minister with someone decisive and strong-willed enough to run transit properly and control Hydro."

Curtis said Thursday Hydro should administer transit on a lame-duck basis until it is taken over by the Urban Transit Authority next year. Earlier he accused Hydro of acting like a banana-republic dictatorship, remarks which were praised by Sierra Club spokesman Bob Nixon.

Nixon said that without forceful legislative control, B.C. Hydro will pursue self-serving, grandiose and financially-irresponsible schemes which will eventually bankrupt the province.

THEFT CHARGE

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Beauchamp, 24, a building manager employed by the Quebec ministry of cultural affairs, was charged Thursday with stealing $3,150-worth of furniture from the ministry's Montreal-office by having it sent to his home instead of to a government warehouse. A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 2.

Gibson Bowing Out As Liberal Leader

sideration to the seeking of a national office . . . but the choice will depend on the stance of the national government."

Gibson says if the federal Liberals exhibit a flexibility and willingness to institute the kinds of reforms he has been seeking for a number of years, he will be a candidate.

But if that flexibility is missing he will seek other ways to promote his reforms — maybe even end up fighting for improvements through some sort of citizen's movement for governmental reform.

Gibson said he wants:

—Greater control over the cabinet and bureaucracy to the elected representatives;

—Allowing voters to demand a referendum on an issue through petitions;

—Freedom of information guarantees to help keep the government in check.

Gibson admits there have been some frustrations, and it is true he's seen some of the worst times in the fortunes of the Liberal party provincially.

A former executive assistant to Prime Minister Trudeau, Gibson won a provincial seat in a February, 1974 byelection in the riding he still represents.

His victory swelled the Liberal party ranks to five: Pat McGeer, Garde Garde, Allan Williams and leader David Anderson.

But the dream of a revitalized Liberal party died when internal squabbles over the leadership combined with tantalizing offers from then-Opposition leader Bill Bennett.

On May 9, 1975, Allan Williams and Pat McGeer quit the party for the Socreds and a few days later they were joined by Garde Gardom.

Anderson stepped down as leader in September and Gibson was chosen to lead the party into the next election.

It came Dec. 11 that year and Anderson lost, leaving Gibson the lone Liberal MLA.

When the Conservative leader Scott Wallace quit late last year, Gibson offered this comment:

"I understand his reasons for leaving after almost 10 years of service. The frustrations of being a single MLA are immense and the sacrifices are beyond what is proper to ask over such a length of time."

Asked Friday if this statement now applies to him, Gibson admitted there have been frustrations and a lot of hard work.

"But there was a lot of fun and a lot of rewards too," he said.

"I'm going to miss it. There are a lot of good characters around the place."

GUN LAW TO TRIM DEALERS?

Inspections are scheduled to begin in mid-October.

After Jan. 1 no dealer will be able to sell any type of firearm or ammunition without having a licence. Dealers who do may face a hefty fine and up to five years in prison.

The regulations will also require purchasers of weapons to obtain a $10 firearms acquisition certificate from police.

Newson compares the certificate to a driver's licence. It's good for five years and will allow the individual to purchase as many guns as he desires in that period.

Individuals selling guns through private sales will not need a licence, but will be required to see the buyers acquisition certificate.

Only handguns and restricted rifles such as semi-automatics, carbines, and those that fire centre-fire ammunition will have to be registered. Handguns have had to be registered in Canada since 1934.

All other rifles are exempt from registration.

Newson said certificates will only be issued to persons over the age of 18. Applications may be refused if the person has been convicted of a violent criminal offence within five years, convicted of any firearms related offence, has been treated for a mental disorder where the disorder is associated with violence or has a history of violent behavior even though no charge has ever been laid.

There is a provision for appeal to the court, but the magistrate has only two choices — he can either order the police to give the person a licence or he can prohibit the person from possessing any weapons. In the latter case, if the man already owns weapons, he must turn them in to the court for safekeeping.

Second Plane Down?

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Joshu Nkomo's black nationalist guerrillas said Friday they shot down a Rhodesian military plane earlier this week—the second Rhodesian aircraft the guerrillas say they downed this month.

Nkomo's Zambian-based Zimbabwe African People's Union, in a communique released here, said its guerrillas shot down a military plane carrying military supplies and personnel near Sipolilo, 140 kilometres north of Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, on Monday.

The guerrillas' communique gave no additional details.

In Salisbury, a Rhodesian military spokesman denied the report, saying "no plane has been shot down since the Viscount disaster" Sept. 3.

Nkomo has said his Communist-backed guerrillas used a heat-seeking missile to knock the Rhodesian Viscount civilian airliner out of the skies near the Zambian border.

The Salisbury government said 38 persons died in the crash of the Air Rhodesia plane and witnesses said black guerrillas shot 10 of the 18 survivors.

Nkomo denied his men shot crash survivors.

Friday's communique said 10 South African army officers were among the passengers on the Viscount.

"The South African army officers had been on military assignment in the Kariba-Victoria Falls area for two weeks," the communique said. "Upon learning of their fate, the South African government ordered flags to be flown at half mast."

The Rhodesian spokesman denied any South African soldiers were on the Viscount, saying the passenger manifest showed those aboard were mostly whites, including 11 children, returning from vacation at the resort town of Kariba.

Frank Wille . . . at work.

HE'S 'HIGH' ACHIEVER

Hike Up Mt. McKinley Frank's Ideal Vacation

Consider this:

You're a businessman who has worked so hard building up a successful chain of car dealerships and transmission shops and bringing up nine children that you've never taken a holiday in 20 years.

Feel tired already just at the thought of it? Yes, so do I.

Finally, you decide this will be the year you'll take a break and unwind. And so what do you do? Fly over and tour Europe? Lie on the sand in Hawaii?

No. You climb 20,320-foot Mt. McKinley, highest peak in North America!

That's what Frank Wille of Victoria did this summer at the age of 53 and he highly recommends it.

Born in Frankfurt, Germany, Frank came to Canada in 1948 and he admits that he and his wife Vera worked hard.

"When you have a lot of kids to raise and a substantial business to build up over the years, you don't think of holidays," he says with a grin. "We enjoyed all the work and we still do.

max low

"When the kids were small, I worked 16 or 17 hours a day every day except Christmas and New Year's Day," Frank explains. "But as they grew older I took one or two days off a week and we started climbing."

Soon it became a real family affair with all the Wille children — now aged between 11 and 29 — getting into the act.

"All our spare time was spent climbing," says Frank. "We scaled the Golden Hinde which is 7,800 feet and the highest peak on Vancouver Island and we climbed both Mt. Baker and Mt. Rainier, which is over 14,000 feet."

But they were only two-day stints and small stuff really compared with what Frank had in mind for his first big vacation. He would tackle Alaska's Mt. McKinley, one of the toughest climbs in the world.

Even the preparation for his "holiday" was gruelling.

"Every night for a year I did strenuous exercise — running, bike-riding, weightlifting — to get myself in shape and on Sundays we ran up 5,800-foot Mt. Arrowsmith," says Frank. "The first time that took us about 11 hours but after six trips up we cut it to seven hours."

Then came the climb itself and Frank admits it was a tough slog.

"The mental preparation is worse than getting ready physically," he explains. "You just have to make up your mind you're going to make it to the top."

Many don't.

All 16 in their expedition including two guides (Frank was the only Canadian and most of the others were French and American climbers) made it after being flown in to a glacier at the 7,000-foot level and climbing from there.

"But another party of Japanese climbing at the same time as us lost two at the top," says Frank. "Two died in falls and a third was flown out in a coma by helicopter. So you see it's no cakewalk!"

You practically climb the mountain twice, explains Frank, as you move some of your gear up part of the way and then climb down and take the rest up.

"All the time you are roped together and it's cold (30 below), icy and daylight all night long. You have to be roped because of the huge crevasses. On the way down we had two guys plunge into a crevasse but we were able to haul them out with the ropes."

It's a young man's game, Frank concedes, and he says McKinley is so tough that probably only a handful of men his age have ever made it.

"I like to think I'm setting an example to men my age who laze around with big stomachs," he says. "I'm in pretty good shape now and yet I was very badly wounded in the war. I was shot out of a tank and you wouldn't have given five cents for me then."

The three-week adventure cost Frank Wille roughly $2,500 but he doesn't mind that.

"I've never taken a holiday nor spent any money on myself so what the heck!" he laughs.

And the next time he feels he needs a break, will he become a tourist and take a restful holiday?

"No, I'll climb a mountain," he says, adding that he'd like to try Africa's famed Kilimanjaro.

"I get a boost out of it that enables me to continue my way of living, my hard work," he explains. "Climbing is 10 times tougher than being here," he says, glancing around his transmission shop, "but I enjoy it.

"You don't think that maybe when you're hanging out there on a rock face and the air is thin because there isn't much oxygen and every step brings pain . . . but looking back on it, it's fantastic."

First holiday in 20 years.

40 JOBS

Tool Plant Goes Ahead

Dorosz Industries Ltd. will begin manufacturing rock bits at the former Ste. Michelle winery on Quadra starting in January, company spokesman Nick Liberto announced today.

There will be about 40 workers hired by year's end with plans to expand to about 300 employees as orders increase.

A lease agreement was signed Friday with Oakcrest Park Estates, owners of the property.

The manufacturing plant will occupy 32,000 square feet of the building and Dorosz has an option for 24,000 square feet more.

"The building is ideal for our purposes," Liberto said. "If we had known about this earlier it would have saved us a lot of time."

Liberto said the company has orders for $2.5 million worth of bits per month, starting in January, but has been granted an extension to begin deliveries later in the year if necessary.

He said minor renovations will begin immediately and he will begin placing orders for equipment expected to cost between $700,000 and $1 million.

The equipment should be received and installed by the end of November.

He said about 40 people would be hired and it would take at least one month to train them. Drill bits would begin to be produced by February, hopefully, he said.

The company will make a new type of rock bit that does not use ball bearings and therefore does not wear out as quickly as standard bits.

The design has been patented by Dennis Dorosz, 35, of Victoria, a former employee of Hughes Tool Co., who has lived here for the past five years.

Others associated with Dorosz include Al Hildebrandt, another former Hughes employee, and Don Dobie Sr., an engineering consultant from Calgary.

Liberto is arranging financing.

He said the company decided against going to Prince Rupert on a $200,000 federal DREE grant or going to Washington State where investors had offered financial support.

Instrumental in keeping the plant in Victoria, he said, was industrial development commissioner Barry Mayhew, who carried out feasibility studies, and Victoria MLA Sam Bawlf, who helped locate a suitable site.

The company had sought land in a proposed industrial park at Interurban Road in Saanich (a project abandoned by Saanich council) not knowing the winery building was available.

"The winery building is exactly what we need and only minor renovations will be needed," Liberto said.

It's Business As Usual

Fire hazard notices posted in the lobby of the Empress Hotel Friday have had no effect on the hotel's business.

Assistant hotel manager Fred Borg said today he's received no major complaints.

Neither have there been any checkouts or cancellations because of the notices which state that a fire safety inspection of the building was made on June 28 and a number of deficiencies noted.

"Very few people read signs anyway," Borg said. "A couple of guests have looked at them and just walked away."

There were 320 guests registered in the 425-room hotel overnight.

Meanwhile a CP Hotels engineering official is expected to arrive this weekend to meet with city fire officials and review the problems.

City fire inspector Ray Best said on Friday the hotel's alarm system is obsolete and the hotel is deficient in heat and smoke detectors. There are not enough fire doors in hallways or stairwells and the doors to all rooms should be replaced to meet current safety standards, Best said.

BALDERSON

Hotel manager Ted Balderson first refused to comment saying the matter was in the hands of CP lawyers.

However in a written statement issued late Friday he said the hotel will conform to the requirements.

He said he had attempted to meet with Fire Chief Eric Simmons without success and hoped a meeting could be arranged to determine in detail the requirements so that work could begun.

Balderson was critical of the chief and said he regretted the action "particularly in the height of the tourist season when the hotel, filled to capacity, could not possibly undertake the alterations within a 60-day time limit."

"My major concern is the unwarranted bad publicity, particularly in the American tourist market.

"This is a shame in view of the outstanding efforts of our provincial government, the Greater Victoria Visitors Information Centre, ourselves and others to attract tourists to this world-renowned area."

The Empress was one of seven hotels and 12 apartments warned earlier this year to upgrade fire safety features.

Under the bylaw owners of buildings have 60 days following inspection to correct the deficiencies or be exposed by way of a posted fire inspection notice.

Land Removal Could Hit Fish

Environmentalists said today they fear the removal from the Agricultural Land Reserve of two parcels of land adjacent to Demaniel Creek in Sooke.

They warn the removal may have long range detrimental effects on the the fisheries potential of the important Sooke salmon river.

The two parcels, along with several several other holdings in Sooke, have been designated for removal from the ALR following a soil study to determine their suitability as farmland.

The two parcels in the creek area to be taken out of the ALR have been found totally inadequate for agriculture.

The largest parcel is situated near the mouth of the creek and the other is on its upper reaches.

Environmentalists fear that once the parcels are out of the ALR, there may be pressures for development.

If this occurred, they say, it would mark the start of the creek's deterioration as as a salmon producer.

A public hearing will be held at the Sooke Community hall towards the end of October to review properties to be taken out or included in the ALR.

Commission chairman Garry Runka said under the ALR act now, the commission can do nothing to protect the fisheries resources of streams and rivers of the province.

"We can only deal with agricultural lands," he said.

Last September the Social Credit government deleted from the ALR act the commission's power to acquire land for greenbelts, land banks and recreation.

Howard English, a member of the advisory committee to the International Salmon Commission, said it was a big mistake to weaken the jurisdiction of the commission.

"There should be laws for the protection of food producing rivers, the same as there are for agriculture," he said.

MLA Predicts Year's Delay For Helmcken

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber has charged that policy and committee changes ordered by Health Minister Bob McClelland will delay the Helmcken Road hospital by a year and add $4 million to its cost.

He said ground breaking was expected in April of this year but now it looks like this work will not start before January.

An additional problem, Barber said, was McClelland's decision Aug. 29 to dismiss a Vancouver firm, Unecon Partnership, as project manager for the hospital.

Barber said the hospital now is without a project manager.

Meanwhile hospital officials will meet with McClelland Monday to express concerns about the delays in planning the hospital.

Alan Patterson, Victoria General Hospital Board chairman, said he will also ask the minister to define what powers — if any — local officials have in the planning process.

"If we have no authority, there is no point in our being there."

He said it appears the hospital board's function has been reduced to being a rubber stamp for government decisions on how hospital construction will proceed.

He said he is concerned about two things: delays in getting construction started and the disbanding of a committee set up to plan the project.

The committee was subsequently restructured with new personnel.

The committee had consisted of Gerry Fisher, manager of the provincial government's hospital construction division, Murray Halkett of the regional hospital planning commission and Garth Gloeckler of Victoria General.

McClelland disbanded the committee over the summer, replacing Fisher with Vancouver contractor John Bell and removing both Halkett and Gloeckler.

In addition, the hospital board had understood the government would accept fast-track design at Helmcken, allowing construction to begin on one phase while planning continued on secondary phases.

However, one year after it was firmly proposed by the government, McClelland in May, 1978, rejected the idea and said all planning would have to be completed before construction could begin.

Patterson said he hopes McClelland will be able to explain the changes at Monday's meeting.

VCS Gets Brand-New Look

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victorian Celebrations Society has voted to disband its executive structure and replace it with widely-based representation from the community in hopes of revitalizing the organization, soothing over a lot of hurt feelings and erasing a $7,500 debt.

A five-member working committee will be elected Oct. 4 but policy making will be carried out by an 18-member board of governors, 15 of whom will be appointed.

The board is a community-wide attempt to bring some order to an organization which has been under fire for refusing to co-operate with other Victoria groups in the tourist promotion field.

The VCS has agreed to have the following organizations represented on the board of governors: Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Visitors Information Centre, Downtown Business Association, Junior Chamber of Commerce, a representative from the armed forces plus city council representatives from Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

The Visitors Information Centre and chamber will have two directors each while all other organizations will have one.

The board will also consist of a full-time manager, to be hired after the Oct.4 meeting, plus the new president, vice president and past president.

VCS director Murray Gammon, who along with chamber and VIC officials helped to organize the new structure, said he is optimistic the fortunes of the Victorian Celebrations Society would improve after the Oct. 4 meeting.

"There is no question we had to do something and I think we have taken the proper first step. Things should get better now."

The Victorian Celebrations Society organizes the Victorian Days events in May but has not handled festivals occurring in the other 11 months.

Officials of the VIC and chamber had expressed concern because the VCS was the only organization set up to deal with celebrations and yet confined its activities to the single week, leaving a 51-week void.

Concern reached a head early this year when the chamber began planning a Seattle tourist blitz with the aid of other local groups and the provincial government and then learned the Victorian Celebrations Society had also planned a Seattle blitz without informing other organizations.

The chamber tourist and convention committee blasted the Victorian Celebrations Society for creating confusion in Seattle about who was representing Victoria.

The resulting debate led to the present reformation of the VCS.

VCS secretary Gerry Parker said she is delighted by the restructuring of the organization.

"A lot of well-meaning people have been putting a great deal of effort into this organization but we need to bring in people with a good business sense," she said.

"Our deficit this year was $7,500. We brought in budgets but the revenue was never enough to meet our expenses. I am confident things will improve now."

Last act of the outgoing executive will be a casino and bingo night Saturday, Sept. 30, at Cedar Hill Community Hall.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president John Ansell said the new structure of the VCS will permit the formation of a much-needed Super Committee in Victoria to co-ordinate all efforts related to the tourist industry.

He said co-ordination of effort had not been possible as long as one group, the Victorian Celebrations Society, went its own way.

VIC president Ted Balderson had also singled out the VCS as a stumbling block to community co-operation.

HLRA GIVEN RAP BY VGH

The Victoria General Hospital board doesn't think much of the performance of the Health Labor Relation Association.

The association is the bargaining body for all B.C. Hospitals.

The VGH board has gone on record with its disenchantment by passing a a motion stating its dissatisfaction with the general performance to date of the HLRA and specifically with the way it handled the Hope arbitration award.

The award to the Hospital Employees Union, made under the terms of the Essential Services Act by Allan Hope, a Prince George lawyer, was challenged in court by the HLRA.

The move was criticised by both the union and the provincial government.

"Regardless of whether they should have appealed the award or not, they handled it poorly," said hospital trustee Cliff Horwood.

"Surely they could have done it in a manner that wouldn't make everyone irate."

Trustee Carol Pickup said she was disturbed by the general aura that surrounded a recent HLRA annual convention.

She said it included among other things, Pinkerton guards at the door.

Mike O'Brien, a member of the HLRA board, said the organization is already considering a re-assessment of its directions and purposes.

He asked the VGH board to make positive suggestions for such changes to the HLRA.

Edmonton Teachers Vote on 'Final Offer'

EDMONTON (CP) — Negotiators for the city's 4,000 striking teachers say they will recommend rejection of the public school board's "final" contract offer when the proposal is put to a vote by the teachers Sunday.

The proposal, the second such package termed a final offer by the board in the week-long dispute, was announced at a news conference Friday after 48 hours of unsuccessful mediation.

The strike, which started Sept. 7, is the first by Edmonton public school teachers since 1921. About 64,000 students are affected. The separate school board has continued with normal classes throughout the strike.

Nick Leskiw, a negotiator with the Alberta Teachers' Association which represents the striking teachers, called the latest offer "totally inadequate."

The teachers, saying they are ready to accept the board's previous offer of a 7.4-per-cent salary increase, have insisted split-class teaching systems be eliminated and the number of teachers in proportion to students be increased.

Spokesmen for the teachers say the quality of education in Edmonton's public system has suffered because in many cases one teacher is forced to supervise two classes in the same room.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING
On Amendments to the Zoning By-Law

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons who deem their interest in property affected by the following proposed By-laws will be afforded an opportunity to be heard before the Municipal Council on the matters contained therein at a Public Hearing to be held in the Council Chamber, Municipal Hall, Oak Bay, B.C., on Monday, September 25, 1978 at 7:30 p.m.

(a) By-law No. 3264 "Eighteenth Zoning By-law Amendment By-law, 1978"

Amends the "Zoning By-law, 1974," being By-law No. 3066 by defining Intermediate Care Facilities as set out in the Community Care Facilities Licencing Act. This By-law also allows Personal Care and Intermediate Care Facilities in the East Wing only of Oak Bay Manor and the number of persons for whom such facilities are provided at any one time shall not exceed one hundred fifty (150).

(b) By-law No. 3265 "Nineteenth Zoning By-law Amendment By-law, 1978"

Amends the "Zoning By-law, 1974," being By-law No. 3066, by revising the regulations for Single Family Residence Zones to include the following subclause:

7(11)(e) Where the locality of property is material, any object to which this By-law refers that is located partly on one lot and partly on any other shall be deemed to be located on each lot, and where its location is an offence, that offence shall be deemed to be committed on each lot.

Copies of the proposed By-laws may be inspected at the Municipal Hall, Oak Bay, B.C., where they have been posted on the Notice Boards.

J. R. Craven,
Municipal Clerk.

Dome Drilling Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — Dome Petroleum Ltd., rumored to have struck promising new finds of oil and natural gas in the North, has been granted a 10-day extension on its government-imposed exploration season.

The Indian and northern affairs department said late Friday it has agreed to let the company continue drilling in the ice-filled waters of the Beaufort Sea until Oct. 5.

As well, the department says it will allow the company to carry out production testing on two discoveries after the Oct. 5 deadline if its testing program is approved by the minister.

That also will depend, the department says, on weather and ice conditions.

Troops Leaving Lebanon

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Barney Danson announced Friday the Canadian contingent to the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) will hand over its communications responsibilities to other UN personnel beginning the last week in September.

Danson said in a news release the withdrawal is in line with the government's stated intention to keep the force in Lebanon only until Oct. 1.

The 117-man signal unit was sent to Lebanon in mid-April for a short stint to give the UN time to organize replacements.

However, defence and external affairs department officials said Friday it is not yet clear where the replacement force will be drawn from.

The majority of the force, drawn mainly from the 1st Canadian Signal Regiment at Kingston, Ont., will be flown to Ottawa Sept. 6, the release said.

The government has been determined to avoid a repetition of the Cyprus experience. Canada originally agreed to join a UN force there for a short time in the mid-1960s but Canadian troops are still there.

The Canadian communications experts attached to UNIFIL are in short supply. The government has already said the armed forces cannot stretch its logistics group any further.

Some UN officials apparently harbored hopes Canada would agree to stay on until UNIFIL's mission is completed. But Ottawa made known its intention to withdraw the contingent some time ago.

UNIFIL was set up after Israel invaded Lebanon to wipe out Palestinian guerrilla bases there. It was established to oversee withdrawal of Israeli forces and to ensure a peaceful takeover of the region by Lebanese government forces.

Israeli forces have largely withdrawn but the Lebanese government is still not strong enough to control the region.

Gov't to Bury Job Stats?

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — The federal government is trying to put a halt to publication of job availability figures, Central Nova Conservative MP Elmer MacKay said here Friday.

MacKay also said at a news conference that attempts are being made to classify as "confidential" or "secret" internal memos within the federal department of employment and immigration.

He said the discrepancy between Statistics Canada's job availability figures, which last month were between 40,000 and 50,000, and national unemployment figures of 1.5 million were so embarrassing the government wanted to stop making the figures public.

MacKay said he has a copy of an interoffice memo from Harry J. Hodden, an assistant deputy minister in the employment department, which advised that internal correspondence within the department must be classified secret or confidential.

Lincoln Alexander, Conservative MP for Hamilton West, who appeared at the news conference with MacKay, said the public has the right to know what government is all about.

While there were some things that needed to be classified, most should not be secret.

MacKay said Canada has a "tame and timid media" compared to the United States and Britain. This was especially the case in Nova Scotia, he said.

He made the comment after a reporter asked him why he had told reporters earlier in the week about questions he had concerning Liberal party financing in Nova Scotia, instead of taking his concerns to the police.

Liberals Don't Want This Candidate

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Professor David Kwavnick has had strong representations made to him directly and by telephone by Bryce Mackasey, urging the Carleton University political science professor to withdraw from the Liberal nomination race in Ottawa-Centre constituency.

The professor said Friday he is frankly puzzled that Mackasey would be so determined to get him out of the running for the nomination. He said Mackasey's representations appeared to have the support of Senator Keith Davey, national Liberal campaign director and James Coutts, principal secretary to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

The Liberal nomination convention for the Oct. 16 by-election is scheduled for Tuesday.

Prof. Kwavnick said he attended the news conference Wednesday where Mackasey announced his bid to seek the nomination. It was held in the TV press room in the centre block of the parliament buildings. He was surprised to find Senator Davey also in attendance.

Afterwards the senator invited him up to the senator's office along with Mackasey.

"It was in the senator's office that Mackasey made his first approach to me to withdraw, obviously with the approval of the senator. But I declined," said the professor.

He said the second approach to him was made by Mackasey by telephone Thursday and when that too failed Mackasey, along with Senator Davey, went to see James Coutts, principal secretary to the prime minister. The professor subsequently got a call from Coutts and he said that Coutts had told him he was calling because the senator and Mackasey had been to see him about getting the professor to bow out of the race.

When Mackasey made the second approach to him by telephone Thursday the professor said: "He did everything to get me to withdraw. He wheedled, cajoled, pleaded with me and did everything but threaten me. He did not threaten, but he appeared determined to have me get out of the race.

"He sounded desperate. He even suggested I should withdraw and place Mackasey's name in nomination at the convention," said the professor in an interview.

"I declined and said I intended to seek the nomination. He urged me to back out in the best interests of the Liberal party. I suggested that the best man to be in a position to determine what was in the best interests of the party was the leader, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

"I told him that if he could get the leader to approach me and ask me to step down in the best interest of the party I would consider it."

The professor said he has not heard from the prime minister and does not expect to hear from him.

Dear Bernie:
It is my belief that the classified advertising which I use through the Victoria Press provides me with the greatest return for my advertising dollar. I view my classified advertising as a good investment rather than an expense. It is "the" method to use in putting one's stock before the public to arouse their interest and curiosity in the real estate marketplace.
Thank you Bernie for your assistance in making this year an outstanding success for me in real estate.

Keep AirCan, Nordair Split -Clark

WINNIPEG (CP) — Air Canada and Nordair, a regional airline, would remain as separate entities and face greater competition under a Progressive Conservative government, party Leader Joe Clark said Friday.

Clark told the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce that the Conservatives would overturn a Canadian transport commission decision allowing Air Canada to buy Nordair, a carrier operating in parts of Quebec, Ontario and the Northwest Territories.

Clark said rules protecting the national airline's dominant position on transcontinental routes would be changed. Air Canada would remain the government-owned carrier but it is "now a mature, profitable airline that can withstand competition," he said.

A Conservative government would also take steps to encourage growth of regional and third-level, or local, air carriers. And it would try to help Air Canada find business for the under-used maintenance hangar in Winnipeg built to fulfill Liberal campaign promises in 1974.

Clark's announcement of the new Conservative transport policy came after he set several conditions for Conservative co-operation in parliament in the coming months.

Unable To Reach Canadians

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — An official of a Canadian foundation that operates orphanages in Central America says the organization has been unable to reach two Canadian women who are in the guerrilla-besieged city of Esteli, Nicaragua.

Christine Stewart of the Help-Honduras Foundation said the organization has been unable to reach Liz Sved of Vancouver and Fleur Hackett of Sudbury, Ont., supervisors of an orphanage with 150 children, since the fighting began this week.

The foundation was formed after the Honduras flood in the early 1970s and moved into neighboring Nicaragua following an earthquake several years ago.

She said the supervisors might try to get the children to safety in Honduras.

$49,900 SUIT IN ABDUCTION

MONTREAL (CP) — A 22-year old truck driver lodged a $49,900 damage suit Thursday against the Montreal Urban Community for bullet wounds he suffered while being held hostage by a bank robber involved in a shootout with police in September, 1977.

In his Superior Court suit, Serge Seguin says he had stopped his employer's truck in a traffic tieup on a freeway when an armed man forced his way in and ordered him to lie on the floor.

The man drove off but was soon overtaken by pursuing municipal police.

The suit says Seguin's abductor fired shots, and when police opened the truck cab, the truck driver was unable to convince them he was only a hostage and not an accomplice.

Seguin alleges said he was shot several times by police and was incapacitated for an extended period.

The suit blames police for negligence and "want of reasonable care."

The bank robber, Richard Hamelin, had taken about $2,000 from a Royal Bank of Canada branch, commandeering Seguin's truck after abandoning a stolen car.

Hamelin was convicted on seven counts in connection with the incident, including forcible detention and car theft, and was sentenced to eight years in prison.

Kidnapping Trial Moved

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — The trial of Claude and Jeanne Valence, two of the four accused of kidnapping credit union employee Charles Marion for 82 days last year, has been moved from Sherbrooke to Montreal.

Superior Court Justice Carrier Fortin granted a request by the Crown attorney Friday for the transfer of the trial, which will begin Oct. 2.

Valence, 43, and his 42-year-old wife, both of Sherbrooke, are charged with conspiracy, kidnapping, forcible detention and extortion in the kidnapping of Marion.

Marion was allegedly kidnapped on Aug. 6 last year and held in an underground dugout until his family paid a ransom of $50,000.

The trial of the other three accused is still scheduled to take place in this town 145 kilometres east of Montreal.

Michel Devârenne, 36, of Sherbrooke, Rène Chalifoux, 56, of the Montreal suburb of Longueuil are also facing charges of conspiracy, kidnapping and forcible detention.

Louise Beaubien, 26, of Sherbrooke has been charged with complicity after the fact and illegal possession of firearms.

Meanwhile, Marion brought a civil action of $691,000 against the five accused for damages he suffered following his alleged kidnapping.

In his Quebec Superior Court action, Marion seeks $50,000 for payment of the ransom, $11,000 for loss of revenue, $30,000 for diverse expenses such as legal aid and security guards, $300,000 for loss of physical integrity and permanent incapacity, and $300,000 for physical and moral suffering and loss of enjoyment of life.

Marion had earlier brought defamation suits totalling $850,000 against Radio Canada and the editor of a Montreal tabloid.

P.E.I. GRITS PICK NEW LEADER

CHARLOTTETOWN — Finance Minister Bennett Campbell said today he has been elected interim leader of the Prince Edward Island Liberal party and premier.

The 35-year-old farmer and livestock dealer from Alberton, P.E.I. succeeds Alex Campbell, who resigned Tuesday.

A meeting of the Liberal Party executive met for less than an hour before giving the nod to the finance minister.

Hopeful New Asthma Drug Tested

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — University of Toronto researchers are testing a new drug for asthma which, to date, has none of the side effects common to other asthmatic drugs.

Dr. A. S. Rebuck, a specialist in respiratory diseases and medical professor at University of Toronto, said Friday that the drug, known as SCH-100, has been undergoing clinical tests for the last three years.

"It is very effective in patients with emotional-stress asthma and it doesn't get into the brain and has no effect on the brain," he said in an interview.

He said the drug has been tested on about 40 asthma patients over the age of 15.

Asthma is a respiratory disease characterized by wheezing and breathing difficulties. Types of asthma include allergic, exercise-related, emotion stress, sleep-related and drug-induced.

Dr. Rebuck, also associate director of the respiratory-care unit at Toronto General Hospital, spoke earlier to members of the College of Family Physicians of Canada about treatment for respiratory diseases.

Unlike other asthmatic drugs currently on the market, SCH-100 blocks impulses travelling along a nerve, the vagus nerve, to the lungs, he said.

"It has certain advantages over other asthmatic drugs. It causes no agitation because it doesn't affect the sympathetic nervous system."

The sympathetic nervous system travels outside the brain and segretes chemicals which are responsible for automatic body functions and control blood pressure and heart rate.

With other asthmatic drugs, the heart rate and blood pressure is generally affected, Dr. Rebuck explained.

While SCH-100 is not as powerful as other asthmatic drugs, it is also being used with the other drugs.

Dr. Rebuck said the most effective drug developed for asthma relief was known as atropin, but it is no longer used because of such side effects as blurred vision, rapid pulse rate and bladder changes.

NIGER ECONOMY CHANGES

From Peanuts To Rich Uranium

ARLIT, Niger (Reuter) — In the heart of the Sahara desert people and machines are toiling day and night to mine the precious uranium that is bringing new wealth to this land-locked African state.

Some $63.2 million poured into the state coffers from uranium sales last year, equal to more than one-third of the 1978 budget. This gave a timely boost to Niger's struggle to free itself from the whims of nature.

Still recovering from the drought that inflicted death or suffering on millions in the Saharan countries between 1968 and 1974, Niger, until recently, was high on the list of the world's poorest countries.

Then came uranium, gouged out from open-cast mines where the temperature rises to 122 degrees F. and processed in a factory built with materials transported by truck some 1,440 miles from Cotonou on the Gulf of Guinea.

Close to the mine and factory is the new town of Arlit, built to house 1,000 mine workers and now home for 13,000 people and still growing.

Almost midway between the Mediterranean and the Gulf of Guinea, the white houses, swimming pools and flowering shrubs stand out sharply against the desert.

Unlike most of the Sahara, there are no water shortages in Arlit, which is supplied from virtually inexhaustible underground pools.

Only one company, Somair (Societe des Mines de l'Air), is exploiting the uranium reserves in the sector.

Output last year reached almost 1,500 tons, compared with just over 400 tons in 1971, the first production year. It is expected to level off at about 2,300 tons a year from 1980.

The Niger government holds a 33-per-cent stake in Somair and has brought in partners to provide capital and expertise.

There are three French partners—Compagnie Generale des Matieres Nucleaires, Compagnie Pechiney Mokta and Compagnie Francaise des Mines d'Uranium—along with Urangesellschaft of West Germany and Italy's Agip Nucleaire.

Meanwhile, a second company, complete with power plant, processing factory and company town, is almost ready to begin mining its own sector of the same uranium field.

After nearly three years of preparation, Cominak, as the company is known, will begin mining uranium in the next few weeks and its processing factory is due to start around July this year.

Output is expected to rise to 2,200 tons a year from 1980, from around 600 tons this year, bringing Niger's total output for that year to 4,500 tons or about eight per cent of estimated world production, according to projections of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

Uranium exports last year earned $124.2 million, 74 per cent of the country's exports.

By 1984, with four mines in operation, the government expects uranium to account for a massive 97 per cent of over-all exports, barring a sizable fall in world uranium prices.

This represents a dramatic turn-around from the 1960s when peanuts, hard hit since then by drought and disease, accounted for some 70 per cent of Niger's foreign-currency earnings

Death Disclosed

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Phillip Johnston, the man who suggested using the Navajo language, a language the Japanese were unable to decipher, for secret U.S. communications in the Second World War, died in the Veteran Administration hospital in San Diego, it was disclosed Thursday. Johnston, 85, received a special congressional medal in 1969 for his suggestion and related work.

52 OF 54 AFRICAN NATIONS NEED HELP

ROME (AP) — Fifty-two of the 54 countries in Africa are in critical need of foreign help to boost domestic food production, a study by the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization and the Economic Commission for Africa shows.

The report, released Thursday, surveyed the 52 so-called developing nations of African. South Africa and Rhodesia were not included in the survey. They are not members of the UN agency and are not considered developing countries.

The report expressed hope the other 52 nations could reach a 94-per-cent level of self-sufficiency in food production by 1985 and sustain that level until 1990.

It found food production increased 1.3 per cent between 1970 and 1977, although the population grew at 2.6 per cent in the same period. As a result the per capita annual rate of increase dropped to minus 1.4 per cent in the 1970s from 0.3 per cent during the 1960's.

The lag in domestic food production led to reduced nutritional and dietary standards, continued reliance on international food aid and rising food imports to meet domestic needs, the investigators found.

The report attributed Africa's agricultural problems to various wars, severe drought, cattle disease, inadequate irrigation and shortages of livestock feed, compounded by economic problems.

To overcome the food shortage, the report calls for improvement of rain-irrigated agriculture, expansion of irrigation, more efficient technology on farms, increased fish and livestock production, elimination of cattle disease and expansion of crop areas.

Europe Soon to Get Aerial Light Show

LONDON (Reuter) — Later this month, weather permitting, a bright red man-made glow will briefly dominate the night skies of northern Europe.

This scientific fireworks display, as bright as the brightest northern lights, represents an effort by U.S. and European astronomers to plot the direction and intensity of the magnetic field lines surrounding the earth.

Dr. David Rees of University College, London, co-ordinator of the experiment in Britain, has been contacting the defence ministry, police and numerous British astronomers. — "The sorts of people concerned with UFO (unidentified flying object) reports."

He told an interviewer: "We are worried about the little old chap who looks out of his window at two o'clock in the morning and sees a red cloud spreading over the horizon."

Early on the morning of Sept. 18, the U.S. National Aeronautical and Space Administration (NASA) is scheduled to launch a Delta rocket carrying a weather satellite and about three kilograms of lithium, the backbone of the light experiment, dubbed Cameo.

The lithium will be released about 800 kilometres (500 miles) above Scandinavia, where the sun's heat will ionise the element's atoms — strip away electrons and make the atoms highly magnetic.

A European Space Agency (ESA) satellite, will make the plotting as exact as possible as the atoms stream around the earth.

The northern lights (Aurora Borealis), that magnificent display of red, green and yellow arcs and streamers often visible over the North Pole, is caused by high-speed particles from space playing over magnetic field lines.

But, scientifically speaking, these particles are strays. "You can't tell where they have been," Dr. Ress said.

In the Cameo experiment, it should be known exactly where the particles started from thus aiding the mapping.

Dr. Roes wanted volunteers at various locations on the ground to help with the plotting by photographing Cameo phenomenon. He notified the British Astronomical Association, expecting about 20 responses.

"I was staggered to get 200 people responding," he said. Most of these are in Britain but 20 to 30 are in Scandinavia, France and West Germany.

A key problem is that Dr. Rees and his volunteers will not know until the last moment when the lithium release will take place, since bad weather would spoil the whole experiment. It might be on, or any time after, the night of Sept. 19-20.

Thus Dr. Rees is arranging telephone links to alert his volunteers and appropriate authorities.

DANCING ALI OUTCLASSES SPINKS...

...AND PROVES THEY WERE WRONG

Not His Greatest, but Most Satisfying

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It wasn't Muhammad Ali's greatest fight. It wasn't even one of his best. But it meant more to him than any others because he proved them wrong.

They said he was too old to regain his title from Leon Spinks, and he showed he wasn't. They said he couldn't train, and he obviously did. They said he couldn't dance, and he danced until the very end.

"My greatest fight was against Joe Frazier in Manila," he would say in his dressing room. "But this was my most satisfying. It meant more to me."

All his professional ring career, dating back to 1960, Ali has been fighting something. He fought racists, he fought when they took his title away when he wouldn't enter the military. He fought George Foreman in Zaire under what appeared to be impossible odds.

Each time he won.

Always he has fought detractors, and this time he also was fighting a battle he knows he can't win—the one against time.

But for a fleeting hour in the Superdome on a sultry late-summer night, this man who lives under some special star even beat that.

This is how it must have felt to be Muhammad Ali on that night:

9 p.m., Mississippi River Time: The gloves are put on in the dressing room under a strict timetable. There is silence. Then comes the wedge of police leading him onto the floor of the cavernous building. There is a roar, then "Ali! Ali! Ali!" He has heard it in many nations. This could be the last time.

9:25 p.m.: He stands in his corner, his face frozen, his eyes set like those of a cornered cat. There is no shuffling, no mugging, no clowning as in the old days. Across the ring is Leon Spinks. But in Ali's mind is 18 years of professional fighting, and in his legs, 36 years of wear. He does not move at all, and the immobility gives away what is inside.

9:27 p.m.: The first bell. He lands a hard left to Spinks's jaw and Spinks retaliates with a right to the chin. They wrestle. Spinks laughs. Ali's face remains as stolid and determined as the face of a human being can get.

9:43 p.m.: The fight is fairly even but Ali is sticking and Spinks wrestles him into the ropes. The fifth round ends with the crowd again crying "Ali! Ali! Ali!" and referee Lucien Joubert whispers to the judges that he has taken the round away from Ali for holding around the neck. The crowd is not told. Neither is television. If Ali knows, it is not apparent. "Watch the uppercut," screams Bundini Brown, his ever-present handler and chief rooter.

9:59 p.m.: The ninth round is well under way and Ali knows he won the eighth. His confidence is growing. His jab is flicking, scoring. Spinks seems confused. Ali stays away and continues to dance and jab. Spinks again tries the right uppercut in close fighting, but Ali jerks his head away.

10:10 p.m.: Ali is sticking and landing hard rights. "Do I look like I'm washed up?" he would ask later. "I had you all set up ready for the kill. I made suckers of you all."

10:13 p.m.: "He's playing catch-up now," screams Bundini, in the 12th. Ali's 200 rounds of sparring (versus 50 for the first Spinks fight) are showing. Ali hurts Spinks with a flurry of rights and lefts, reminiscent of the old days when he would hit a man five times before the opponent could raise his gloves. "Ali does not look tired," a reporter in the second row says, almost incredulously. Later Ali would say, as if in retort, "I tricked all of you. I went up in the mountains and trained for three months before you knew about it. All of you bow down now and call me king."

10:16 p.m.: He does the Ali Shuffle and the crowd roars. It's his now, and he knows it. Spinks knows it. Bundini knows it and he beams. Angelo Dundee, Ali's trainer, knows it but keeps screaming directions. Spinks is desperate and Ali is dancing. "What do you think of this old man who danced out there?" he would ask later. "Ever see a 36-year-old man outlast a 25-year-old man like that?"

10:23 p.m.: It's the 15th round and everyone knows it's all but over. Spinks is trying desperately for a knockout—the only way he can win. Actor Hugh O'Brien, who has been crouching behind a post in a neutral corner, stands up, sweat streaming down his face, leading the crowd in another chorus of "Ali! Ali! Ali!"

10:26 p.m.: It is over. Chaos. The state troopers and city police literally are throwing photographers out of the ring. Spinks comes over and puts his arm around Ali. "I congratulated him. He's still my idol," Spinks would say.

10:45 p.m.: The decision has been announced. Ali is trying to fight through the crowd. A mob confronts him at the dressing room entrance, so Bundini puts on a robe and charges through as if he is the fighter. They mob Bundini. Ali sneaks through.

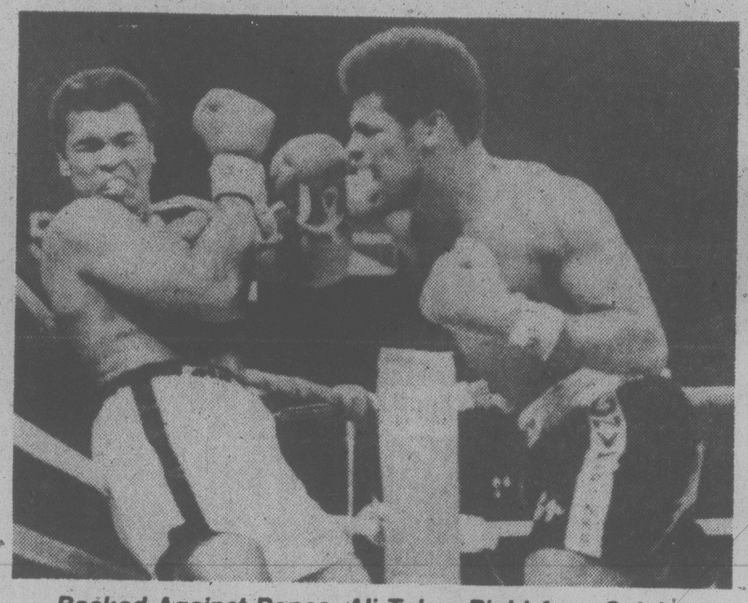
11:15 p.m.: "Thank God it's over. That's my last one. It's too good to give away so soon, but I don't think I'll ever fight again." He is sitting on a stool in his dressing room, His wife, Veronica, is there. So is Bundini, and Bundini is crying.

As the clock neared midnight he went to an interview room and regaled reporters, the love-hate press who has followed him from continent to continent. Maybe he'll retire in six months, in eight months. He wants to enjoy it. He earned it.

"I didn't show no fatigue," he says, and he finally believes it.

That was what it was all about. At 12:30 Ali leaves the Superdome in a limousine, heading for the 17th floor of a downtown hotel and a small, carefully-guarded victory celebration. It has been raining and it is muggy, and the king is back on his throne.

"I'm almost 37," he said.



Backed Against Ropes, Ali Takes Right from Spinks

Even with the Fenders, Roy Smith Class of Field

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

There's never been much doubt that Roy Smith is Victoria's best open-wheel race car driver. The argument starts when you add fenders and nominate him as the best stock car pilot.

Not that Smith is a dud as a stock man — there are few in that category to whom he takes back-seat billing — it's just that his superiority isn't as clear-cut as when he's behind the wheel of a sprint car or super modified.

Smith happened to be behind the wheel of a stock car Friday night, a 1978 Camaro in which he qualified for tonight's Canada 200 superstock race at Western Speedway, and he was clearly the class of the field.

He turned in the fastest qualifying time and in the bargain broke the track record for superstocks on three of the four laps he drove in time trials. His best clocking was 16.43 seconds, coming on his fourth qualifying circuit of the four-tenths-mile oval. His other record-shattering times were 16.48 on his second lap and 16.51 on his third.

Smith's only non-record clocking was a 16.81 on his first lap.

The former mark, 16.62, belonged to Earl Ross of Ailsa Craig, Ont., who set it in qualifying for last year's Canada 200.

Ross, back this year and driving Smith's hand-me-down 1976 Nova that owner Dick Midgley has overhauled with a more powerful engine, also broke the 17-second barrier Friday in 16.91.

In setting a track record for superstocks, Smith becomes a double entry in Western Speedway's record ledger. Two years ago he drove the Vantreight Daffodil Special through a 15.50-second lap that remains unsurpassed at the Langford oval.

Times like Smith's don't happen by accident, as any racing driver will tell you. In his case, 150 man-hours of preparation went into the car last week, a lot of it spent lengthening the wheelbase from 108 inches to 112, thus removing an extra 250 pounds of rear-end weight assigned by NASCAR to the shorter wheelbase cars this year.

Smith credits his crew of Dick Midgley, chassis man Russ Lejeune, Albert Smith, John Horn, Ernie Caverley and Jim Matthews for the success he enjoyed Friday before a crowd estimated at about 1,000.

As for tonight's 200-lap main event, Smith hopes to get in front early to take advantage of lap money and stay there through the 80-mile run. He plans to use hard component tires and hopes they'll last the route.

Fastest eight qualifiers Friday make the front of tonight's 24-car starting grid, in reverse order. That means Smith will be on the outside of row four when the green flag comes down. Beside him, inside, will be Victoria's Roy Haslam, second-fastest Friday in 16.73.

In the third row are Campbell River's George Stuart, last year's Canada 200 winner who timed in at 16.78, and Brian Green of Prince George in 16.79. The second row will have Don Dowdy of Yakima (16.84) and Earl Ross (16.91) while the front row goes to Ron Eaton of Tacoma (16.98) and Victoria's Joe Musfelt, who gets the pole with a 17.03.

Behind them, in straight-up order, are the first seven finishers in each of Friday's two 20-lap heat races. That brings the starting field to 22 with two more positions to be filled from tonight's consolation race that starts at 8.

The seven to qualify out of heat one Friday, in order of finish, were John Rothwell, New Westminster; Al Wade, Jordan River; Dave Dalby, Victoria; Lloyd Eby, Calgary; Jim Stratichuk, Surrey; Bob Bryson, Aberdeen, Wash., and Reg Kennedy, Surrey.

Qualifying out of the second heat were winner Barry Powers, Regina; Bob Fox, Bremerton, Wash.; Norm Ellefson, Spokane; Bill Hitchcox, Victoria; Marsh Mormyluk, St. Albert, Alta.; Mike Rollins, Tacoma, and Joe Sabatino, Prince George.

FIRST DEFEAT FOR GALINDEZ IN 42 FIGHTS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Young Mike Rossman stopped Victor Galindez, the World Boxing Association light-heavyweight champion, on a technical knockout in the 13th round Friday night during one of three world championship boxing matches that were fought in the Superdome as preliminaries to the Muhammad Ali—Leon Spinks heavyweight battle.

In the others, Danny (Red) Lopez of the U.S. recovered quickly from a first-round knockdown to retain his featherweight crown and Jorge Lujan of Panama kept his bantamweight title with a decision over American Alberto Davila.

Rossman opened a cut over Galindez' right eye in the second round and used a long left jab to keep it bleeding through the rest of the fight.

By the end of the 12th round, the Argentinian's corner was unable to stop the flow of blood and 55 seconds into the 13th round, referee Carlos Berrocal leaped between the fighters to stop the contest.

It was the first defeat for Galindez in a 42-fight string that began in 1972.

Lopez got up from a knockdown in the first 30 seconds of the fight to knock out Juan Malvarez with a smashing right hand in the second round.

The fight had hardly begun when Lopez found himself on the canvas. A right-left-right by Malvarez put him there.

Lopez got up quickly and took a pounding the rest of the round from left hooks and rights to the head. But he would not go down.

Then, in the second round—after Malvarez had landed a solid hook—Lopez beat the Argentine to the punch, crashing a short, chopping right to the side of the jaw that dropped Malvarez on his stomach.

Malvarez remained on the floor for a couple of minutes after the fight had ended at 45 seconds of the second round but he was able to leave the ring under his own power.

The counter-punching Lujan withstood the effective body attack of Davila and retained the WBC bantam title with a unanimous decision.

Lujan did his most effective scoring with a jab and left hook while backing away from the pressing five-foot-two Davila. Lujan, 5-foot-5, used his reach advantage effectively.

Is Hockey Canada Grounding Bruins?

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

LAKE COWICHAN — It's some 4,660 miles between Lake Cowichan and Stockholm, as the jet flies, but the trip was one of the concerns expressed during Friday's Western Hockey League exhibition encounter here between the New Westminster Bruins and Victoria Cougars.

Teams played to a 5-5 tie before 920 fans, but Sweden and the world junior hockey championships were uppermost in the minds of New Westminster's braintrust and co-owners — coach Ernie McLean and manager Bill Shinske.

Confirmed as Canada's representatives earlier this week, the Bruins may not make the December trip.

"Money," was Shinske's explanation when asked why. "They want us to represent Canada, but they want us to do it by reaching into our own pockets."

Hockey Canada seems to be the heavy.

"It's a funny thing," McLean interjected, "but when (Hockey Canada director Alan) Eagleson has anything to do with sending a team overseas, everybody goes. . .His friends, relatives, business acquaintances and enough players to staff two teams."

"When it's a team that he can't control, we have to pay our own way."

Both Shinske and McLean said the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is "fighting hard" on the Bruins' behalf.

In Ottawa, David Branch, CAHA executive-director, said that Hockey Canada did not consider the Bruins a national team and had allocated $42,500, about half of the projected cost of the trip. (Shinske said an additional $20,000 would be enough to send the Bruins on their way).

Branch said this was not a "high profile" tournament and it would be difficult to find a sponsor now.

The Bruins make up the core of the team with 16 players along with six other players from across Canada.

"I tried to discuss (the problem) with the Hockey Canada board but it was not well received," said Branch, who is also a member of that board.

"Why are we getting the short end of the stick?" he asked.

Branch said Chris Lang, treasurer of Hockey Canada, submitted the $42,500 to Sport Canada without the consent of the board or the knowledge of the CAHA. Lang was unavailable for comment.

Hockey Canada and the CAHA have been battling for several years over jurisdiction for negotiating international hockey agreements. The rift was recently patched over after both sides agreed to let Hockey Canada handle national teams going abroad.

As for the game, the Bruins overcame a two-goal deficit to preserve their undefeated record after four exhibitions. Holdover John Ogrodnick scored three times for the defending national champs while Terry Kirkham and Bill Hobbins each added one.

Gary Lupul and rookie Barry Pederson each scored a pair for Victoria and Mike Shields got the other as the Cougars out-shot the Bruins 43-31.

In another exhibition, Calgary Wranglers scored thre goals late in the third period to edge Medicine Hat Tigers 7-5.

DODGERS ARE FIRST TO DRAW 3 MILLION

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers became the first team in baseball history to reach three million in home attendance Friday night.

The Dodger Stadium crowd of 47,188, watching a National League game between Los Angeles and Atlanta Braves, raised the Dodgers' attendance for the season to 3,011,368, an average of 41,825 for 72 home dates.

In their 21 years in Los Angeles, the Dodgers have had 14 two million seasons, including the last six years in a row. Los Angeles set a major league attendance record in 1962 of 2,755,184, the year Dodger Stadium was opened. Last year the Dodgers broke the record by playing to 2,955,087.

Bowler-of-Week Contest Heading into 16th Season

Fivepinners and tenpinners on lower Vancouver Island lanes will be off and running Saturday, September 30, in the 16th annual Victoria Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition.

Designed to increase interest in the pin-bouncing pastime and to give average bowlers opportunities to steal some thunder from the stars who often go gunning for tournament glory, the Times contest will again consist of four sections and continue for 26 weeks, with a two-week break during the Christmas festivities.

Bowlers rolling in league play on lanes from Greater Victoria north to Chemainus, including Youbou and Lake Cowichan, will be eligible for weekly awards in the four divisions — women's and men's tenpins, and women's and men's fivepins.

All winners in each of the four divisions will qualify for the annual Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs, in which each champion will receive a Times Trophy. Any rolloff winner who is a daily subsscriber to the Victoria Times will collect a bonus prize of $150.

In weekly competition and in the rolloffs, contestants notching the highest three-game scratch totals will be declared the winners. In the event of a tie, first place will go to the bowler with the highest single-game score.

Although the Bowler-of-the-Week rules remain the same as in former years, the Times regrets that is has been considered necessary to make one change to avoid being forced to abandon the contest. This season, pictures of winners of weekly awards will not be printed when reports of scores are published in the newspaper.

With an increasing number of bowlers from outside the Victoria area winning awards in recent years, obtaining pictures has become considerably more expensive and time-consuming, creating several problems for the Times sports staff.

However, the main purpose of the competition is unchanged. It the event that gives almost everybody tossing bowling balls opportunities to beat the experts.

All bowlers have occasional magic nights when the ball goes straighter than usual and pins spin and tumble in wonderful ways. It just takes one of those nights to earn a weekly award and gain a berth in the rolloffs. And if the magic returns on rolloff day, there's that Times Trophy and the bonus prize of $150.

Pursuit of those rewards starts on Saturday, Sept. 30.

Oaks Better Team Than Credited: Dillon

So the Shamrocks are home again and the Mann Cup is back in Eastern Canada after a four-year stay in the West. It was a good fight, mom, but they took it away from us in that sixth game. We had a five goal-lead and we couldn't hold it. That's the story of how we let the side down.

When it was all over the Red Oaks proved they wanted this one a little more than the Shamrocks.

For a team that was described as having only 10 players—five old pros and some house-leaguers—the Red Oaks did better than all right; and it makes one wonder, doesn't it, what Nanaimo Timbermen might have been like if goalie Tim Barrie had elected to stay in the West and the Wassons, Jim and Bob, had decided not to go home to Peterborough a couple of years ago.

These players were the sparks of the Red Oaks, and Barrie the series star. Barrie, it might be recalled, wasn't one of the goalkeeping leaders in the West when he played with the Timbermen in 1977. His goals-against-average was a mediocre 14.22. Larry Smeltzer of the Shamrocks was the No. 1.

Leon Hall, the Shamrock statistician, who has been a part of the club and lacrosse here as long as anyone, was saying that the Red Oaks foiled the Shamrocks with a zone defence, with the front man taking the first Shamrock down the floor and the defence sagging in as the Rocks tried to go through the middle. Shamrocks never really did fathom this manoeuvre and get the ball deep as they should have.

As a result—and this was all during the series—because of the persistent checking tactics of the Red Oaks, the Shamrocks gave up far too many turnovers for their own good and were ripe for the fast-break.

Or as coach Nirmal Dillon said: "They were an excellent fast-break team; they picked up five juniors who could run; they made the difference and they really were a much better team than people gave them credit for being."

"We lost it in the sixth game," said Nirmal. "Even after we had blown an 8-3 lead, we were ahead 11-9 and, with a penalty against us, we had four clean breaks on goal and couldn't score. They eventually scored on the power play and it was 11-10, and . . . then there was the stupid goal the referee gave them . . . (That was the controversial winning goal in the sixth game) . . . we played well for the first part of the first period in the final game, then we got behind, panicked a bit and they beat us with the fast break . . . and through the series Barrie was hot, and that surprised us."

Capsule comments only, because it's all over and it had been a good season otherwise.

The wounds will heal, and come spring the eternal flame will flicker anew. This isn't the first team to lose when everyone figured it should have won.

Elsewhere, Jack Shupe, coach of the Cougars, was saying at the Vancouver Canucks media luncheon this week that "yes, the Cougars look pretty good, especially some of the new forwards." But also Jack said he wouldn't complain if someone could tell him where to find a couple of big defencemen. That appears to be the problem area at the moment. He has the numbers, but he also values size. And the team to beat? New Westminster. So what else is new?

What else, for sure? Because Dennis Ververgaert of the Canucks was suggesting that western juniors who have graduated into the NHL in the past few years appear to be a tougher breed than their eastern counterparts; and Shupe was quick to agree that perhaps the fact that these youngsters are subject to the rigors of travel more than the players in the east, makes them travel-tough. They learn how to rate themselves by necessity and it's a good grounding for any player aspiring to be a professional.

Which is probably a good reason why the Canucks should draft more western players as they have the toughest travel schedule in the NHL. It's that simple.

And who do the Canucks have this season that might fit into this category? Bill Derlago (89-63—152) from Brandon; Curt Fraser (48-44—72) from the Cougars; Stan Smyl (29-47—76) from New Westminster; to name the first three draft choices and in that order.

And also, when it was suggested here earlier in the week that post positions made much of the difference in harness racing, the caller said: prove it. Which is easy, because in a recent survey of five of the leading half-mile tracks in the East, the results came out like this for winners from various post positions: No. 1, 21%; No. 2, 18%; No. 3, 15%; No. 4, 11%; No. 5, 11%; No. 6, 10%; No. 7, 8%; and No. 8, 6%. So there, and with no other factors being considered either. By the way have you seen the overnights?

"Today's diet, 'Twiggy.' One spoonful of peas and half a carrot."

Calgary Coach Looks For Smoke From Lions

By The Canadian Press

Coach Jack Gotta, whose Calgary Stampeders beat and tied British Columbia Lions in two earlier meetings this season, is looking forward to "a barnburner" when the two clubs clash again Sunday in Calgary.

"I expect it'll be a high-scoring game," said Gotta. "I can't see it going any other way."

The Calgary contest will be televised on the full CTV network with kickoff set for 1 p.m. (PST).

Other Canadian Football League action available on television this weekend includes Sunday's game at Montreal where CBC will televise Hamilton Tiger-Cats' encounter with the Alouettes starting at 2 p.m., and tonight's game at Winnipeg where former Blue Bombers coach Bud Riley returns as head coach of Toronto Argonauts. The Winnipeg contest was scheduled to be shown on the CTV network, starting at 3 p.m.

One other contest—Edmonton Eskimos visiting Saskatchewan Roughriders on Sunday—will not be televised.

The Stampeders, who finished last in the Western Conference last season with a 4-12 record, surprised the Lions with a 23-21 win in their first meeting last July, then played to a 19-19 tie in the return game.

Gotta expects a tough battle against the Lions, especially their defensive unit. He noted the B.C. offence has been floundering lately but is coming on with quarterback Jerry Tagge improving all the time.

"B.C. has been hurting themselves—the interceptions, fumbles, things that every club does. But on the whole, they have a good balanced attack with Larry Key running well for them. They have a lot of balance on that club and they will be tough to handle."

Sizzling Yanks Pull Away From Struggling Red Sox

By The Associated Press

Ron Guidry didn't have his blazing fastball—he didn't need it.

The New York Yankees ace, who stopped Boston on two hits last Saturday, repeated the feat Friday as the Yanks opened their crucial three-game weekend series with a 4-0 whitewash of the reeling Red Sox.

"I think I struggled a little bit," said Guidry, 22-2 after his eighth shutout of the season. "I depended mostly on sliders and later on changeups. I got a lot of ground balls that way."

The victory was New York's ninth in its last 10 games and fifth in a row over Boston, which has lost four in a row and 13 of 16.

"I can't quite figure out how we could have won this ball game," said Boston manager Don Zimmer. "The man pitched a two-hitter and you can't beat that. You don't see many pitchers like Guidry. He's the best I've seen since (Sandy) Koufax."

The Yankees lead the Red Sox by 2½ games in the American League East, with Milwaukee Brewers five games back after bowing 10-3 to Minnesota Twins.

Meanwhile in the West, Kansas City Royals extended their lead to 4½ games over California by defeating the Angels 3-2.

In other games, Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 1-0, Baltimore Orioles beat Toronto Blue Jays 8-3, Chicago WhiteSox topped Seattle Mariners 8-3 in 10 innings and, in a twi-night doubleheader, Oakland A's beat Texas 1-0 in the opener before losing the nightcap 5-0.

The Yankees scored all their runs in the fourth inning against Luis Tiant, 10-8.

Guidry, who lowered his earned run average to 1.71, gave up only a double to Rick Burleson in the third inning and a single to Fred Lynn in the seventh as he posted his ninth victory in the last 10 games, including six shutouts.

"The Red Sox aren't dead," said Guidry, "but they're a different team than they were a month-and-a-half ago. They aren't hitting like they were then, and when I slip and make a bad pitch I get away with it.

"A while back, when we were 14 games out, it stung our pride. We are world champions and we wanted to make it closer. Now what has happened is unbelievable."

In the National League, New York Mets shaded Philadelphia 5-4, which combined with Pittsburgh's 6-1 victory over Montreal Expos to cut the Phillies lead in the East to three games over the Pirates; Los Angeles Dodgers beat Atlanta Braves 5-0; Cincinnati Reds stopped San Francisco Giants 6-1; Houston Astros whipped San Diego Padres 8-4 and St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Chicago Cubs 6-2.

Long-Driving Miller Leads

ALAMO, Calif. (AP) — Sharon Miller hit a 300-yard drive on the closing hole, eagled it for the second consecutive day and took the second-round lead Friday in a $100,000 women's professional golf tournament at Round Hill Country Club.

Nancy Lopez, who has won a record $157,000 so far this season on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, moved into contention for another title by posting a three-under-par 70, giving her a 36-hole total of 145, which was three strokes off Miller's pace. The 21-year-old Lopez has won eight tournaments this year.

Miller, 37, went one under par for the day with her gagle-three on the downhill 501-yard, par-five 18th hole and it gave her a one-stroke lead over four golfers, Roberta Speer, Kathy Whitworth, Betty Burfeindt and Donna Caponi Young.

"I don't know what it is with that hole," said the LPGA veteran who made her best showing in several years with a second-place finish recently in a tournament at Springfield, Ill. "It owes me something, but as long as I keep getting eagles at the 18th, that's OK."

Lopez, Speer and Whitworth were among those posting 70s, the best score Friday when strong winds made play difficult.

The first-round leader, Martha Nause, went to an 82 from a 68 Thursday but still made the cut handily.

Several players were at 144, two strokes from the lead, including defending champion Jane Blalock.

Sandra Post, formerly of Oakville, Ont., was eight strokes off the pace with a second-round 77 for 150.

WORLD CUP TEAM NAMED

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Barr of Kelowna will join Dan Halldorson of Brandon to form Canada's World Cup golf team, the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association announced.

Barr, winner of the 1978 British Columbia Open, was a member of Canada's team in 1977. Halldorson earned his spot as low Canadian in the CPGA championship this year.

Brampton Pro Top Assistant

LAVAL, Que. (CP) Paul Kennedy of Brampton, Ont., shot a one-over-par 73 in the final round on Friday for a 215 total and a one-stroke victory in the 54-hole Canadian assistant professionals' golf championship at the Islesmere Golf Club.

Dan Talbot of Beloeil, Que., closed with a 69 to finish second at 216.

Touch League Opens Sunday

Five teams will compete for honors this season in the newly-organized Vancouver Island Touch Football League.

Tennis Systems, the Clones, Cypress Disposal, Reliable Transfer and King's Hotel are the squads making up the league, in which two games will be scheduled each Sunday, starting at noon and 2 p.m.

First contests are slated Sunday at Spencer Secondary School. Kings will tackle the Tennis crew in the opener and Cypress will face Reliable in the second game.

Vic West Trios Capture Honors In Bowling Event

It was strictly a show for the home-greens folks at Victoria West Lawn Bowling Club Friday in finals of the mixed triples competition for the Memorial Trophy.

All the finalists were members of the Vic West club as Louise and Colin Fleck combined with Craig Wilson to defeat Jim McGregor Sr. and Margaret and Jim Allen 22-9 in the "A" final and the trio of Paul Jenkins and Norm and Rae Martin scored a 20-12 triumph over Frank and Audrey Jolley and Steve Stevens in the "B" final.

THERE'S POWER IN SCHOOLS

Joe Bekkers, coaching last year's playoff winners, reckons the run for the Greater Victoria High School Soccer League championship will be a three-cornered fight this year between his Spectrum side, Oak Bay and Mt. Douglas Thistles.

And, as the draw will have it, Bekkers will find out in a hurry.

Action in the 10-team league starts Tuesday and one of the five opening games will send much-improved Oak Bay against Spectrum. In other openers, all scheduled to start at 3:30 p.m., Mt. Doug will be host to Stelly's, Claremont visits Belmont, Parkland travels to Reynolds and Victoria High will be at Esquimalt.

The return of several holdovers, including high-scoring Josu Iruretagoyena and Brent Gelaude, and the addition of standout newcomers like Glen Jay, a member of the British Columbia under-16 team, Brian Cathcart and Mike Kadar, gives Bekkers a reason to view the coming campaign with optimism.

Oak Bay coach Bernie McNally-Dawes' anticipation has greater enthusiasm. Carlos Almeida has transfered from Reynolds and, in McNally-Dawes' opinion, Oak Bay now has the best goalkeeper in province.

British Riders Finish 1-2

CALGARY (CP) — Riders from Great Britain continue to dominate Spruce Meadows Masters Horse Show, finishing first and second in Friday's premier international jumping event.

Rain and wind delayed the start of competition in the Prudential Steel Cup, but once the skies cleared 29 riders attacked the course with 15 riding clear in the opening round.

Over a short jump-off course it was Britain's Michael Saywell, who paced the pack aboard Chainbridge, with teammate Caroline Bradley finishing second on Tigre. Ulrich Meyer Zu Bexten, the only other clear in the jumpoff, finished third for Germany.

Saywell was the class of the show, touring the course in a brisk 40.5 seconds, almost four seconds faster than Bradley and a full 10 seconds ahead of the German rider.

Friday's victory was the fourth in six events for the British and only John Simpson of Canada and Carlos Aguirre of Mexico have succeeded in breaking the British grip on the top spots.

Simpson's win came Wednesday while Aguirre struck up the Mexican national anthem Friday afternoon with a tight victory over Anne Kursinski of the U.S. in the Red Path Accumulator. Five-time Olympic gold medalist Hans Winkler of Germany finished third with Calgary's Nancy Southern collecting fourth.

Britain currently leads the Germans by three points in the race for team honors and the Canadian Nations Cup.

Are Your Children "Growing Like Weeds"?
They tend to do that! And it costs no small fortune to bring up a family! It's not just the food and clothing — it's all the things from diaper pails to Jolly Jumpers to Barbie doll sets, bikes and hockey games. Some of these things are probably gathering dust in your basement or garage right now (and taking up space). You'll never get back what you paid for them, but why not Pass on their outgrown things to others and get a little extra cash for the things they need now!

Crenshaw Steps Ahead

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw is mighty happy to be from Texas—even if it's for no other reason than the tricky bermuda grass greens on the state's golf courses.

"This kind of green, the bermuda, is what I grew up on," said Crenshaw, who fired a blistering seven-under-par 63 Friday to take a two-stroke lead over Lou Graham after two rounds of the $200,000 Texas Open golf tournament.

"If you are from up North and are used to bent grass greens, it's a lot different here," added Crenshaw, 26, of Austin, who has been playing the bermuda greens at the 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course since he was a teen-ager.

"Some of the people from Texas or from the South might have a little advantage," he said. "It's definitely a help to be from the South."

Crenshaw was at 12-under-par 128 after an opening round 65 on Thursday. Graham, of Nashville, Tenn., shot a 63 on Thursday and a 67 Friday for a 130.

Bunched four strokes off the pace were first-round leader Hubert Green, who slipped to a 70 Friday after a blistering 62 Thursday, Peter Oosterhuis and Lee Trevino.

Dave Barr of Kelowna was 11 strokes off the pace with a 139 total, including a 69 in the second round.

Crenshaw, a former University of Texas star who opened his pro career with a victory in the 1973 Texas Open, had four birdies in his first nine holes, saving one on No. 12 with a 180-yard, six-iron shot from a fairway bunker to within four feet of the pin.

Trevino roared into the third-place tie by dropping in an eight-foot birdie putt on No. 17 and hitting a 30-footer for a birdie on No. 18.

"I'm working hard, six hours a day, on my putting," said Trevino, of Dallas, who also grew up on bermuda greens. "I've never had a history of playing well here, but I generally do play bermuda well."

Masters champion Gary Player, PGA Champion John Mahaffey, Miller Barber, the Texas Open runner-up the last two years, and Andy Bean, winner of three 1978 tournaments, all missed the cut, which came at even-par 140.

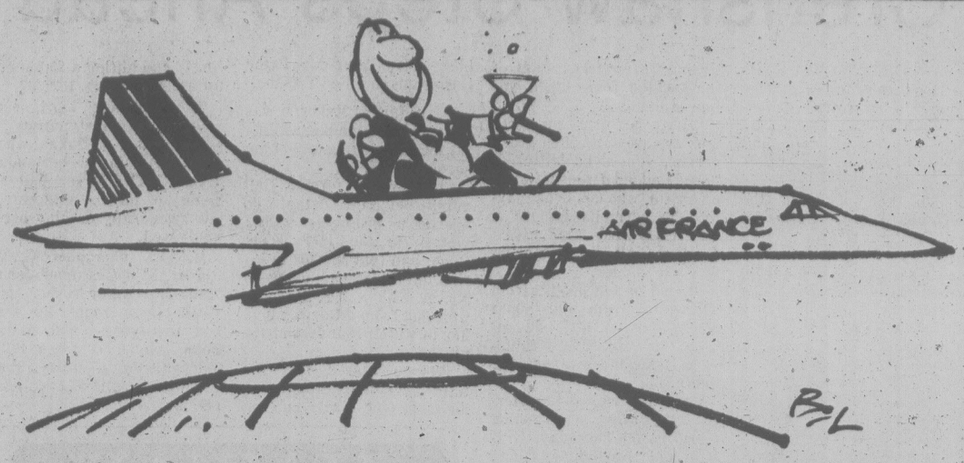
Aboard Air France Flight 001 from Paris to New York



Amazing Concorde flight is thrust of future today

By PHILIP SOUSA

ABOARD AIR FRANCE FLIGHT 001 — A real downpour this morning outside our aircraft. Nothing unusual about that, but plenty different about the jet that's about to take us across the Atlantic. This is the Concorde.

10:58 — Engines on. Slight noise, less vibration than in other jets. Crew member over public address system welcomes us aboard and gives standard "seat belts fasten" and "no smoking" instructions.

11:01 — We ease gently away from our gate in Satellite 5 at Charles de Gaulle Airport, without a doubt, the finest such facility in the world.

11:05 — Taxiing to takeoff point under torrential rain. Aircraft turns onto various taxiways as effortlessly as if it were a Jeep. A few little bumps here and there, otherwise quite smooth.

11:08 — Captain tells us it's a minute to takeoff. We move on the active runway.

11:09 — We're rolling. A bit bumpy. As we gain speed the rain is blown away from our small windows and we can see through the mist; airport buildings blurring by faster than we've ever seen them before. And we feel Concorde's power—four Rolls Royce engines with a combined thrust of 152,000 pounds. Within 30 seconds and in less than a mile, at 225 mph we part from the soil of France.

11:11 — While we climb sharply, the captain explains that noise abatement procedures require a slight slowdown in our speed. "Machmeter" on bulkhead in front of us reads MO.44. Brochure in seat pocket explains M1 is about 675 mph, below which most other passenger jets fly. We'll be cruising at M2, or 1,350 mph, which is twice the speed of sound or the speed of a bullet. We'll be in New York in less than half the eight hours required for conventional jets.

11:13 — One of the stewardesses tells us we'll be flying at 28,000 feet until we reach Le Havre on the French coast, 58,000 feet across the Atlantic en route to New York.

11:15 — Seat belt sign is turned off. Machmeter reads MO.75 and I look around by temporary supersonic home. Light cream walls, blue carpet, brown upholstery on seats which are a bit roomier than standard economy seats, but smaller than first class on Air France's and other carriers' Boeing 747s and 707s. Still, plenty of leg room. Though it can carry more, Air France limits its passenger loads aboard Concorde to 100 first-class-only passengers.

11:19 — Crew members distribute slippers, cigarettes and other amenities. We're now at MO.92.

11:20 — Suddenly, we come out of the rain-packed clouds into sunshine and a blue sky and leave the French shoreline behind us. The skipper advises about "impending acceleration in one minute" which will take us from our present subsonic speed through the sound barrier at about M1 and beyond. We feel the extra thrust applied, but there's no noise or movement we can perceive. It's now M1.40 and we're flying faster than sound.

11:25 — Stewardesses, two in the front cabin, two in the rear one, place tablecloths on our trays and distribute menus.

11:32 — Bar cart stops by my seat, 9D. I choose a Bloody Mary. A plate with five different hot hors d'oeuvres is placed in front of me. We're at M1.54.

11:37 — A mere hour out of Paris and we're over England's enchanting Cornwall. Europe is behind us now. M1.75.

11:46 — Bloody Mary below usual Air France standards. Switch to champagne, a noble Dom Ruinart 1971; excellent. M1.90.

11:56 — More bubbly served, M1.98.

12:03 — We're still there. Cutlery is placed on our trays.

12:10 — As the only passenger with an empty seat next to me, I stand in the rather narrow aisle and look up and down the 40-seat front cabin first, then the 60-seat rear one. What I notice at once is 98 pairs of eyes glued on the machmeter. So I add mine to the others. It's M2, 1,350 mph, twice the speed of sound. But there's no sensation whatsoever.

12:10 — I dip into my tin of Iranian caviar and wonder if something—anything—would tell me I'm not aboard just a regular jet. I look out my window and I find it; it doesn't tell me how fast I'm going, but, rather, how lofty this magnificent machine is doing its supersonic thing, unchallenged by those of lesser pedigree, speed and altitude. I look to the horizon north of us and my eyes catch an impressive first sight: the curvature of the Earth.

12:40 — Main course, breast of Bresse chicken with foie gra and Morel mushrooms is served. Very good, but no other choices, as in the superb Air France 747 that took me from home to Paris. Why? Weight is critical on the Concorde, I'm told, everything counts; the aircraft must be perfectly balanced to fly supersonic. Besides, it's only 3 hours, 30 minutes between Paris and New York on this bird. M2.02.

12:47 — An outstanding Bourgogne, Cotes de Nuits Clos de la Roche 1969 is favored over a very fine but slightly sweeter Bordeaux, a Chateau Leoville Las Cases 1973. M2.01.

1:03 — My watch, still on Paris time, says it's afternoon, but brilliant sun and very deep blue sky appear no different than they did when we broke through the clouds out of Charles de Gaulle Airport almost two hours ago. Dessert, a tasty pastry called Gateau Lapostole, arrives, followed by fresh fruits and a choice of liquers. M2.03.

1:46 — We leave M2.03—our fastest speed today—and start a gradual descent.

2:05 — Customs forms are distibuted along with more cigars and cigarettes, MO.93.

2:35 — Our jackets, placed in closets after takeoff, are now returned to us.

2:36 — No smoking sign comes on. Long Island's Atlantic shore, first bit of land we've seen since England's Cornwall, appears off our right side. Concorde sits back in its peculiar approach and landing posture, somewhat like an albatross.

2:38 — One of the runways at John F. Kennedy Airport is now visible through my window and we aim for it. Rain again, but lighter than what we got in Paris.

2:40 — Unlike a gooney bird, this Concorde touches down without wing-flapping. In fact, we only know we're on the ground because we see the runway whoosh by at about 170 mph. Air France flight 001 stops gently at its assigned gate. Local time is 8:40 in the morning. We've arrived, so to speak, 2 hours, 20 minutes before taking off from Paris. . . .

Caribbean enchantment

Margarita's name captures imagination

By JOHN CAMERON

MARGARITA ISLAND, Venezuela — To paraphrase Shakespeare, on this enchanted island off the coast of Venezuela in the Eastern Caribbean "the name is the thing to catch the imagination of the traveller".

This 850 square kilometre island was discovered by Christopher Columbus himself in August of 1498. The native inhabitants, who were described by their discoverers as a truly handsome race, called it by the musical name of Paraquachoa, which meant "abundance of fish."

THE FIRST European settlers re-named it Margarita in honor of one of the "infantas" or princesses of Imperial Spain. Through the centuries the name acquired certain romantic overtones bespeaking of pearl fisheries and pirate hoards.

Margarita, together with two other smaller islands, Coche and Cubagua, today make up Venezuela's smallest state, called New Sparta. But there is nothing Spartan about Margarita's natural setting with its 160 kilometres of lovely, unspoiled beaches; cloud-shrouded mountain peaks and lush tropical valleys.

SOFT PASTEL colors — blues, whites, ochres, magentas — predominate in Margarita's seas, skies and hillocks, creating an overall impression more Mediterranean or Egean than Caribbean. This ambience is further accented by the toy-like cottages of its picturesque fishing ports.

Margarita's major port, and also its capital, is called Porlamar, which in Spanish has a nostalgic sound and can be translated literally as "On the Sea." Nearby is another port called Pampatar, which spreads out under the shadow of the formidable Fortress of San Carlos Borromeo, built by the Spaniards in 1662 to protect the island from attacks by buccaneers. Although the origin of the name Papatar is lost in history, in Spanish it has a melodius sound which seems to evoke great sea battles and epic sagas.

INDEED, FROM discovery to independence, Margarita has been the scenery of major events in the history of Venezuela and Latin America.

Young boys will eagerly recite part of this history to tourists who visit Galera Fortress overlooking a third major port on the northest tip of the island, called Juan Griego (or literally "John the Greek," another catchy name honoring the Greek castaway who founded it in the Sixteenth Century).

FOR A FEW coins, these improvised young guides, exuding simpatia, will tell you of "the heroic struggles of the Margaritan people for their liberty, 200 of whom were executed here by the cruel Spanish General Morillo in 1817 . . ."

Want to hear more bewitching names? Near Pampatar there is a lovely sea grotto reminiscent of Capri, called "The Buffoon's Cave." And one of the island's most gorgeous beaches is named El Tirano, or "The Tyrant," to mark Lope de Aguirre, a ruthless pirate who terrorized these parts around 1560. And there are two twin hillocks named "Maria Guevara's Teats." This is how the earthy, life-loving native islanders honored one of their great heroines in the War of Independence against the Spaniards.

Diversity key in Hamburg

By JUDITH WITTY

HAMBURG, Germany — Hamburg has two landmarks familiar to all.

One is St. Michael's Church, the Protestant cathedral whose spires tower over the city in countless photographs.

And then there is the Reeperbahn, home to 2,000 girls and the most rigidly controlled district of prostitution in the world.

Such is the diversity of West Germany's most cosmopolitan and populous city.

Hamburg, on the Elbe River, is Germany's largest seaport, although it lies 112 kilometres from the North Sea. It bustles with shipping, oil refining and high finance during the day.

At night it is just as alive with opera, music from three symphony orchestras, modern jazz, and sex shows in the St. Pauli district. The city state of Hamburg subsidizes cultural events to the tune of $30 million a year. It also provides free licenses and medical exams for its prostitutes.

For the tourist, Hamburg is at its best at night. The atmosphere is much like pre-war Berlin. A restless populace and sailors from ports worldwide prowl the streets after dark, taking in the theatre, the cabaret, the girls, a late supper or a final schnapps.

Pint-sized British pub

Manager Rob Haskew stands behind bar of Nutshell Public House in Bury, St. Edmonds, 160 kilometres northeast of London. Considered smallest pub in Britian, the four-feet wide area from entrance to bar can accommodate only 12 people comfortably.

Pacific Grove flapping over monarch's return

Sacred butterflies to get rousing welcome in California's seaside sanctuary

PACIFIC GROVE, Calif. — Yearning for the good old days — street dances and pie-eating contests, church socials and bazaars, and all that old down-home feeling?

Well, spread your wings and book a flight to Pacific Grove, touted by the community's 14,000 locals as Butterfly Town, U.S.A.

Beginning next month, millions of orange and black monarchs will swarm into Pacific Grove, their winter habitat at the tip of California's Monterey Peninsula.

JUST AS the swallows keep coming back to Capistrano, the monarchs return regularly to this seaside sanctuary. By late March they'll take flight again. In the interim, Pacific Grove will flap its own wings, telling the world about this annual migration.

Leading off will be the annual Butterfly Parade on Oct. 14. Streets will be roped off for the community holiday. Thousands will line the sidewalks. But the spotlight won't shine on the monarchs. Instead, it will be beamed on 1,500 grade-school youngsters dressed up as butterflies.

LIKE THE magical return of the monarchs themselves, the youngsters will swarm down Lighthouse Avenue accompanied by high-stepping drum majors and majorettes and the rollicking beat of school bands.

When the small fry pull in their wings, the entire town will do an about-face, marching off to a carnival and bazaar hosted by the PTA.

It's the sort of old-fashioned goodness that disappeared with elbow garters and bowlers. The good ladies of the PTA will sell snow cones, homemade cookies, cakes and pies to the tune of carnival music and nearly forgotten oompah offerings.

AND WOE be to the interloper who would molest a monarch. Under a city ordinance, it's a $500 pinch for netting a butterfly.

As far back as anyone can remember, the monarch has wintered in Pacific Grove. Some fly hundreds of kilometres to this homey seaside town only five minutes from the tumult of Monterey's Cannery Row, settling in the same trees — the graceful cypress, the eucalyptus and the Monterey pine.

NONE SEEN this season ever will return again, for the life of a monarch spans less than a year. The mystery confounds scientists — how the progenies that follow next year — coming from as far away as Alaska — find Pacific Grove to nest in these same trees.

Trees behind Milar's Grove Motel are festooned with monarchs. It's a favorite napping area, with signs cautioning: "Do not talk under trees."

BESIDES Milar's, Pacific Grove visitors book rooms at Borg's Oceanfront Motel. And 16 nifty cottages — each with a kitchen and fireplace — are up for grabs at Andrils' woodsy, piney encampment with its hollyhocks and daisies (rates from $28 single, $30 double).

But the real grabber is the Gosby House Inn on Lighthouse Avenue.

Even in New England, which is famous for its splendid old homes, the Gosby would be smashing in any neighborhood.

AFTER A $100,000 renovation job, young Bill Patterson opened the Gosby House Inn to wayfarers last February. With a parlor resembling an old Norman Rockwell painting, this magnificent 100-year-old Victorian provides a dozen dreamy rooms with rates ranging from $18 to $32, single or double.

Ruffled curtains flutter at the windows, and bathrooms are authentically antiqued with brass fixtures and porcelain. Nineteenth-century prints cover the walls and classical recordings soothe the nerves. It is grand without being garish. And without exaggeration, it's high on the list of the nation's most tastefully restored Victorians.

EACH MORNING, fresh fruit and flowers are delivered to guest rooms — seven with baths (old-fashioned, four-legged tubs), six with sinks, some with fireplaces. Meanwhile, visitors gather in the parlor for complimentary breakfasts of apple cider, Danish rolls and coffee.

To spend a night at the Gosby House Inn is to find one's way back to the 19th century. It is an old home tastefully furnished with choice antiques and sparkling with leaded glass, polished brass and marble.

BEFORE SOMEONE asks, here is the address: 643 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove, Calif. 93950. And just in case you're in a real hurry, telephone (408) 375-1287.

As for the butterflies, a statue in their honor stands only a few blocks from Gosby House at Lover's Point. Here, David Bindel operates a most romantic restaurant known by a most unromantic name, the Old Bath House. Indeed, it is the site of a one-time bathhouse that served early residents of Pacific Grove. As Bindel tells it, he has tried to "capture the romantic feeling of the '30s with the liberal use of rich woods and etched glass."

COCKTAILS are served in a Victorian bar, where an antique espresso machine turns out after-dinner cups of bubbling mud.

Candlelight and flowers enhance tables next to windows facing a lovely cove, while taped melodies — classical and romantic — add to the atmosphere.

The Old Bath House is a place for holding hands and filling the soul with scenes of the sea. Along the seashore, couples stroll arm in arm. Doves cry and a chill wind whips petals from geraniums.

ANOTHER restaurant with equal helpings of romance, Maison Bergerac, occupies a lovely old Victorian mansion next door to the Gosby House Inn. Its proprietor, Raymond Bergerac, is fiercely independent. As a result, dinner is by reservation only, often weeks in advance — and then only Thursday through Saturday. During November, December, May and June he is closed altogether.

Pacific Grove is a funky little town with great charm and the peacefulness of another time. Salty cottages line its shores, and besides the big to-do over butterflies, other celebrations take place during the year, too.

IN SUMMERTIME, crowds turn out for the Festival of Lanterns, the legendary search by a mandarin for a daughter who fled with her lover. Everybody loves a love story, so hundreds line the shore with lighted Oriental lanterns while a flotilla of boats rocks by under a shower of blazing fireworks.

Rivaling the butterfly high jinks, Pacific Grove's rollicking Good Old Days in March features pie-eating contests, an antique car parade, gas-filled balloons, puppeteers and old-timey music for townsfolk hosting a Victorian home tour.

LIKE A Midwest pageant at harvest time, locals display handicrafts and queue up at hot dog and soft drink booths.

Founded in 1875 as a religious retreat, Pacific Grove banned cards, dice, billiards, dancing, ocean bathing on Sunday and introduced a curfew for youngsters.

To keep sinners out, the town was fenced. Finally, one night a state senator lost his cool, picked up an ax and the fence came tumbling down.

Later, the ban on cards and booze was lifted, so that today a visitor can get higher than a butterfly.

YOUTH ABLE TO COPE BEST

Visitors pounded in overseas crush

LONDON — A London hotel man says: "It's my guess that the tourist for the next few years will be younger. Say under 30. Able and willing to put up with mobbed airports. With cheap flights where passengers are jammed shoulder to shoulder.

"This summer there were a couple of thousand of these young people sleeping in London under canvas for two dollars or so a day. They were in a park area, about a mile walk from the White City Underground. And that's a fast ride to the centre of London.

HE SAID: "If that's the future of travel, then the mass-produced Holiday Inn concept is wrong. The young traveller can't afford to stay in them. The people they were built for won't travel. At least not in sufficient numbers to fill the rooms."

No question that Europe travel irritated and disappointed a lot of people this summer. Thing to do is stay out of the capital cities.

The last time I saw Paris, I rented a little Renault and got the hell out of town. Wound up in a pleasant village in Normandy where contented cows gave famous Norman cream for the morning croissant and coffee.

You must choose your spots carefully. Don't go to beach towns in France or Greece in summer. Don't go to the Shakespeare country in England.

Don't go to any resort in August. All Europeans stubbornly consider August the vacation month.

"We'd like to do some funeral brass rubbings in English churches . . ."

Travel Tips

By STAN DELAPLANE

If you ask at the rectory — (and look reasonably honest) — they'll usually say OK. Churches that have been open for centuries now lock their doors.

Tourists were coming in with crowbars, ripping up brasses to take home for souvenirs. There's a place in London that has replicas of famous brasses. You can go there and make rubbings. They'll sell you rubbing materials and show you how. British tourist people will know the address.

THE BRASSES show the figure of the person — often in armor — along with a verse of prayer. Usually set in the floor of the church where the person is buried. Thus they're worn from being walked on for hundreds of years. Good rubbings are hard to make.

Some people were buried in waist-high crypts with the brasses mounted on top. Thus you get a sharp rubbing. I ran into several of these of the Eyre family that Charlotte Bronte wrote about.

YOU CAN also buy rubbings made by professionals. Decorative as wall hangings. (A brass rubbing is made just like you used to do with pennies. You know — you put a piece of paper over a penny and rub it with a soft pencil.)

Newsmen in London says a book Monumental Brasses is the best on how-to-do-it. Big book stores in London like Foyle's will have it.

This man searches the countryside and rubs on weekends. On floor brasses: "It's difficult to get your paper held in place. It helps if you wear thick socks. Walk on the paper. This presses it down in the impressions and tends to keep it there."

Complaint from summer tourist. (Made a lot of trips and I know her.) "In Rome my husband got sick. So I bought full fare tickets and we flew home.

We were on an all-expense tour. The travel agent sold me an insurance policy for a refund in case, for some reason such as illness, we had to leave in the middle."

WHEN WE got home, I wrote the insurance people. They refused to pay saying I should have taken my husband to a doctor in Rome. The travel agent said he couldn't do anything about it. What would you do?"

I'd get a real mean lawyer and have somebody's head on a platter.

Art works restored

PARIS — In a musty Old World studio, among a clutter of beakers, palettes and gilt picture frames, pieces of a tragic jigsaw puzzle lie scattered on a worktable.

Some pieces are large, jagged-edged slabs. Many are minute slivers. Others are missing altogether.

Until Brittany separatists bombed Versailles, the puzzle was Jean Baptiste Debret's 19th-century masterpiece, The First Awarding of Legion of Honor Crosses at Invalides. A dozen other works must also be put together.

But Pierre-Antoine Paulet, the 84-year-old director of restoration at Versailles, declared: "All will be restored."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

An Esquimalt police constable was committed by Judge Fred Green to stand trial on a charge of assault causing bodily harm in provincial court Friday.

Constable James Askew, 38, was charged in a private complaint filed by Ronald Shingler, 33, of 613 Drake, in connection with an incident on Dec. 19, 1976.

Green made the ruling following an all-day preliminary hearing in which Douglas Christie acted for Shingler and Robert Higinbotham defended Askew.

A date for a preliminary hearing on a second charge of unlawful confinement has yet to be set.

Judge Harold Alder ordered the detention in custody of a 24-year-old charged in a firebombing incident Sept. 3 at the Empress Street home of an elderly couple.

Reginald John Green, 4668 Cordova Bay, is charged with wilfully setting fire to material likely to cause fire and criminal negligence causing bodily harm to 71-year-old Maria Sokalski.

A molotov cocktail, made of a pop bottle, gasoline and a soaked rag, was tossed into the bedroom window of 1136 Empress shortly after 5 a.m. Artem, 77, and Maria were asleep at the time.

Defence lawyer Darryl Woods elected trial by judge without jury and a preliminary hearing date of Oct. 19 was set.

A 22-year-old University of Victoria student received a conditional discharge after pleading guilty to assault causing bodily harm.

Randell Charles Krantz, normally a resident of Salmon Arm, also pleaded guilty to driving while suspended.

Crown counsel Don Laughton told the court Krantz was driving along Cedar Hill Cross Road at about 4 p.m., May 17, and stopped at Cook Street to speak to a driver whom Krantz thought was tailgating him.

A discussion arose and Krantz punched Kurt Tucque in the face, causing a seven-stitch wound and also breaking Tucque's glasses, Laughton stated.

Defence lawyer David McInnes said Krantz is an epileptic and the extreme provocation combined with the effects of the drugs he is required to take led to his uncharacteristic action.

McInnes applied for an absolute or conditional discharge because Krantz was in his professional year at UVic and hopes to become a teacher.

Laughton also stated that Krantz was suspended from driving Nov. 21, 1977, for medical reasons.

Alder asked if Krantz was getting into the right profession if he became frustrated over traffic.

Krantz was fined $100 for the driving under suspension and was given a conditional discharge on the assault conviction. Alder also placed Krantz on six months' probation, ordered him to pay the $100 damages for the glasses, and suggested an apology might be in order.

"Our streets are hazardous enough without people like you driving around," Alder told a 17-year-old before fining him $500.

After Corey Douglas Nelson, 623 Elderwood Place, pleaded guilty to dangerous driving, Laughton related a Sept. 9 incident which began shortly before 11 p.m. at Quadra and Hillside.

Laughton said Nelson, heading south on Quadra, was spotted by Victoria city police running a red light.

A chase, reaching speeds of 75 kmh, ensued around the Bay-Blanshard-Hillside area, ending when Nelson's vehicle went up a dead-end street.

However, Laughton continued, Nelson and his passengers jumped out of the vehicle and fled, only to be found later near where the chase began.

A stay of proceedings was entered on a charge of obstructing a peace officer.

A 29-year-old woman who pleaded guilty to 12 counts of false pretences and one charge of leaving the scene of an accident was given a nominal one-day jail term and two years' probation by Alder.

Laughton listed 12 bad cheques, written mostly during a two-week period in June, totalling $420.85 on the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce to businesses. All cheques, Laughton said, were returned marked not sufficient funds.

On the driving charge, Laughton said Patricia Mary McCall, 1029 Esquimalt, hit three parked cars on Langley Street about midnight, Aug. 10, before getting hung up on a guardrail on Broughton. Laughton said Miss McCall somehow got free and proceeded to rear-end another parked car before Constable Bruce Cowick of the Esquimalt police was able to stop her in the 600-block Esquimalt.

Defence lawyer Brian MacKenzie told the court his client was undergoing severe emotional stress over the illness and subsequent death of her boyfriend. He said Miss McCall was on her way to the police station when stopped.

Besides the one-day jail term and probation, Miss McCall was also ordered to make restitution to all stores affected by the transactions.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Karl Laughton Rice, 28, of 1080 Dunford, $500; James Rupert Ballindine, 2053 Chaucer, $400; and Stanley Allen Winkle, 30, no fixed address, $200.

Tactic Rapped On Ross Dam

SEATTLE (AP) — Opponents of the High Ross Dam project have charged that Seattle City Light superintendent Gordon Vickery is trying to pressure Canadians so he can get a good settlement in the project.

Vickery said earlier this week that City Light will proceed with the project to add 36.6 metres to the top of the dam because Canadian officials do not appear to be serious about negotiating a settlement.

But Richard Aramburu, attorney for 17 American conservation groups opposed to the dam addition plan, said his clients will ask the Federal Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., to review the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's recent approval of the dam project.

The latest criticism of Vickery was prompted by remarks he made in a letter to the Energy Regulatory Commission.

Aramburu said the letter, dated Aug. 29, "is an incredible attempt by Vickery to railroad Ross Dam and to mislead (the commission) into thinking (the project) has approval of the Park Service."

Here's How to Save On Sump Pumps

By A. J. HAND

Q — I have a problem at my home with window wells that fill up with rainwater. Can you advise me where I can get information on the automatic sump pump you discussed a few months back? The submersible appears to be what I need. — S. L. Rubin

A — Just check the Yellow Pages under "Pumps." I'm sure you will see a few display ads for sump pump dealers and installers. Any of them should have the information and pumps you need. Note that submersibles are fairly expensive. You might consider draining all the flooding wells to a single point served by a single pump rather than using one pump per well. For example, you could use plastic pipe leading to a heavy plastic trash can with a submersible pump at the bottom, as shown in the sketch. This might be cheaper than several pumps.

Q — I saw in your column a few weeks back a special tool for squeezing brads into picture frames. The tool was priced at $16.95! Why pay for an expensive tool for an occasional job? I use my slip-joint pliers. To prevent marring, pad the jaws with tape or a bit of cardboard. — H. L. Walton

A — That's a good idea, but it will only work on relatively narrow frames; the jaws will only open an inch or two and some frames are much wider than that.

Q — I must replace a rear porch roof now covered with heavy tar paper that is cracking badly. The roof is about 16x20, pitched about 15 inches. Could I use the fiberglass-based roofing you mentioned in your colum? — C. L. Pattee

A — No. Fiberglass-based asphalt roofing is made in shingles only, and your roof isn't pitched enough for shingles. They require about four inches of pitch per foot to be watertight, though sometimes two inches per foot is enough. Your roof is only pitched about one inch per foot. Your best bet is to use roll roofing which is like shingle material in rolls. I assume this is what you already have on your roof (not tar paper, which has no granules on it). It is not the most durable roofing material available, but it should last about 10 years, and it's cheap and easy to install.

If your old roofing is in really bad shape remove it before putting down new roll roofing. But if it is still smooth, without buckles and large rips or tears, you can put your new roof right down over it.

Some types of roll roofing are meant to overlap just a few inches. Other types overlap more than half their three-foot width. The latter are more durable and watertight.

COFFEE STILL 5 CENTS

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Twenty-seven years ago, a cup of coffee at Murray's Pharmacy cost a nickel. Today, the price is still five cents.

"I definitely feel I can maintain that five-cent cup of coffee for the next 10 years, or until I retire," says L. F. "Swede" Murray, the owner.

Whether in need of medicine or not, a steady clientele can be found lining Murray's fountain counter sipping coffee and munching 10-cent cookies, their price recently increased five cents because of the baker's concern with inflation.

"Actually, I feel it costs 13 cents to serve a cup of coffee with today's prices," said Murray, who sells about 200 cups, including eight for himself, each day.

"I know I'm not making a profit," he said.

An interesting study made in the United States and in Finland should be of interest to pregnant women. It was suggested by these research teams that sauna bathing during pregnancy should be limited to just a few minutes. Even tub bathing in very hot water for a protracted period of time should be avoided.

Colds Defy 50,000 'Cures' family

By JANE E. BRODY
New York Times

Right now as you are reading this, many persons are sneezing, coughing, blowing, shivering or otherwise enduring the miseries of man's most common illness, the cold. If you don't already have one yourself, odds are three in four that you will before the year's out. Even if you escape a cold, you may not be so lucky when it comes to flu, which attacks fewer people but usually with greater severity.

Colds and influenza comprise the vast majority of what are known as acute respiratory infections.

Contrary to popular belief, cold weather or getting chilled does not cause colds or make them worse. Although it has not been systematically studied, doctors suspect that fatigue, undue stress and poor diet increase one's susceptibility to colds and flu.

There is some evidence suggesting that large daily doses of vitamin C may have a slight preventative effect in warding off colds and flu, but according to Dr. C. Gordon Douglas Jr., head of the Infectious Unit at the University of Rochester, the effect is too small to warrant large-scale use of a substance whose long-term hazards are not known.

Flu vaccine, prepared fresh each year to protect against the dominant virus strains expected that season, is recommended only for individuals considered likely to suffer serious or life-threatening complications, including those with chronic heart and lung diseases and persons over 65. The vaccine protects about two-thirds of those immunized.

Despite the 50,000 or more different products Americans dose themselves with, there is no cure for the common cold or for influenza. Nor do these "remedies" shorten the duration of respiratory illnesses.

At best, if used wisely, some may make it easier to endure the siege. The trick is to select those products that can best relieve your symptoms and avoid drug combinations that are irrational and possible hazardous.

For example, despite their widespread presence in cold preparations, antihistamines are of no value and may actually increase and thicken the mucous in your lungs and set the stage for bronchial complications. Tablets containing potent drugs that constrict blood vessels, such as epinephrine, should also be avoided. Nor have studies shown that large doses of vitamin C can abort a cold or flu.

Persons with diabetes, high blood pressure, heart disease or thyroid problems or those already taking prescription drugs should check with their doctors before dosing themselves with any cold remedy.

Since colds and flu are viral infections, antibiotics (which attack bacteria and fungi) are worthless and may actually be dangerous, since they cause side effects only if you develop a secondary bacterial infection, such as an ear infection, sinusitus or pneumonia.

Then what SHOULD you do for a cold or the flu? The old home remedy of rest, warmth, fluids and aspirin is still your best bet. Lots of fluids — hot or cold — help to loosen the secretions in your respiratory tract, decreasing complications like bronchitis, ear infection and sinusitis.

Rest is somewhat harder to justify. But if you are tired or taking drugs that make you drowsy or you have a bad cough, which can be aggravated by breathing cold air or running around, it may be best to stay home and rest for a few days.

Dr. Douglas says the decision to stay home should be based on the severity of your symptoms — if fever is over 100, if you have any severe symptoms such as a bad cough or muscle aches, or if you feel you can't work, stay home. To reduce chances of relapses or complications of flu, it's best to take a couple of extra days to recover at home.

For those with severe flu symptoms, Dr. Douglas recommends a prescription drug — amantadine — which can relieve symptoms and 'possibly shorten the illness.

Call a doctor if you start to cough up blood, if you have a high fever that doesn't respond to aspirin, if you develop an earache, or if you have severe symptoms that persist beyond a week.

Otherwise, the best you can do is self-treat your symptoms. Aspirin (or acetaminophem) can relieve headache, muscle aches and reduce fever. Gargling with warm salty water can relieve a sore throat and use of a humidifier or vaporizer will help a cough. If you have a dry unproductive cough, a cough suppressant can relieve it. Expectorants can help you bring up thick mucous in your chest.

Nasal sprays or drops containing decongestants can relieve nasal and sinus stuffiness (be sure to stick to the recommended dose and don't use them longer than three or four days at a time). However, oral decongestants, antihistamines, and combinations thereof are not generally recommended by infectious disease experts. For the minimal relief they may give, they're not worth the risk they entail.

Colds and influenza are viral infections. Although both tend to be catchall diagnoses for a variety of related symptoms, they are actually quite distinct ailments. Colds can be caused by any of perhaps 150 different kinds of viruses, which is why a person can get several colds every year, year in a year out, and why no effective cold vaccine has ever been developed. With each cold, you develop an often short-lived immunity to the particular causative viruses going around.

Influenza, on the other hand, is caused by relatively few virus types, and reasonably effective vaccines have been developed against certain flu viruses. However, flu viruses tend to change genetically through the years and resurface in forms that people are no longer immune to. Hence, the same person who gets two or three colds every year may get the flu only once in four or five years.

Colds usually start gradually with a runny nose and sneezing and feeling of chilliness (although fever is rare in adults and tends to be low-grade in children). Cough, headache, sore throat, malaise and loss of appetite and sense of smell are common accompaniments. In the later stages, nasal dishcarges become and thick and stuffy. Symptoms typically last three days to a week, but sometimes complications like sinusitus, ear infection, laryngitis and bronchitis lead to a more prolonged illness.

Flu, on the other hand, starts abruptly, usually with a high fever (up to 103 in adults, higher in children), a dry cough and often headache. The typical flu victim feels sick enough to stay in bed and has aches and pains in his muscles and back. His nose may be congested, his throat sore, and his eyes sensitive to light. Nausea and vomiting may accompany flu, but diarrhea rarely does. There is no such thing as "intestinal flu" — the vast majority of diarrheal illnesses are bacterial infections.

With DOROTHY FRASER

A new line of Italian dresses at Gibson's . . .

We had a bit of a busman's holiday in Seattle last week and must say we fell hard for some of the things we saw in the best stores . . . but we positively flipped when we got back and visited Gibson's . . . who have just got a new line of dresses from Italy with the Sarti label!" . . These have all the best of the new fashion features . . . Big, loose, soft . . . yet somehow restrained . . . Simply anyone can wear them . . . and if you think this new look is not for you . . . go in to Gibson's and try one on! . . . Well, to get back to the Sartis . . . they're all pure wool challis . . . so fine they're almost transparent! . . . There are four different styles . . . three of them delightful pansy prints in shades of coppers, blues and olive . . . a fourth with an intricate floral-paisley print . . . These are transitional dresses which will take you from daytime to dinner . . . the sort of thing we all hope to find, but seldom do! . . . They're one and two-piece models, with blouson tops and dolman sleeves . . . with the exception of a one-piece dress with Mao neckline and tie belt . . . One has a V-neck . . . another a gathered neck and a third a boat neck . . . all of them beautiful for showing off your jewellery! . . . And if you'd like a gorgeous coat to wear with one of these beauties, look at the new mohair with its wide, ruched collar and braid trim . . . The moondust shade is a perfect complement to whichever shade of dress you choose . . . Gibson's, 708 View St., 384-5913.

Walk blithely in Amalfis . . .

Softness, beautiful craftsmanship and refined styling are just three of the qualities that make Amalfi shoes so outstanding and so much in demand by women who appreciate the good things of life! . . . We told you about Amalfi sandals for fall recently . . . now for the walking type shoes which we saw at Munday's this week . . . There are two with low stacked heels in real classic Amalf styles which look so elegant with casual skirts or pantsuits . . . "Tiranno", a shoe with a kiltie tongue, in black, a nice shade of brown, and dark green . . . "Tarocco" has a lighter-than-usual crepe sole with a slight wrap . . . moc welt and a little tassel on the vamp . . . This comes in brandy or camel calf . . . great neutrals which look wonderful with this year's earth tones in clothes . . . Both of these models are tagged at $78 . . . With a little higher stacked heel there's "Curio" . . . a beautifully-fitting walking shoe with gored front and kiltie tongue . . . Comes in brandy, black and brown leather at $85 . . . Same price for "Frangia", a dressier shoe with the same mid heel . . . in black or brown suede with a touch of lizard print calf trim on vamp and heel, high fringed tongue . . . And "Nortaio" which has a ribbed rubber sole, mid stack heel, moc vamp and a bit of welting . . . This comes in camel and navy, and costs $85 . . . Finally, there's "Dado" . . . an espadrille of very soft nappa calf with rope wrapped wedge on a crepe sole . . . Sahara or brown, priced at $60 . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas St., 383-2211.

Gorgeous things from Cojana . . .

We'd meant to tell you about some entirely different things now catching many an eye at Roy Imports . . . then all of a sudden a parcel arrived from Cojana of London . . . containing such a completely smashing outfit that everything else just flew out of our head! . . . Not to keep you in suspense . . . it's a 3-pce. suit . . . wool Chanel jacket with mandarin collar, silvet trim and silver buttons . . . skirt with front pleats, in the most beautiful shades of blue in a blurry stripe-y effect . . . Long, full sleeved and tie neck blouse which is silk and wool, and printed to match the suit exactly . . . Even the way the stripes are matched on the blouse, jacket and skirt is something to marvel at! . . . This soft and silvery ensemble is versatile too . . . blouse and skirt can be worn by themselves as a dressy dress . . . Like we said, smashing! And it's one of a kind . . . a size 14 . . . with a price tag of $685 . . . There were two more Cojana 2-pce. dresses in this shipment . . . An angora and wool blend in a tweedy vertical striped effect . . . very slimming . . . with pleated skirt, top and matching scarf . . . top can also be worn with other things . . . These, too, are practically one-of-a-kind . . . There's a size 16 in shades of blue and aubergine, and a size 10 in plum shades . . . priced at $225 . . . Cojana, you may know, is London's finest dress house . . . where quality is combined with fashion . . . Roy Imports, 435 Simcoe St., 384-4932 and 9807 Third St., Sidney, 656-3522.

Vaporized cookware makes good food better . . .

Not only is Vita-Love a complete supermarket of highest quality natural foods . . . but it now provides you with the wherewithall to cook these foods in a new, better way . . . a method which uses little or no water . . . locks in the goodness, and prevents shrinkage . . . This is accomplished by the vaporized cookware which is exclusive to Vita-Love . . . It's made of three thicknesses of stainless steel . . . Food cooked by this new method retains all its nutrients . . . color doesn't change, and everything comes out tasting the way the Good Lord meant it to taste! . . . Really we think you should consider making yourself a life-time gift of a complete set of this waterless cookware . . . There are about 12 pieces in a whole gamut of sizes . . . You can use it for everything you'd normally cook in an oven . . . using far less heat in the process . . . Regular price of a set is $350 . . . but in order to introduce it to Victoria, Vita-Love is offering it . . . for a limited time . . . for only $250 . . . Sounds great to us, and we urge you to look into it . . . you'll never regret your investment . . . By the way, we'd like to tell you that Vita-Love is sponsoring a concert at the McPherson Playhouse on Oct. 22 . . . when Joseph Pino will sing classics in English, French, Italian and Spanish . . . Tickets are now available at . . . Vita-Love Health Products, James Bay Square, Simcoe and Menzies St., 382-6022.

New Bleyle and Hobbnobber separates . . .

Since this is being written over a week since the new Bleyle shipment arrived at Charmante's . . . and people have been beating a path to Hillside ever since the news first leaked out . . . we hesitate to say too much in case sizes are depleted . . . But anyway, here's what came in . . . and you might still be lucky . . . A 3-button blazer in either mocha or camel with matching pants and skirts . . . also pants and skirts in a mocha/cream check . . . the skirts in an attractive front dirndl style . . . There's a check grouping in camel/cream which includes blazers, pants and front-dirndl skirts . . . and a really smart walking coat in a plain mocha shade . . . perfect to wear with pants or skirt . . . A full range of Hooper pure wool pullovers and cardigans in marine, pearl grey and mocha . . . A smart 2-pce. pantsuit in marine flannel with knit collar and cuffs. . . . Another smart group of co-ordinates are those by Hobbnobber . . . 2-button blazers with patch pockets, a skirt with two pleats in front and one in back, and pants . . . All these in flannel grey wool-nylon blend . . . There are co-ordinating checks . . . a lined blazer . . . unlined shirt jacket . . . vest, pants and slightly gathered skirt . . . This is a very nice group of well-tailored, moderately-priced separates which you can mix or match . . . Slacks are $46, skirts $50, shirt jackets $72 and blazers $90 and $92 . . . Charmante's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1555.

Time to choose your cruise! . . .

It's that time of year again . . . when those of us who can take winter holidays are turning our thoughts to cruises . . . and believe us, cruising is the only way to go! . . . We got a magnificent color brochure from Paulin's on Monday describing the Sitmar cruise program for 1979 . . . The two ships involved, the T.T.S. Fairsea and the T.S.S. Fairwind, are really fine ships (former Cunard ships entirely renovated) with friendly, attentive Italian crews . . . There are three types of cruises starting next January . . . 14-day trans-Panama Canal cruises . . . 7, 10 and 11-day cruises to Mexico from L.A. . . . 7, 10, 11 and 14-day cruises to the Caribbean and South America, sailing from Ft. Lauderdale . . . What makes these cruises more than ordinarily attractive is that in 1979 on the 14-day trans-Panama and 14-day Caribbean cruises you will be given FREE air fare from Victoria to join your ship and return . . . and on the other shorter cruises you'll receive special rates for air travel . . . We really can't go in to all the ports of call etc. here . . . it would take most of a page . . . But do drop in to Paulin's and ask them for a brochure . . . They'll be happy to elaborate on all these Sitmar cruises of which they think very highly indeed! . . . Whether it's excitement, fun or just sun and relaxation . . . combined with gourmet food, top-flight entertainment . . . you'll find everything your heart desires on a Sitmar cruise! . . . See . . . Paulin Travel, 532 Broughton St., 382-9168.

Be the hostess with the mostess! . . .

It used to worry us watching the gingerly way our bridge club members picked and poked at the candies with which we hoped to sweeten the play . . . and then left most of them uneaten . . . No more, though! Since we started putting Purdy's in those little dishes on the bridge table, there's been nothing but delighted grins! . . . Purdy's Party Mix is especially good for such an occasion . . . Small, bit-size chocolate drops with smarties and jelly beans . . . Or maybe mixed nuts, which seem to placate the weight watchers . . . Mountain Mix, consisting of raisins, peanuts and bits of chocolate is another good choice . . . along with those small, vari-colored Party Mints . . . Just recently Purdy's have started to carry orange and lemon slices . . . which are really delicious, with their genuine fruit flavor . . . And Jelly Beans . . . which you certainly won't turn your noses up at once you taste them . . . they're as different from ordinary supermarket jelly beans as caviar is from lowly meat paste! . . . More hints for bridge table nibbling . . . Coconut clusters . . . or raisin or peanut clusters . . . Cut each one in four and you have just the right bite size . . . Add a few of the quite new Mint Truffles . . . really yummy with their mint-flavored fudgey centres and green mint dollop on top! . . . As we said . . . your guests will appreciate being offered those incomparable goodies from Purdy's . . . and your reputation as a hostess will soar! . . . Purdy's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1241, Mayfair Shopping Centre, 385-5032 and Empress Hotel, 385-3555.

DEAR ABBY: Please help us solve a problem that I know many grandparents are having now.

Our daughter lives about a thousand miles from us. She left her husband, took their son and daughter, and is now living with another man.

We are planning a trip to see her and our grandchildren, so I wrote and told her that because we do not approve of her living with a man she is not married to, we refuse to stay with her, but will stay at a nearby motel instead. She responded by saying that she had plenty of room in her home, and if we didn't stay with her, the children would start asking questions, so if we wanted to see our grandchildren, we would have to stay with her.

We love our grandchildren very much and want to see them, but we don't know what to do or how to answer our daughter.

Please help.—SHATTERED

DEAR SHATTERED: Your daughter is holding the trump card, so if you want to see your granchildren you had better stay with her. Staying with your daughter doesn't necessarily mean that you approve of her lifestyle.

You don't say how old the granchildren are, but if they're old enough to "start asking questions," it's time your daughter started giving them some truthful answers.

DEAR ABBY: Although I'm only 14, I look much older, and I've been out with guys who are 20 and even 21. (I sometimes say I'm almost 18, and they believe me.)

My problem is that I am turned on very easily. I still have fairly high moral standards, but when a guy I like kisses me, my resistance melts away.

My friends say I'm cute, and I have a great figure. So far, I've gone only to "second and third base," but I'm afraid one of these times I won't be ble to control myself. Am I normal?—WEAK IN THE KNEES

DEAR WEAK: The emotions you feel while being kissed are normal to everyone, but new to you. You are much too young to be dating guys who are 20 and 21. And furthermore, you would be wise to postpone the heavy kissing until you are older and sufficiently experienced to control yourself.

If, at age 14, you've gone "second and third base," you had better get out of that league or you'll be known as the "Home Run Queen" by the time you're 15.

DEAR ABBY: I taught school and didn't marry until I was 34. Vincent was 36 and had never been married either. He lived with his mother, but said we would have a place of our own when we married. We did, but in less than six months his mother got "lonesome" and moved in with us.

Our house is small, but it does have two bedrooms, so I fixed one up for Mother J., with a new TV, which she rarely turns on. She comes to our bedroom and sits on our bed (even when we are IN it) and watches whatever we're watching. After we turn out our lights she sits in a chair in our bedroom and reads with a flashlight. And she doesn't leave until she thinks we are both asleep.

There is no lock on our bedroom door. Mother J. has two other children. They never ask her to their homes, but they run in to say "hi" to her on their way somewhere else.

I am at the breaking point, Abby. I have considered asking Vincent to make a choice between his mother and me but I'm afraid he'd choose her. I can't take this much longer. What should I do?—ASHLAND.

DEAR ASHLAND: Have a long talk with Vincent. Explain your need for privacy, and ask him to convey it to his mother. Insist on a lock for your bedroom door. If Vincent refuses, then face it: he has already made his choice.

Quilts for Charity A Worthwhile Plan

By MAY E. MacLEAN

The mail this week brought a number of inquiries about quilts, both pieced and applique. If you are fortunate and tour one of the several pioneer villages around the country, you will invariably see the ladies in their old-fashioned dresses working on quilting.

The Mennonites, who are very industrious in this field, hold their annual auctions of quilts to raise funds for World Relief. Last year I was at Black Creek Pioneer Village and saw over 80 lovely examples of their handwork.

One lady has written to me asking how to donate her quilt to a certain charity. It's her own design and has used the block or square method of working the quilting on a 24-inch frame.

The best way of going about this is to contact the charity direct. I am sure that they would be only too happy to either auction your work if they have an annual affair or to arrange to raffle it off. Either way it will help raise money for a very worthwhile cause.

For those of you who have enquired about certain quilt designs, the following are the ones I have in my range.

No. 7250, Star & Crescent; No. 7255, Colonial Wreath; No. 7268, Sunflower; No. 7354, Rose of Sharon; No. 7356, Basket of Flowers; No. 7401, Log Cabin; No. 7402, Suffolk Puffs; No. 7650, Borrow & Return; No. 7651, Hollyhocks; No. 7660, Bridal Wreath; No. 7661, Oak Leaf; No. 7664, Wreath of Grapes; No. 7665, Tulip Design; No. 7723, Cathedral Windows; No. 7733, Peacocks.

Many of you have written asking for specific designs which I am trying to locate to add to my patterns in the near future. Meanwhile, have you ever considered making a really old fashioned patchwork quilt? These are what our great-grandmothers made when every scrap of material was precious. Scraps from any material that came to hand whether it was old curtains, dresses or a ballgown. No matter what the size or shape, it was lovingly worked into a magnificent cover, the pieces hand-stitch with embroidery stitches in matching or contrasting silk thread.

My pattern this week. Leaflet No. 7359 illustrates numerous of these old-fashioned embroidery stitches used in the making of patchwork quilts. If you are enthusiastic about trying something different, this leaflet will give you many ideas for a different kind of quilt, one that will be the envy of your friends. Finish your quilt with an old-fashioned frill for added charm!

To order Leaflet No. 7359, or any other leaflet mentioned, send 75 cents for each, PLUS a stamped self addressed return envelope. If you do not have a stamp or envelope, please enclose an extra 25 cents to cover the cost of handling and print your name and address. Send to:- May E. MacLean, "KNIT & CHAT", 486 Montford Drive, Dollard des Ormeaux, Roxboro, P.Q.

Please be sure to state pattern numbers correctly when ordering and to enclose your stamped self addressed envelope for faster service. Allow about two weeks for normal delivery. All back numbers of my series are available, price 75 cents; catalogue of gift & bazaar items, price 25 cents. All orders must be accompanied by a stamped return envelope, or an extra 25 cents.

WANT SOME PAINT? THEN HOP TO IT

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Hops can do more than give your favorite beer its bite. The little plant buds also could help in painting your neighborhood saloon or in building the bar you lean against.

A British scientist says world brewers each year throw away thousands of tons of hops waste previously believed to be worthless.

Dr. Gerald Griffin of Brunel University in Uxbridge, near London, said he has discovered several uses for spent hops. He has told the national meeting of the American Chemical Society that old hops could become particle-board for furniture, artificial fuel logs or drying resins for paint.

"It's really a reflection of the age we live in that we are all scratching around in trash cans to see what we are throwing away," Griffin said in an interview. "But it is necessary."

"If we could gather together all our old hops, for example, we've calculated we could replace 40 per cent of the material imported to the United Kingdom for chipboards," Griffin said.

Griffin, who normally works on bio-degradable plastics, became interested in hops in his other capacity as a visiting lecturer at the Royal College of Arts in London.

Adrian Emck, a furniture design student, wanted to create furniture that used recycled materials and asked Griffin for suggestions.

"We ended up looking at brewery waste and found that large quantities of hops are just boiled in the beer-making process," Griffin said. "They use about six or seven per cent by weight and then pay to get rid of it after paying about $2,000 a ton for it."

Griffin said it costs British brewers about $40 a ton to have the wet waste removed and discarded. The waste has so little nutritional value that it cannot be used as animal feed and so little nitrogen that it cannot be used for fertilizer.

"We set to work trying to dry it out and make a board out of it," he said. "At that point, we discovered that its natural resin was not washed out in making beer and could be used to make the boards."

With the addition of some simple chemicals, the resin became the glue for the particle-board that forms when the mixture is compressed and dried. The resulting board is hard and durable, he said.

If hydrocarbon wastes are added to the hops mixture, the material can be pressed into fuel logs for burning, he said.

Griffin also discovered that acetone from the resin dried into a surface coat good for paint.

"This stuff can be useful," he said. "It just doesn't make any sense carting it away."

Budgies Need Mom For 40 Days

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: Well, we finally got them. Baby budgies, that is. They seem to be doing great. Our question for now: When can we separate them from Mom and Dad? —T.A.

DEAR T.A.: Parent parakeets are no longer essential when the kids reach 40 days of age. However, these youngsters are still pretty awkward and should have food all over the place and water within easy reach. A couple of weeks more and the kids can handle a normal cage setup.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Since I frequently have to replace plants in my acquarium, I am concerned about bringing some fish parasites of some sort in with them. Is there some way I can prevent this? —D.N.

DEAR D.N.: Parasite-packing plants are indeed a possibility. It is difficult if not impossible to be sure the plant you pick is parasite-free, hence precautions are advisable. (1) Wash the plants thoroughly in tap water. (2) Quarantine plants in a tank (without fish) for eight to ten days at a temperature of 80 degrees Fahrenheit. Adding two milligrams of acriflavine to a gallon of water in that plant quarantine tank would further reduce some parasites and spores and even algae.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Could a mouse have more babies in a year than a hamster?

DEAR F.A.: That would depend on the mouse (and on the hamster). There would be no contest if the North American meadow mouse was involved. It's the most prolific breeder among mice and among mammals generally. The average litter size is only five but it may repeat this process a staggering (understandably) 17 times a year.

DEAR DR. MILLER: What, for heaven's sake, can you do for your cat when he is attacked by little black flies? They buzz around his head and drive him crazy. I don't know where they came from but I tried flea spray and that drove him crazier. I hope there is an answer in case they come back to bug him again. —I.E.

Wonderful World of Animals

DEAR I.E.: Using flea spray around the face of a cat or a dog is inadvisable, even for the few which will tolerate it. The product, sprayed on a rubber glove, could then be rubbed into some head areas but, unfortunately, flea spray is not particularly effective against flies, mosquitos, and similar pests. There are, however, repellent insecticide combinations which are designed to cope with such flies. Be sure, of course, the label indicates the product is safe for use on cats.

DEAR DR. MILLER: After years and years of my begging and begging to have a dog, my father has suddenly said I can. I'm all off balance. Now he's said yes, I can't think what kind of dog I want. I DO want one, but they all look good to me and I know I can have only one. How can I choose Mr. Right? —J.D.

DEAR J.D.: A hard question. The answer depends on a number of things. Do you live in the country where a big, active dog can get the exercise he needs? Or do you have the time and a legal open park-like area in the city to run such a dog? Do you want a guard dog or a dog who will be everybody's friend? My first recommendation is to bring your father into the decision-making. He will probably be much happier with your dog, and accept it much more easily, if you choose your new best friend together.

Too many of us still consider mental illness shameful and embarrassing. As a result, we tend to avoid the mentally ill.

The 4-page folder What Are Mental Illnesses? states that mental illness is now our most urgent health problem in Canada. On any given day, nearly half of all our hospital beds are occupied by the mentally or emotionally ill.

The folder also explains that mental breakdowns have many possible causes. Some are physical, others psychological and still others social.

Scientists today are concentrating closely on discovering the causes of and possible cures for mental illnesses. Men and women all over the world are searching for the answers and new developments are constantly taking place.

You, too, can help. The attitude of the community is one of the main factors which determine if a mentally ill person can be rehabilitated. Acceptance by family, friends, neighbors and colleagues is urgently needed when the doctors have done their bit.

For the folder write to: Communications Department, Canadian Mental Health Association, 2160 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ont. M4S 2Z3.

your health

By L. L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Dizziness is a very common complaint. there are few more distressing feelings than the whirling sensation of dizziness. Along with the unpleasantness of imbalance, there frequently is a sick feeling in the pit of the stomach, accompanied by nausea and, occasionally, vomiting.

The lack of stability brings with it a sense of anxiety which is almost as distressing as the dizziness itself.

The terror of repeated attacks of dizziness stems from the fact that many patients seem to feel that it may mean an impending stroke, brain tumor, cancer or the possible loss of hearing.

In almost all instances, these fears are unfounded. The complaint of dizziness, so frequently brought to the attention of doctors, is frequently confused with headache, faintness or other symptoms related to the head.

Real dizziness is a very definite sensation. A person with true dizziness feels that objects are revolving around him. He may even feel that he is revolving around fixed objects, and may have a sensation of falling forward or backward.

The centre of balance lies deep within the inner ear where there are three tiny semi-circular canals. These constantly adjust to every position of the head and body. This sensitive balance mechanism can be disturbed by any number of abnormal conditions outside the inner ear itself. This is important to remember because even though the sense of balance is in the inner ear it does not necessarily mean that disease is present in this particular area.

Here are only a few of the conditions that can affect balance and cause dizziness, even if the inner ear itself is perfectly health:

1) High and low pressure;
2) Excessive intake of fluid and salt;
3) Circulatory diseases and arteriosclerosis of the blood vessels, especially those of the brain;
4) Excess tobacco, alcohol and caffeine;
5) Allergies;
6) Sudden rapid changes of position;
7) Unusual reactions to drugs;
8) Motion sickness in a car, plane, train or ship;
9) Sudden falls of blood sugar and stomach upsets;
10) Chronic infections of the ear, and eye disorders.

Even from this incomplete list, it is plain to see how meticulous an examination must be to establish the exact cause of dizziness.

Many readers write and say that they have Meniere's disease, which terrifies them. Meniere's disease is a very specific condition and is not a synonym for dizziness. When it is suspected, highly technical audiometric (hearing) studies are done to confirm it. "Caloric" and "rotatory" tests are also important to the diagnosis.

Dizziness is a complex symptom which is not made better by neglect, homemade diagnosis or unnecessary fear. Rather, it should be brought immediately to the attention of a doctor.

Bio-dex

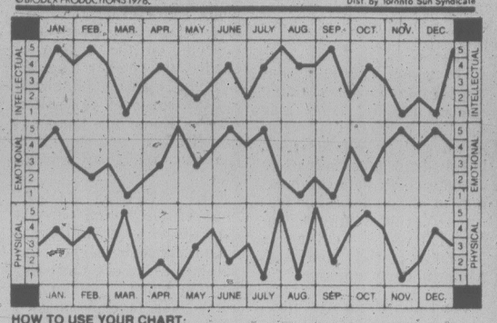
©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978. Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle — Be extremely careful if you have to go on a long trip in the near future. Beware of the unexpected.

6-10 Neutral Cycle — Don't waste time with household chores. Finish them quickly and then take time to relax.

11-15 Positive Cycle — If you've been putting off an important decision now's the time to bite the bullet and make up your mind.

In 1911, with only skis and dog teams for transportation, Roald Amundsen braced the fierce winds and incredible cold of the Antarctic in his search for the South pole. Did his biorhythms help? In the final few days of his journey Amundsen had a steadily increasing Bio-dex reading. This reached a double high on December 14th — the day he became the first man to stand at the South Pole.

Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle — You'll need some extra sleep. Your brainpower is low and extra rest will restore it.

6-10 Neutral Cycle — If you've been putting off a minor chore around the house don't let it go any longer. It could prove costly.

11-15 Positive Cycle — Make a special effort to please someone you care for. You'll be repaid with lots of love.

How many natural cycles, or biorhythms, are there? Three at least — you see them charted every day in this newspaper. Then you have to add the daily cycle of wakefulness and sleep, and the three or more times a day when we feel "hungry". Recent research shows strong indications of further cycles: compassion, perception, and self awareness. But in my opinion the three main biorhythms remain as your best guide on how to tackle the day ahead.

'Moral Violation'

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The voluntary sterilization of three men in Rome as a birth control measure has been condemned by the Vatican as "a serious violation of moral law." A Vatican Radio commentary Friday deplored the "preoccupying indifference" with which it said news of the sterilizations were received by the public.

GARDENING

There's a Shrub for All Purposes

"During the September-October planting period many requests are received for names of shrubs suited to certain positions in the home garden.

To obtain an outstanding shrub for a given location it would be wise to consult the many books in the public library, then visit plant outlets and the small local nurseries for a source of supply.

Most nurserymen propagate a few beautiful shrubs whose names are unknown to gardeners, but the stock is usually small and insufficient to warrant advertising.

The shrubs listed below are common to most gardens on the southern end of Vancouver Island. Their main attributes are easy availability, they are comparatively cheap, not difficult to grow nor extremely particular as to soils, and once planted require a minimum of attention.

The genus Viburnum contains a number of attractive species ranging from four feet to eighteen feet in height, which are prized for their bloom, fragrance, berries or autumn color, or a combination of these desirable features. Varieties may be obtained which cover a blooming period from midwinter to early summer.

Viburnum fragrans, flowering from mid-December to February, likes a sunny protected spot for its early blooms. Viburnum tinus (larustinus) loves sun, for its buds are now showing and its pinkish bloom will appear in any mild spell over winter with a final burst of color in spring. A smaller shrub, V. carlesi with its pinky-white bloom prefers a little shelter but well repays a little care in placing with its fragrance.

Viburnum burkwoodi is fragrant too, growing to about six feet, evergreen, main flowering in spring with a few blooms through the growing season. V.plicatum a good buy for the average garden. V. rhytidophyllum is a fine evergreen for a shady corner when not allowed to become leggy and straggling.

Viburnum davidi is a choice plant for the base of trees or against a massive rock in a pocket by itself.

FOR SHADE the Aucubas are useful in a well-prepared soil not saturated in winter. Cotoneaster simonsi, and Cydonia rubra grandiflora are also adaptable. Everything depends on the degree of shade, or whether dappled sunlight is present. In shade not too dense the variegated form of Euonymus japonicus is effective, and for light shade the Abelias are worth a place.

FOR AUTUMN COLOR most of the Spireas give a good showing, as will Kolkwitzia amabilis; Hypericum patulum and Forsythias can be included. Euonymus alatus is a favorite in good gardens. Berberis hookeri, B.stenophylla are good, and B.calliantha turns into a ball of fire.

WINTER BERRIES are found on Viburnums, Aucuba, Berberis, especially B. wilsoni, Cotoneasters with C.franchetti outstanding; Daphne mezereum, and Euonymus alatus bring birds to the garden.

FOR FRAGRANCE we have the Viburnums mentioned above, Choisya ternata commonly called the Mexican Orange, and the Daphnies of which D.mezereum is good for a small garden, while d.ordora, a dwarf evergreen, is very fragrant in summer and a shrub which will cover a fairly large area in a few years.

Much more could be said about shrubs, but this abbreviated list will assist in choosing plants suitable for certain purposes. Those of us living in this most favored part of Canada have a large collection from which to choose.

The term 'shrubs' is reserved for evergreen, deciduous, flowering or non-flowering plants which grow with a number of stems from a rootstock. It does not include the evergreen coniferous plants such as yew, juniper, retinospora, arborvitae, pine, cedars, firs, or spruces. These classify as coniferous trees.

The smaller species of conifers which terminate at eight to twelve feet often can be used as a background for many of the shrubs mentioned here, and form a permanent green planting for the winter months. Colored shrub foliage and winterberries against a green background are greatly enhanced and can be a feature of the garden.

Shrubs have used other than as feature plants chosen for color, flowers, fragrance, and suitability to a given location.

They can be used as screens for garbage cans and compost heaps, screens along a fence line for privacy or wind protection, as sound barriers and fume filters, and as an informal hedge. Also convenient for planting in odd corners, round the base of trees, or as temporary fillers between widely spaced plants with the idea of using them elsewhere when permanent plants fill the space.

Several excellent winter-flowered shrubs are a feature of local gardens, but need careful placement with a background planting which protects them from cold north and northeast winds.

Some gardeners have an idea a large shrub or a small ornamental tree would look well in the centre of a lawn. This is true in lawns such as seen in public parks and small estates, but not wise in the small lawn on one city lot.

If a plant is set into a small lawn the inconvenience in mowing should be considered, and the gardener must be prepared to weed the lawn by hand on bended knees. Weed killers and fertilizers containing weed killers have caused many a lawn specimen to suddenly drop its foliage and die.

The height and spread of shrubs is stated for growth under 'average conditions', but no definition of 'average' has ever been stated.

When purchasing shrubs try to ascertain the size they are capable of attaining, both in height and spread, when grown under ideal conditions. The ultimate size cannot be assessed from the size of the plant when bought.

Many shrubs need pruning after flowering to encourage new wood for flowering the following year. Failure to prune is often the reason a most desirable shrub ceases to produce its mass of bloom after four or five years in the garden.

Indiscriminate use of fertilizer and plant foods can cause a shrub to grow entirely out of character. A shrub making reasonable growth and having healthy foliage does not require supplemental feeding. A lot of winter damage is due to fertilizer residue in the soil becoming available to the roots in late fall and early winter.

These Pigs Skeedaddle

GALVA, Ill. (AP) — Don't go looking for them at Churchill Downs just yet, but Roy Holding's says his fleet little pigs are bound for glory.

"They're the fastest racing pigs in the world," he says and as far as he knows, the world's only porcine racers.

"There are three things people feel about pigs — all false — that they are dirty, dumb and slow," said Holding, a 52-year-old advertising executive for an Indiana-based agricultural firm.

"A pig is really a very smart animal, probably the smartest of all barnyard animals," he said. "How long does it take a kindergarten kid to learn to put on his galoshes? How long does the teacher have to fight that? These kids have come all this way in just two weeks."

He yanked open the starting gate during a regular workout and watched five young pigs make a four-second sprint to the feed bowl 15 metres away. The pigs might be smart, but they've managed to master only one gait, something Holding calls "the forward skeedaddle."

"This year we're hoping for one to go the distance under 3.1 seconds," one-tenth of a second better than last year's record performance by a fleet-footed porker named Hedger. "That's equivalent to about a five-minute mile, you know."

Holding admits feeling more at home behind a desk than in the barn, but says those days are gone forever. He will spend more than a month this year preparing the pigs to race, a promotional idea he came up with last year and tried first at the annual Midwest Farm Progress Show. It proved a smash success. More than 45,000 persons jammed the tent during three days of racing.

The racing pigs will be back at this year's show later this month in Taylorville, Ill., an event complete with bugle, lighted tote board and racing silks.

The young pigs were purchased from a farmer about a month ago, transported to a barn in the middle of Illinois corn country, given a special diet and put through the paces. Holding uses a bell and the Pavlovian principles of repetition and reward to train the 25 females.

Twice a day, he herds them into a five-pig chute at one end of the hog barn, then rings the bell, opens the gate and releases them to run head-long toward the feed. Holding says the porkers eventually develop a keen competitive spirit. He even cut out one daily workout.

"Don't want to peak too soon," he said. "They're just like any athlete. They reach a point where they get stale."

WORK FOR WEEK

Label the fall flowering-plants now while they can be identified — dahlias, chrysanthemums and perennial asters and others. So often in spring, positive naming even by color is impossible.

Evergreen trees, shrubs can be moved now if necessary, or new ones added to the garden. Keep written record of names.

Use all young squash fruits as they grow to few inches, keeping the more mature for storage for late fall and early winter.

Early frost date for low-lying gardens may not be far away. Be prepared with canvas, burlap, old cotton bedspreads or drapes for covering ripening tomatoes, squash vines, late dwarf beans and similar. After two frosty nights, another spell of mild growing weather often occurs.

Extend cabbage use by cuttings crosswise on stump tops as a head is removed. The young shoots produced are even more tender.

Transplant lettuce seedlings to sheltered spots anywhere in garden to give those valuable fresh greens for many more weeks.

Union Unity Pitch on BCR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor relations on the British Columbia Railway (BCR) have never been more sensitive.

By the end of the month the province likely will know whether the Crown corporation and its unions finally have found the elusive formula for stability between the bosses and the workers.

Typical of most major negotiations, a news blackout has been mutually invoked by the parties so that their efforts to renew contracts can proceed without additional problems swirling about in public exchanges.

It also is typical, however, that any attempt at secrecy is difficult to carry out, even when it is done for a good cause, apparently the case in the BCR talks.

A two-page, 1,000-word newsletter to all the workers in all the unions at BCR apparently was sent out following a recent wildcat walkout at Prince George by the Council of Trade Unions, which has been attempting for a year to unite the workers on one side of the bargaining table.

The newsletter reflects an effort by council officers to end bickering, division and suspicion among workers and union leaders alike and to get a worthwhile contract.

The bulletin reviews unsatisfactory negotiations to the end of July and brings matters up to the present talks while a strike vote is being conducted.

"Initially the council felt that the government-supervised strike vote would be a very cumbersome process," the newsletter says. "However, the council has been meeting with the Labor Relations Board and permission has now been given for the member unions to take their strike vote in whatever fashion is easiest to make the vote available to every union member."

Because the unions face different problems getting to the members they have been given permission to conduct the vote either through a mailed ballot or a ballot box set up at the work place. The count is to take place Sept. 21.

Negotiations are conducted on a two-tiered basis. At present, individual unions are continuing to meet BCR negotiators regarding their own peculiar trade issues.

Negotiations by the union council on issues common to all the unions — the amount of a general wage increase, vacations, statutory holidays and others — are sitting on a siding awaiting results of the strike vote. These talks adjourned late in August.

"The council advised BCR that we were prepared to move when we could see some movement on the part of BCR," says the bulletin. "In other words, it was not a one-way street.

"BCR finally stated they were prepared to offer 'a little more money', but did not make a new offer. The meeting ended on the understanding that when BCR was prepared to make another offer, the council would meet with them immediately.

BCR's original offer was in the four-to-seven-per-cent range, with the higher percentage going to unions which have fallen behind.

One example of the differences is that carmen's foremen are receiving $9.64 and yard foremen $8.53 an hour. Some unionists say BCR does not seem to realize that this issue is serious enough in itself to split the council.

The bulletin addresses itself to the wildcat strike and the need for unity.

It says the walkout at Prince George occurred at "a very inopportune time" because legal procedures involved in negotiations had not been completed.

It adds that the wildcat did not generate any sympathy with the provincial government or the public, but merely exposes a degree of disunity among the workers when some walked off the job while others did not.

The bulletin reminds the workers that BCR is covered by the Essential Services Disputes Act with its arsenal of weapons to head off a strike and impose a settlement.

But it advises them that it would be difficult for the government to invoke the legislation "providing we show some responsibility . . . wildcat strikes that are not sanctioned by the unions are dangerous to our cause at any time . . . it is felt that the brothers who were involved in organizing this walkout were not, in fact, acting for the good of the membership but, rather, for some selfish reasons of their own . . . it is better that we all spend our time repairing the damage that has been done and showing the government and the railroad that we are, in fact, united in our cause and getting on with the contract negotiations in a proper manner."

The council concedes that some of the members are dissatisfied with its performance, but adds that the membership as a whole probably does not understand why the council was put together or the problems of uniting seven unions for bargaining purposes.

The council is trying to persuade management to help solve jurisdictional problems between unions and treat them as equals. To do that, the council says, the unions have to stick together.

Because the council has been tied up in negotiations and has not had an opportunity to spread the word, the bulletin restates the reason for its creation:

"The reason is to negotiate a contract for the various unions all at one time so that the railroad is not in a constant state of turmoil. It was not created to administer the unions' collective agreements so, once this contract is settled, the council will be very low key and each union will get on with its daily business with the employer."

There are representatives on the union council who suspect the government and the railroad would prefer one big union to the council formed by the government's own Labor Relations Board. But the bulletin reminds the members that the council foresaw this problem and wrote a no-raiding clause into its constitution.

Management representatives are keeping silent while the negotiations are taking place, but it's understood some have been trying to allay union suspicions about how they view the council.

The bulletin pleads with the dissidents to put the internal bickering aside until the council has had its first opportunity to do a job by negotiating a decent agreement.

$1,000 for Top Writers

Creative writing could win a Vancouver Island student as much as $1,000 this year, says the manager of Canada Permanent Trust Company.

Hamish Manson, manager of The Permanent's Victoria office, has released the rules and regulations of the company's 12th annual creative writing contest.

The contest is open to all high school students in Grades 9 to 12 and carries cash awards of $500, $300 and $1000 for the top three submissions in all provinces including Yukon and Northwest Territories.

First prize winners in each province will then be judged together to determine the national grand prize winner, who receives a total of $1,000, believed by The Permanent to be largest cash award available to a high school student for creative writing.

Students must write up to 2,000 words on any subject. The submission can be fiction, non-fiction, or any form of prose.

Dockworkers Sign In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Dockworkers have voted to end a strike which paralysed port operations throughout the country and delayed tens of thousands of containers.

The dockworkers walked out at major ports five days ago to protest big layoffs of union members in Melbourne. The stoppage made about 100 vessels idle and cost shippers millions of dollars a day.

About 800 stevedores in Melbourne were sent home because a month-long strike by maintenance men and electricians at container depots left them idle.

The path for a return to work by the dockworkers was cleared when the maintenance men and electricians decided to end their stoppage and submit their overtime claims to arbitration.

Kidnapping Call Traced

NEW YORK (AP) — A phone conversation in which fashion designer Calvin Klein was asked by his daughter's kidnappers if he had the $100,000 ransom was traced to the apartment where the girl was held and later found, a telephone company investigator has testified.

Joseph Cassese testified Friday in the trial of Paule Ransay and her half-brother, Dominque Ransay, before state Supreme Court.

How's Your Hearing?
(Victoria) — Electronic hearing demonstrations will be given at Beltone Hearing Aid Service, 613 Yates Street during a free Service Centre open to all hearing aid wearers. The demonstrations will be given on Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 18th and 19th, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. by Ronald Germain, Beltone Hearing Aid Specialist (22 years experience).
Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have this special demonstration using the latest electronic equipment. For those who now wear an aid, the demonstration will show if it is still right for their loss. Others will learn which aid may be right for them.
Most people with a hearing loss can be helped with a hearing aid.
The free demonstration will be given from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. during the special Service Centre on Monday and Tuesday. Anyone unable to attend is invited to phone 382-3323 for a free in-home appointment.

Jenkins Tackles First Opera With Verve and Innovations

It's a first time in operatic stage direction for Anthony Jenkins who took on The Bartered Bride eagerly but not without trepidation.

Besides being recognized both here and on the mainland as one of the province's most able and gifted actors — he frequently appears on CBC radio — he has taken on directing chores successfully before and was one of those responsible a few years ago for a vividly effective presentation of Dylan Thomas' works at the University of Victoria.

Being a UVic professor of English, theatre is an affinity but still an avocation for Jenkins, whose Welsh background reveals itself frequently in his sensitivity to the poetic elements in theatre texts and the haunting cadence of his stage speech.

Because he regards opera as quintessential theatre, he is mad about it.

"We go to a lot of opera wherever we are," he says of himself and his wife Marion. "It's the theatre of emotions in which a delicate balance must always be present — it's so close to unbelief that the slightest gaucherie in handling brings trouble."

The Bride is being sung in English and the text is the result of what Anthony calls a "re-translation" from both the Czech and an authorized English version, done by himself with advice from Czech-speaking cast member Erika Kurth.

In approaching the opera, he says, he sought out the reality under the cliche love story and found what he wanted in stressing the juxtaposition of the traditional old-world concept of the parent-arranged marriage with the younger generation's determination to marry for love while at the same time remaining loyal to filial ties.

He also found two distinct and opposed themes — money, expressed through Kecal, the marriage broker (sung by Hans Steffen) and love, the "bride" Marenka (Pierann Moon) and her sweetheart, Jenik (Richard Margison). He has symbolized these elements through the stage design by Tom Taggart.

Anthony has also sought ways of side-stepping old-fashioned and arbitrary chorus and minor character movement and entrances.

He has been working for the past six weeks in collaboration with musical director Lorna Patterson, choreographer Ginny Lefever and assistant director Sylvia Hatchman, interpreting, translating, justifying and coaching singers into actors.

Naturally, adjustments of several kinds had to be made when conductor Timothy Vernon arrived to take over the rehearsals a week ago. But, says Jenkins, whatever variations there existed in their viewpoints, were easily and quickly adjusted with a couple of a deux conferences.

"I have nothing but absolute admiration for what Timothy has achieved in a few days and the whole thing has gone ahead smoothly. What is so outstanding to me is his extraordinary sense of the dramatic — which is, of course one of the attributes that makes him a successful opera conductor."

Pierann Moon and Richard Margison star in opera The Bartered Bride next week at McPherson Playhouse.

Lovely Costume Design

Creator of an immense range of costumes for dozens of productions and many major Victoria organizations, Biddy Gaddes has designed the lovely and picturesque costumes for The Bartered Bride.

Lighting designer is Lawrence Eastick whose skill must complement the costumes and the Taggart set design.

Among the principals — besides Pierann Moon, Richard Margison and Hans Steffen — are Peter Bradley, Peggy Packard, Michael Eckford, Nancy Holmes, Rory Hammond, Bert Johnston, Erika Kurth and David Bird.

There is a mixed chorus of villagers, an ensemble of 10 dancers and a circus troup complete with dancing bear.

UVic Fare Offers Variety

Plays selected for the 1978-79 season at the University of Victoria's Phoenix Theatre, reflect an important aspect of university theatre.

On the one hand, they mark a departure from the familiar and habitual repertoire of downtown theatres.

Moreover, the choices reflect the theatre department's concern for providing its students with the widest possible variety of experience, while also affording patrons the chance to share that exploration and expand their own theatre knowledge.

There will be three full-length productions as well as three programs presented in the annual mid-winter Festival of One-Act Plays.

The range of the full-length productions will encompass a little-known Soviet farce of the 1920s, Nicolai Erdman's The Suicide; an adaptation from Barrie Broadfoot's book about the Dirty Thirties in Canada, Ten Lost Years, presented in word, song and mime; and a provocative play by the Swiss existentialist-playwright Max Frisch, The Chinese Wall.

The one-act festival will offer works as diverse as the humorous and moving It's Called The Sugar Plum, and the more sinister A Slight Ache by Harold Pinter.

Lower ticket prices have been initiated by director of theatre Carl Hare, and these will reduce the cost of a season subscription by an amount approximating one full-price admission.

Senior citizens and students will continue to receive a discount of $1 over all ticket prices for Monday through Thursday performances. Further savings will be available to purchasers of regular season tickets which are being sold for $12.

The Phoenix box office is open for sales and reservstions and will accept orders and provide information between the hours of 12 noon and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. The box office phone number is 477-4821.

11 OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST SHOWS

MOE KOFFMAN QUINTET

The Swinging Shepherd, Canada's best-known jazz musician, opens the season at the exciting, new University Centre, acoustically one of the finest in North America. His all-star group includes guitarist Ed Bickert, keyboard Don Thompson, drummer Marty Morell and bassist Rick Homme. There's a tincture of pop, a dollop of the classics and a suggestion of rock mixed in with his sound. "No matter what the influences, the music is unmistakable jazz, Koffman style." A veteran radio and television performer, Koffman has performed with Benny Goodman, Quincy Jones and Woody Herman. Composers such as Bach, Vivaldi and Mozart have had their music transformed into jazz concepts by this master jazz musician. Jazz is in . . . at the University Centre.
Thursday, October 12, University Centre.

THE WORLD OF GILBERT AND SULLIVAN

Two years ago, two sold-out houses raved about these incomparable Savoyards from England.
Five D'Oyly Carte and Sadler's Wells-trained performers present excerpts from the most beloved of G&S productions. Without the aid of costumes or props, these magnificent singers and actors transport us from the land of The Mikado to the Pirates of Penzance, from the antics on board HMS Pinafore to the tragedy and pathos of Yeoman of the Guard.
Shades of a G&S cult in Victoria? You betcha! . . . tickets will be in short supply on this one. Imagine some of the finest voices in the world in the new University Centre.
Two smashing performances.
Saturday, October 21, University Centre.

The Danny Grossman Dance Company

Gasps, laughter, a standing ovation all greeted the fantastic performance of Danny Grossman, director and dancer, when he performed in Victoria last year with the Toronto Dance Theatre Company.
The London Times describes Grossman's "almost incredible acrobatic control" while the critic for the Toronto Globe and Mail describes him as "an audience's dream," and says that he "is one of the most exciting dancers ever to perform in Toronto." Rudolf Nureyev chose Grossman to dance with him in the Coliseum, London . . . a major achievement. Created this year, his company dance works about people and for people. They are funny and sad, profound and whimsical . . . they strike home.
"A tour de force . . . don't ask how he does it" says the Toronto Star. Don't ask . . . come and see for yourself.
Sunday, October 29, McPherson Playhouse.

ROSSIANKA!

Direct from the USSR . . . on their first Canadian tour. They come from Georgia, the Ukraine, Azerbaijan, Caucasia . . . they'll bring out the gypsy in all of us! Whirling dervishes, ravishing, exotic costumes, the melancholy of the balalaika.
This multi-talented group of singers, dancers, instrumentalists transport you into the heady, passionate world of the gypsy. Watch the mystic of the USSR unfold before your eyes, as the performers relate through music and dance the history, lives, dreams of their people. Don't miss this spectacular treat from Russia.

Les Grands Ballets Canadiens

One of Canada's top classical ballet companies returns in triumph. Two years ago—their first visit to Victoria—they performed to ecstatic sold-out houses. "Ballet shows superb professionalism," said the Victoria Times headline, while Audrey Johnson said "It is also not far-fetched to mention the word 'genius' in connection with artistic director Brian Macdonald's choreography . . ." A standing ovation assured the return of the company of 50. This year there will be two performances in the more intimate atmosphere of the McPherson Playhouse. CARLOS MONTOYA

The conqueror returns! The world-famous master of Flamenco music returns to Victoria almost two years after he left a packed house cheering for more. Through his globe-circling tours and his numerous recordings, he has become the living symbol of Flamenco music the world over.
His advanced technique, his flair for creative innovation and his infinitely varied repertoire make him one of the most exciting concert artists in the world today. Every performance is a unique experience, because although he still clings to traditional titles, he adds new variations constantly.
Montoya doesn't read a note of music, but as the New York Times says "He does something much more important; he makes music."

'Whole Opera Bubbles,' Says Timothy Vernon
Back in Victoria to Conduct Smetana Classic

The Bartered Bride

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Because opera is the most expensive of all the arts to maintain, it is often the subject of denigration by non-opera-buff writers who like to claim that it is unpopular and therefore moribund on the North American scene. But the facts speak otherwise.

Opera companies have proliferated around the United States as cities become more culture-conscious and Canadian cities also, outside Toronto and Vancouver, have begun to add opera organizations to their roster of symphony orchestras and theatre companies.

But do they draw audiences? Emphatically, yes, says Canadian conductor Timothy Vernon. Not only do the major opera companies do remarkably well in terms of audience numbers, but operas on tour of some of the smaller centres across the country meet with good to excellent response.

Vernon should know. He is musical director and conductor for the Canadian Opera Company's (COC) tour program and has also been conducting some of the repertoire for the COC's spring season at the Royal Alexandra in Toronto. The month-long season this year, for example, played to 90-per-cent houses.

Vernon is in Victoria preparing the Vancouver Island Opera Society's production of The Bartered Bride, which he will conduct in four performances at the McPherson Playhouse next week.

Maestro Vernon considers Bedrich Smetana's colorful Czech opera a wonderful choice for the VanIsle Opera's fifth production since formation in 1976. The others have included Marriage of Figaro and The Magic Flute.

"Bartered Bride contains absolutely irresistable music and historical interest," says Vernon. "It's a masterpiece. It was a great national event when it was premiered in 1866 in Prague.

"For one thing it was the first opera written on a Czech text. Yet Smetana used no actual folksong despite the fact that it has been referred to as a 'folk opera.' He composed every note; the whole opera bubbles — it has been created on the highest level of inspiration. On top of which it is beautifully scored.

"It's lyrical and the mood throughout is spirited and laced with humor and outright comedy."

A number of people will have been involved in the preparation of the opera.

But on opening night, Wednesday, and for the subsequent performances Friday, Saturday and Sunday, responsibility will totally rest with the conductor. It is his skill alone that will establish the interpretation, sustain the tempos, provide confidence and security among the cast, and keep all forces in balance while at the same time supplying an ideal degree of orchestral support for the intonation of the singers.

Sound like a lot for one pair of still-youthful shoulders? Well, it is indeed. He admits it's an awesome task that can never be approached with anything less than total immersion.

"Well," he says, "at least there's one thing I won't have to worry about — thank goodness: A baton can't go flat."

B.C.-born Timothy Vernon, widely regarded as one of the most brilliant musical talents to have emerged on the Canadian scene in the last decade, has proved himself throughout his career to date, more than equal to the responsibility and the challenge.

His ability to communicate with the musicians under his baton, to draw from them the best they are capable of producing, and to communicate with his listeners, was noted even in his student days in Vienna.

Commented Hans Swarowsky, head of the conducting school of the Vienna State Academy, under whom he studied: "... an excellent, secure, commanding conducting personality. Both with the orchestra and the public, he enjoyed very great success on the occasion of his first concerts. I consider Mr. Vernon to be a great talent ..."

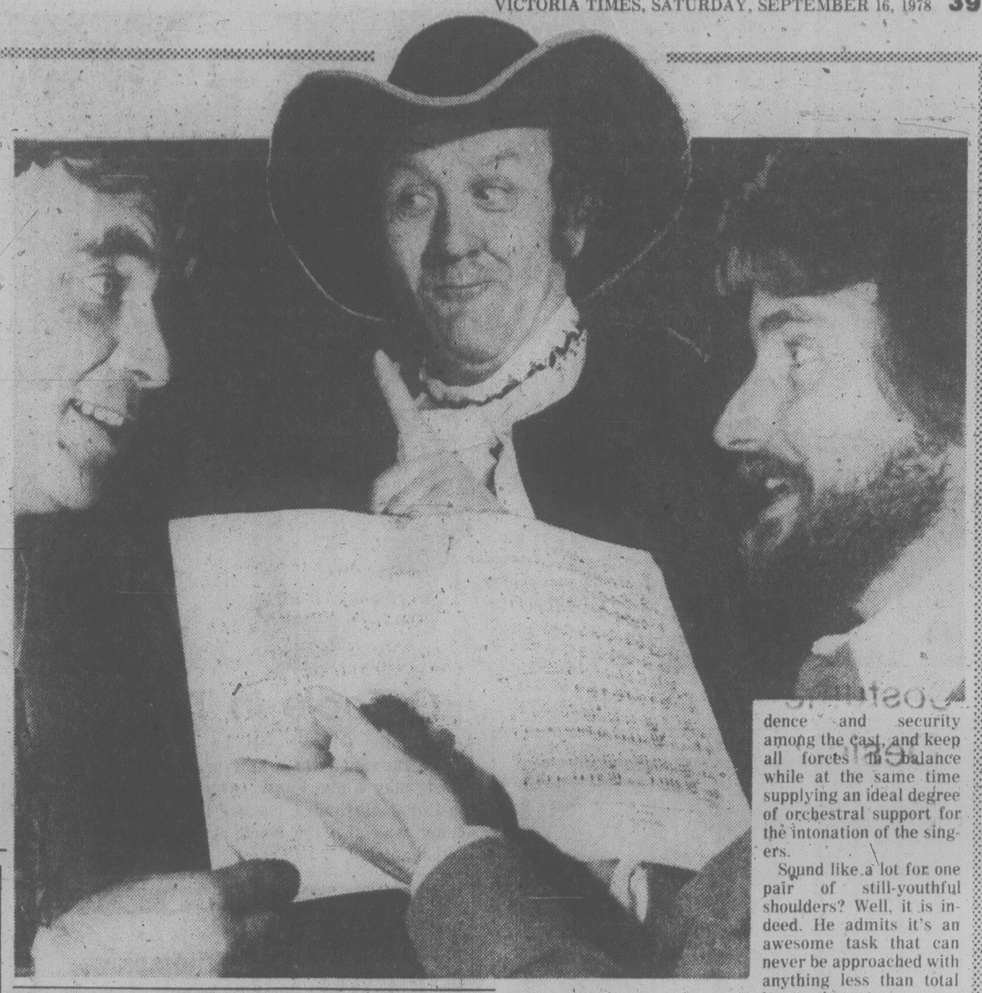
Everywhere that he has conducted since then, orchestral musicians and singers have responded to his warm, encouraging personality, the high quality of his inspiration and assured musicality. VanIsle Opera personnel who have sat in at his rehearsals, speak with awe of his ability to bring out of the singers a blend and beauty of sound and a suppleness of phrase that astonishes even themselves.

Vernon's burgeoning career has resulted in a heavy schedule for this season. He will return to Toronto immediately after Bartered Bride to launch on preparation of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro for the COC Western tour which will begin at the end of October and bring him back to Victoria for its performances at the Royal in November. The tour will then continue down the Pacific Coast to New Mexico.

Christmas will be spent in Victoria with his wife, the former Wendy Packard, and two small daughters and the respective grandparents. Vernon grew up in Victoria and received his preliminary musical education here as well as attending the University of Victoria.

His guest conducting appearances with Victoria Symphony Orchestra will follow and then a return to Toronto to tour with the Canadian Opera Company. In the spring, he will be Vancouver to conduct a production of La Traviata for the Vancouver Opera Association.

This October will also see him guest conducting the Kitchener-Waterloo Symphony which has been built into one of Canada's best.



TIME OUT for a laugh! Stage director Anthony Jenkins, left, enjoys the joke as conductor Timothy Vernon suggests trying the effect of conducting from an upside-down score. Bass Hans Steffen, who will be singing the role of the marriage broker in The Bartered Bride, indicates with the wave of a finger that he definitely does not approve.

PARTHENON DANCERS OF GREECE
An encore in Victoria of this fabulous company was inevitable ... just a matter of time.
Three years ago, two packed houses soared in the mountains and luxuriated among the Greek islands with this multi-talented group of 40 singers, dancers and musicians. From the extravagance of male physical prowess expressed in mid-air leaps to the wickedly intricate dances conducted with flashing scythes ... the company is totally professional. "The costuming of the members was sumptuous in its richness and trappings," raved the New York Times.
The San Francisco Chronicle said "As dance, it was one of the sharpest, mature, technically adroit national companies we have seen."
Dance lovers, spectacle lovers, ethnic art lovers ... all will love it.
Two dynamic performances.

THE CANADIAN OPERA COMPANY

Canada's premier opera company makes a triumphant return to Victoria performing one of the most popular works in musical theatre, Mozart's THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO (in English). A company of over 50, including full orchestra, will present two block-busting performances here.
"It's the best touring company in North America," comments Michael Ries, vice-president of Columbia Artists. The world has applauded the Canadian Opera Company over the years, and this latest production received raves when it opened recently in Toronto.
FIGARO is a classic tale of criss-crossed lovers constantly caught in a whirlwind of sentimentality, laughter, drama and burlesque. Who can resist the vivacity and charm of the most perfect of comic operas? Not many. So subscribe now and save.
Two smashing performances.

the anna wyman dance theatre

Victoria is a second home to Anna Wyman. Last year in Victoria the company reached new heights with its dancing and choreography, leaving a stunned and ecstatic audience gasping for more. And more there is. Not content with past success, Wyman has created more new works for her hungry audiences, and the word is that her small, elite company is better than ever. As the Montreal Star says:
"When we think of Balanchine, Bejart or Graham we do not think of just another company: We think of the imprint of three unique and individual talents. When we now think of Anna Wyman, we will think of a fourth."
Wyman is an international star. Come and see why.

CANADIAN BRASS
"After the Canadians, brass will never sound quite the same", raves the headline in the Washington Star following a sold out performance at the Kennedy Centre. Their performance in Victoria last year proved one of the major hits of the season, and demands for their return were so enormous that an immediate return was arranged.
Formed in 1970, Canadian Brass is a sassy and irreverent quintet with boundless energy and enthusiasm and, most important, matchless technical skill and first-rate musicianship. They have toured most parts of the world, including a spectacular tour of China, where they played in factories, stadiums and even on the Great Wall. It has been said that if the Marx Brothers were to re-surface playing brass instruments, they would be known as the Canadian Brass.
Deliberately distorted history, hijinks and good-natured ribbing are all part of the routine in a repertoire that ranges from Bach to Scott Joplin, from Renaissance to Ragtime. DON'T MISS THIS ONE! Seats will be scarce.

O'Toole in Toronto

Actor Peter O'Toole sits on a porch swing with Jackie Burroughs in a new production of Chekhov's classic play Uncle Vanya, which opened this week at the Royal Alexandra Theatre in Toronto. The season opener was also the North American debut for the British actor.

Around the Art Galleries

A first art exhibit is being arranged by the Handicapped Action Committee. It will take place at the Emily Carr Arts Centre, 207 Government, with the opening scheduled for Monday at 4 p.m. with Minister of Municipal Affairs Hugh Curtis officiating.

The categories in which the exhibits fall include painting, sketches, ceramics, wood and stone carving, photography, wall hangings and other media.

The purpose of the exhibition is to increase awareness of the creativity of the handicapped in Vancouver Island communities and to provide opportunity for those who wish to sell their works. It is planned to make this show an annual event.

There will be a reception on opening day.

Cariboo Country, an exhibition of weavings and wall hangings by Vanderhoof area artist, Irmgard Posselt, went on show today at Karibu's Upper Gallery, 565 Johnson, and will continue through Sept. 30.

West Berlin-born, Mrs. Posselt studied art and worked as a freelance designer in Germany's former capital for many years. She immigrated to British Columbia in 1970. The rustic environment of her ranch home at Takysie Lake in the interior is reflected in her unique weaving style which incorporates fur and bone of native animals with natural dyes to create striking effects.

Posselt's work has been exhibited widely from the prairies to California and she has won numerous prizes and awards.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

The title, Impressions, covers an exhibition of the drawings, prints and mixed media of Elyse St.George opening at The Backroom Gallery, 2070 Oak Bay Avenue, Wednesday and running through Sept. 30 with an invitation preview Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

"My work deals with impressions I receive and my reaction to them," says Ms. St.George in a note on the exhibition. "When dealing with the past I avoid sentimentality and use memory instead to enrich present experience. Sometimes I use dolls; Their strange presence serving as a kind of proxy for things too elusive to capture directly."

Backroom Gallery viewing hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

ROTHSTEIN TO PLAY AT CONSERVATORY

Renowned English violinist, Jack Rothstein, will be the guest artist when the Victoria Conservatory of Music presents a performance of Vivaldi's delightful The Seasons, Thursday at 8 p.m. at Craigdarroch Castle.

Featured will be the Conservatory Faculty Chamber Ensemble led by Sydney Humphreys and with Linn Hendry at the harpsichord.

This event is in the nature of a prelude to Rothstein's return to London when he will again be the featured artist in The Seasons at a Queen Elizabeth Hall performance.

Admission charge for the Craigdarroch concert is $2, students and senior citizens, $1.

Harpo's and Disco Parting Company

Rock and roll is here to stay, but disco is gone forever from Harpo's cabaret, swears owner Adrian Martay.

"I never wanted it in the first place," says Martay, who has returned to Victoria after a long absence that included some U.S. touring and a stay in San Fransciso.

Martay and Harpo's manager Gary Van Buskirk are turning the operation back into a live club and are lining up a showcase of national acts.

They've booked the new Sample Stearnes Band for the opening performance Sept. 18.

Although Harpo's turned to disco last January after it had to stop live music because of noise complaints from the restaurant downstairs, Martay says noise isn't a problem anymore.

The theatre-in-the-round club now has sound monitoring equipment.

Besides, most of the serious entertaining will take place after restaurant hours. The club will stay open until 2:30 a.m. and many acts will be booked to play until 1:30.

Harpo's, which took a year to build, has hosted quality concerts during the past several years and Martay is determined to do even better.

Future acts will be diverse to attract patrons with varied musical tastes. Van Buskirk has included native African, Latin American, rhythm and blues, jazz, rock and soul music in his fall lineup.

Harpo's will try to feature national acts on weeknights, with one or perhaps two nightly performances.

Some of the performances will be concerts; others will be for dancing as well.

On weekends the club hopes to have live local, Vancouver or U.S. bands performing dance music.

Future acts will be diverse to attract patrons with varied musical tastes. Van Buskirk has included native African, Latin American, rhythm and blues, jazz, rock and soul music in his fall lineup.

Booked to follow Sample Stearnes is Streetheart and Friends, playing Sept. 21, 22, and 23.

The September featured performance is blues singer John Hammond, who will appear Sept. 27 and 28.

Hammond, who has cut 12 albums since his musical career began in the early '60s, was the man who introduced Robbie Robertson and The Band to Bob Dylan.

Although not well-known to the public, he is respected in music circles.

Bastion Patrons Offered Course Behind Scenes

For anyone who wants to do more than go to the theatre and enjoy a finished production, Bastion Theatre has come up with something new — an idea that promises to receive resounding applause. It's a "Get Acquainted With Theatre" course which is being provided exclusively for Bastion season ticket holders.

What it means is that on six occasions this fall and winter — Sept. 28, Oct. 26, Dec. 14, Jan. 25, Feb. 22 and March 29 — there will be sessions held in the company's rehearsal hall at which actors, directors, designers, set and props builders will share their knowledge with those who register for the series.

From 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. on those dates, people will find the answers to many puzzles: How an actor gets his face slapped without being bruised; how costume fabrics are chosen and how the illusion of richness is achieved on relatively inexpensive material; how props are built and what sorts of things go into their making; how an actor is chosen for a specific role.

There will be opportunities to meet over a cup of coffee, the people like stage managers and wardrobe mistresses who have been no more than names on the program until then. You may watch a scene being rehearsed and special backstage tours of the theatre will be arranged as part of the course.

Only 50 registrations will be accepted as it is desired to keep the evenings informal. There will be a fee of $25 to cover the cost of guest speakers.

Call Bastion at 386-8301 or drop in at the Wharf Street office for more information.

Dief: New Goals at 83

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker, 83 on Monday, says he wants to spend the rest of his life raising hope in an age of despair.

"I have never known the feelings that exist today," the former prime minister said in a birthday interview at his Rockcliffe Park home, his perky Cairn terrier McAndy at his feet, his late wife Olive above him, in portrait.

"The fear in the hearts of Canadians . . . where are we going."

World wars and depressions of the past have never produced the feelings of despair that grip modern Canadians, he declares, his voice assuming the melodramatic platform rumble that has mesmerized audiences since he began his political career in the 1920s.

As a result, he says he wants to spend the years he has left restoring a sense of determination in Canadians, giving them reason to "raise their hearts in hope."

For some Canadians, Diefenbaker's mere presence in public life is inspiration enough. He has been elected to Parliament 12 times and is looking forward to a 13th win in his Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert. He keeps himself active — he's planning an October visit to China, then a return to the Commons — when many his age have been tucked away in homes.

Yet he has had his share of defeats. He was beaten twice in federal elections, twice in Saskatchewan provincial elections and twice for the Conservative party leadership before his 1956 win.

Lately, he has also taken a physical beating. He was put in hospital for fatigue during a recent trip to the Martimes, then flown to Ottawa where doctors removed nine infected teeth. His medical reports list hardening of the arteries and other signs of advancing age.

At times, he appears to want to regard politics in the serene rational manner one might assume of an octogenarian. But his efforts always fail.

"I've come to an age — you may not believe it — when partisanship no longer has any definite place in my general thinking," he says.

Then his eyes take on their familiar mischievious twinkle and he launches into a vitriolic attack on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, his government and Liberals in general.

Inside the Conservative party, Diefenbaker continues to go his own way. He has never forgiven former party president Dalton Camp and others he blames for his overthrow as leader in 1967.

He never completely made peace with Robert Stanfield, the man who replaced him.

But he does get along with Joe Clark, the party's present leader. Clark, however, is 44 years his junior and the two aren't close.

He never speaks of retirement. But then, nobody even bothers to ask him about it any more.

Clifford Irving: Cursed by His Dreams

By PAUL HENDRICKSON
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The gypsies have a curse: May your dreams come true. Clifford Irving knows this curse. You could say he wrote the book on it.

Clifford Irving is 47 now and maybe just a little haunchier in the hips (despite a born-again devotion to tennis). Tall and tanned and handsome, he is still possessed of wit and an offhanded charm, the kind that must have snared him wives and mistresses without half trying.

It isn't that he seems incorrigible. Not exactly. It's just that the greatest literary hoaxer of our time, maybe all time, gives the impression of a transgressor who can't get all worked up about past transgressions. Even though he will say, with a wry, pained little smile alighting on his face, that he's "suffered brain damage over all this."

"All this," of course, is Clifford Irving's fake autobiography seven years ago of Howard Hughes, a half-million-dollar gambit that got him international notoriety, 17 months in prison, an eventual divorce (from his fourth wife and co-conspirator, Edith), and the cover of Times magazine as "The Con Man of 1972." The gypsies are right: The dream can more than come true.

IRVING
. . . what's remorse?

Clifford Irving came to Washington Tuesday. He wasn't accompanied by Edith Irving, or the steamy Baroness Nina van Pallandt, or Dick Suskind (his little-known but all-important researcher in the Hughes hoax), but by Herbert Burkholz, a short, chubby little man who is a writer also and who has been his pal since boyhood. Burkholz, says Cliff Irving, is America's most eminent unknown man of letters. Together, they have written a spoof spy novel.

The problem is, nobody but nobody wants to talk about this new book (which happens to be called "The Death Freak" and is very entertaining reading). All people seem to care about is Clifford Irving. And that notorious cast of characters. Where is Nina now? Is Edith on Ibiza? Is Suskind really starring in German movies?

"I've been frankly hurt and confused by how this is turning out," says Burkholz. He is sitting in a cafe, his double-knit jacket with red piping thrown over a chair. Irving, in slightly more fashionable attire, is beside him, intent on a pastry. "I've had to accept that Cliff is the focus. I had no idea people would still care. But I guess I forgot this in the day of the hyena and that we still live in the age of hype. I think I'm adjusting."

"You're adjusting very well," says Irving, looking up.

Well, as long as we're on it, what did happen to Edith? Burkholz shrugs.

"She's been living on Eastern Long Island," Irving answers. "She's married to my former lawyer. Edith and I have a very good divorce. She says a good divorce is more important than a good marriage — it last longer."

This is swept aside; Cliff is rolling. Locked at the corner of his mouth is a thin, bad-boy smile. He is talking in a dramatic whisper.

"Edith had a show of her paintings awhile ago. I helped arrange it." Edith has the two children, he says. Nedsky is 10. Barney is 8. "I had them all summer. I've been living in Mexico, in a little American colony called San Miguel de Allende. I'm working on a long piece of fiction. It's about Pancho Villa, Tom Mix and George S. Patton Jr."

He says this with an absolutely straight face. Apparently, it's true.

That's Edith. Where is Nina?

"Oh, I can answer that," Burkholz says, anxious to partake. "Actually, she's been my closest platonic friend for years. I knew her way before she was notorious."

Nina is in California, writer No. 2 says. Married and divorced (to and from a South African film producer), still hoping to make it in the movies. She had one good part — "The Long Goodbye." That was the film where the advertisements, trying to cash in, asked: "How will she play a woman of intrigue?" The answer: "From memory."

"Actually, I don't like Nina," Irving says. Apropos of this, he launches into a bawdy joke. "She's bad news."

Clifford Irving and Herb Burkholz themselves haven't settled down. "We're travelers;" Irving says. "Home is where my typewriter is."

Home is also where Valdi is. Valdi is Irving's current amorata and roommate. "She plays tennis, takes care of me and the kinkajou." Pause. "She is not exactly women's lib."

A couple of years ago, after a long time abroad, Burkholz came back to the States to be a writer-in-residence at William and Mary in Williamsburg.

"They were actually teaching my books," he says with surprise and awe.

The only surprise and awe in Irving has to do with how he became such a literary persona non grata over the Hughes book. He still can't believe it. Sometimes, he can't even believe he wrote it.

"You see, I was living this fantasy life," he says. His look is very faraway. "And I projected that fantasy world into a real-life situation."

Highest Award

OTTAWA — A 19-year-old man who died when he pushed his eight-year-old cousin out of a hole the boy had fallen into on a frozen pond has been posthumously awarded the highest bravery decoration in Canada.

Thomas Hynes, of Fortune Bay, Nfld., earned the Cross of Valor Dec. 29, 1977, when he plunged into icy water to rescue Keith Hynes, Government House announced Friday.

A statement from the Governor-General said eight Stars of Courage and 10 Medals of Bravery have also been awarded for heroism.

The awards, first given in 1972, will be presented at Government House at a date to be announced later.

TORONTO — Edna Jaques, 87, once described as Canada's poet laureate of the home, died Wednesday at her Toronto home.

About 2,000 of the 3,000 poems she wrote were published in newspapers, magazines and in 10 books that sold about 250,000 copies.

Miss Jaques, a widow, was born in Collingwood, Ont., in 1891. She grew up on the Prairies after her father, a lakeboat captain, gave up ships for homesteading.

DODGE CITY, Kan. — Lawrence Droste plans to shoot down five gunslingers and snatch his intended bride from the hands of another before his wedding.

Droste and Teresa Northern "just wanted to go back to some of the customs of the old west," the bride-to-be says.

So the wedding is set for today, with wedding party villains, a stagecoach to bring the "mail-order" bride, and a buckboard as honeymoon transportation.

Miss Northern, 29, and Droste, 33, will be married — rather conventionally — by a minister.

After the wedding, the Drostes plan to stay in Dodge City. She will teach at the high school. He sells bathtubs.

TORONTO — Toronto financier Charles Gundy, chairman of the board of Wood Gundy Ltd., died Friday in hospital. He was 73.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — Former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell has lost the first round in the legal battle to gain his freedom from a federal prison camp where he is serving a sentence for his involvement in the Watergate coverup.

District Judge Frank Johnson Jr. refused Friday to grant Mitchell's request for early release from prison here and denied the former attorney-general a hearing on his challenge of the federal Parole Commission decision not to release him until next Jan. 19.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Sunday, September 17 By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take initiative—relationship is intensified. Place cards on table—face up. By stating case, you gain. By covering, you lose ground. Know it and act accordingly. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Accent on new start, confacts—and policy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You gain spiritual insight. You understand a situation that had been shrouded in mystery. Confidence returns—you feel blessing of inner peace. Guilt, doubt, fear—these are replaced by tranquility—if you so permit.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent on finding the "right person." Some desires are fulfilled, others are revised. Welcome new contact. A fresh kind of optimism prevails. New love could come into your life. Leo, Aquarius, Aries persons figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Accent on doing something about security, basic family relationships—speak to superior about more responsibility and money. This should occur in more of a home or social setting—preferably following meditation, spiritual or church services.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Accent on results, communication, widespread recognition. Gemini, Sagittarius—and the number 3—figure prominently. Element of timing, luck or coincidence is involved. Highlight versatility, humor, willingness to give full rein to intellectual curiosity.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Emphasis on deciding what concessions you will make to family member regarding money. Be specific, straight—if honest in expressing feelings, you gain. Otherwise, you repeat lessons that should have been mastered long ago.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Marital status, public relations, communication with public—and member of opposite sex—command attention. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play key roles. Be analytical—recognize truth when you encounter it. Yes, the agreement is favorable—you did the right thing!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You get second wind—emotional problem is resolved. Domestic adjustment, fixing things around the house, change of residence, basic comforts, security dominate scenario. Taurus, Libra—and another Scorpio—figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance, illusion, holiday from routine—these are featured. A "psychic" associate knows what should be done, but does not seem able to follow through on project. you can serve as catalyst, or inspiration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick to factual material; stress practicality, basic issues. Refuse to give up something of value for whispered, "sweet nothings." Get clear view of priorities. Display ability to handle responsibility. Yes, a relationship is growing in intensity.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Short trip, getting message across to more people, making decision regarding relative—these are on your agenda. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. You gain pertinent information. You close gap which had separated you from loved one.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): New approach brings money windfall. Know it, stress originality, personality, independence. Get to heart of matters. Yes, Leo could be very much in picture. Evaluate—decide what is important to you, what you are doing merely because others might think it is right.

IF SEPTEMBER 17 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you react well during crisis situations. You are perceptive, intense and when you do something—it is all or nothing. That also marks your relationships—no middle ground, no tepid water—hot or cold. Capricorn, Cancer persons play key roles in your life. January and October are your two most important months of 1978. You are recovering from emotional setback—you'll be back on your feet, more stable, balanced—and in a much better financial position. You made it!

Monday, September 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take initiative—time is right for power play. Trust your own judgment. Make new starts, invest, deal from position of strength. Don't back down to tradition. You now are in process of creating your own tradition. Means your reputation grows, you achieve and accomplish.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What had been out-in-the-open will now seem obscured, blocked, clouded. Condition is temporary. Know it and don't despair. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently. Fears, doubts can be examined—and eradiated. You are on brink of a significant discovery.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may be in state of euphoria; ride with tide. People are drawn to you—display humor, versatility. You win in games of chance. You could also be lucky in love. Yes, it is one of those rare days! Leo, Aquarius—and another Gemini—could figure in cenario.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Career advance indicated—collect data, get files in order, bring priorities into focus. Specifically—you are informed concerning royalties, potential, opportunities. And you are asked what you can offer in return.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Lunar aspect coincides now with travel, ability to get message to more people. Very good for writing, submitting format, developing advertising or public relations program. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Get on the scales—check weight, diet, nutritional intake.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Accent on other people's money, investments, counsel offered by partner, mate or others close to you. Key is to be aware of fine print. What seems a bargain may be something else. Aquarius, Scorpio persons are likely to be involved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Accent on clash of opinion; be versatile, analytical, open-minded without being gullible. Be ready for change, travel, variety—Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure in scenario. Member of the opposite sex wants assurance of security.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Emphasis on job, diet, dependents, special services. Taurus, Libra figure prominently—so does the number 6. One close to you offers token of affection. Be gracious, diplomatic. You benefit through music. Listen and be quiet within.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis on practicality, property, insurance, leases, longrange projects. Natural abilities surge to forefront. You work well now with older individuals. One who has your best interest at heart will prove it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your ideas are valid, but slightly ahead of associates' perception. Be patient, not discouraged. Relative who complains is merely suffering a case of nerves. Prognosis is for complete recovery. You'll get "opening" for better display, distribution.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent on discovery, investment, profit resulting from new ideas, contacts. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. Don't mince words concerning money. Overcome initial embarrassment, reticence. By speaking frankly, you resolve dilemma—and it will be easy.

IF SEPTEMBER 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have been going through a "testing period." It has not been easy. In October, you emerge from morass; you will gain a stronger foothold on financial and emotional security. You are a feeling, caring person; individuals are drawn to you with their problems. Key is to be helpful, not used by others. Aries, Libra persons play important roles in your life.

Poor, Aged Told: Howl

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Health and Welfare Minister Monique Begin Thursday warned Canada's poor and elderly that unless they make their needs known, they cannot be sure of getting the care they need.

She told the community services council here that those opposed to social programs constitute a powerful voice in the country.

A text of her speech was released in advance.

"Right now we find ourselves responding to a blizzard of letters...from people who dislike social assistance. From the poor and the disadvantaged and their advocates comes hardly a snowflake. It is not a healthy situation."

Despite the chilly climate, Miss Begin said the government made a "crucial step forward in social policy" with the recent introduction of a refundable child tax credit and an additional $20 a month for elderly persons receiving a guaranteed income supplement.

She said families who pay no taxes or have incomes below the national average will receive a $200 tax refund for each child starting early next year. The amount a family receives will decrease as its income increases.

"Until now our major child-related benefits have given more tax relief to the well-off than to poor and middle-income people. From now on, that situation will be reversed."

Funds for the tax credit program will come from cuts in family allowance payments to $20 a month from a current $25.68 as well as the elimination of benefits for 16- and 17-year-old children and an existing $50 tax credit per child, she said.

The cuts—first announced by Prime Minister Trudeau in a nationally-televised address Aug. 1—are part of a larger government move to reduce federal spending by $2.5 billion before April 1, 1980.

THE NEW YORK INTERNATIONAL

Grandmaster Anatoly Lein of New York, formerly of the USSR, scored 12½ points out of 14½. He did well, considering he was ill for a couple of rounds. International Master Edmar Mednis of New York played exceptionally well and yet had exceptionally bad luck. He came in second with 11½ points, but failed by half a point to earn the Grandmaster title. Gudmundur Sigurjonsson of Iceland and Vitaly Zaltsman, a recent arrival from the USSR, tied for third and fourth place with 10½ points each. The Brooklyn wunderkind Joel Benjamin, 13, started strong, but the pace was too much for him. He finished with six points. Here is his game with U.S. Master John Fedorowicz of New Jersey.

Selective Sale Of Sting Kits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency bee sting kits should not be sold to just anyone, but to trained persons such as teachers, paramedics or Boy Scout leaders who might need them quickly, U.S. medical experts have decided.

Friday's decision by a 16-member panel of the National Institutes of Health will keep the kits off most store shelves because they contain a powerful bee sting antidote, epinephrine, which some medical experts say could put excessive pressure on the heart.

COUNCIL CALENDAR PROPOSED

Victoria city council may soon start running a regular council calendar in local papers in an effort to increase public attendance at its meetings.

At a committee meeting Thursday Mayor Mike Young showed aldermen a draft of what the calendar might look like and the item got tentative approval.

The calendar would appear the week of council meetings, listing in simple terms what issues civic leaders plan to discuss.

Cooper—Campbell

On August 12, 1978, at 2 p.m., Christ Church Cathedral was the scene of a beautiful summer wedding uniting in marriage Barbara Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David E. Campbell, Victoria, B.C. and Mr. Ross Douglas Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Graeme G. Cooper, Victoria, B.C. The double-ring ceremony was officiated by Father John Lancaster.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride had chosen an exquisite gown fashioned of silk organza over tafetta. Lovely chantilly lace in rose and garland design enhanced the fitted bodice, front and back and bordered the picture neckline. Lace cuffs held the sheer bishop style sleeves and lace panels from waist to hemline adourned the bouffant skirt to a deep flounce en train. Her full cathedral veil of silk illusion, with double blusher, completely trimmed with matching lace—misted from a dainty floral spray, to comlete the picture of a radiant and happy bride. A bouquet of yellow roses, blue daisies, baby's breath and yellow ribbon was carried by the bride. Miss Kathy Campbell, sister of the bride was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Nancy and Susan Cooper, sisters of the groom, Karen Thulin, formerly of Campbell River and Joanne Oster. They all wore identical full-length gowns of yellow polyester and matching wedding hats. Their bouquets consisted of blue daisies, yellow marguerites, blue ribbon and puffed up with baby's breath. The mother of the bride wore a champagne coloured gown of finely pleated crepe georgette with bands of lace trim and a corsage of ivory roses. The groom's mother wore a princess style gown in soft yellow with a matching floral chiffon coat and a corsage of pink roses. The groom was attired in a fashionable powder blue tuxedo with a yellow rose complementing his lapel. Mark Cooper, the groom's brother was best man, and ushers were David N. Campbell, brother of the bride, Mark Lawliss and Brad Wells. All were outfitted in powder blue tuxedos.

A reception was held at the Victoria Golf Club. The bride's table hosted the beautiful wedding cake which was decorated by the bride's maternal grandmother Mr. John Oster proposed the toast to the bride.

Out of town relatives included: Mrs. C. H. Hanson, Greenwood, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs Vernon Hanson and Diane, Kamloops, B.C., Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bridge and family, Port Alberni, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holm and Mr. and Mrs. G. Erickson, both from Rossland, B.C.; Mrs. R. M. Cooper, Mrs. Gordon Shafer, Mrs. S. M. Manning, Mrs. Luard Manning, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Manning, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Cameron and family, Dr. and Mrs. G. D. Milne and Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Smith and family, all from the Vancouver area. Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Hill and Mrs. Sybil Urquhart were relatives from Victoria, B.C. All other out of town guests were from up-Island and the mainland.

Following the reception the couple left for a honeymoon in Hawaii, and will reside in Victoria, B.C., upon their return.

Hocking—Duthie

On August 12, 1978, a double ring ceremony was solemnized in The Stolen Church, Windermere, B.C. The Reverend H. John Stainer officiated, uniting in marriage, Cynthia Ann, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Duthie of Cranbrook and Victoria, and Mr. Alan Ross Hocking, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. (Bud) Hocking of Victoria.

For the occasion, the bride chose a traditional gown of white cotton, with fitted bodice and a tiered skirt with sheered cotton overskirt. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white daisies and baby's breath. Her attendant, Miss Jill Haras of Cranbrook was attired in a peach linen skirt and blouse and carried red roses. Mr. Eugene Meadows of Windermere was best man. Completing the natural theme, the church was decorated with local wildflowers.

The wedding cake, baked by the bride, was the centrepiece at a reception and buffet dinner held in the Windermere Community Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Hocking will reside in Calgary, Alberta.

Bussey—Collis

Mr. and Mrs. Don Collis are pleased to announce the marriage of their daughter, Lynda Marie, to James Frederick Bussey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bussey. The wedding took place August 19, 1978, in the garden of the Pacific Centre, Rev. D. Sparling officiated. Patricia Watt attended as bridesmaid, and best man was Larry MacIntosh.

At the informal reception that followed, Dr. James Gerry proposed the toast to the bride. After a honeymoon in San Francisco, the couple will reside in Vancouver.

Weddings

Rich—Dosso

On August 19, 1978, at 4 p.m., Reverend Robert Holmes of Central Baptist Church solemnized a double ring ceremony in which Miss Kay Dosso, Victoria, and John Blois Rich, Red Deer, Alberta, were united in marriage.

The wedding took place in the beautiful garden at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. and Mrs. H. Dosso. Given in marriage by her brother, the bride wore a formal white gown, a short white veil adourned her head, accessories being a string of pearls, a gift from the groom. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Maid of honour, Miss Ann Dosso of Vancouver, wore a pale green floor length gown and chose yellow daisies as her bouquet. The groom and his attendant, Mr. Edgar Kinvig, both wore matching light brown check suits for the occasion. Ushers were Daryl Goshulak and Ken Dosso, nephews of the bride. Miss Nancy Holmes sang "The Lord's Prayer" during signing of the register.

The reception was held at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel. Mr. Lloyd MacKey, from Chilliwack, was master of ceremonies. Grace was said by Mr. Alan Morrison and Reverend Olaf Dubland proposed the toast to the bride.

Portions of the nicely decorated wedding cake made by Miss Lorna Dosso and Mrs. Helen Dubland were shared by the forty-six guests while Miss Joan and Ken Dosso sang a paraphrase of the Love Chapter from Corinthians, accompanied with flute and guitar. For her going away outfit, Mrs. Rich chose a pale blue dress with white accessories. Following a honeymoon on the Island and to Red Deer, the happy couple will reside in Victoria.

Guests were from Vancouver, Chilliwack, Red Deer, Alberta and Deodars, India.

Couch—Clarke

A lovely summer wedding ceremony was conducted in picturesque St. Michael's and All Angels Church on July 22, 1978, by Reverend W. Hill uniting in marriage, Joanne Marie, only daughter of Mrs. Thelma Clarke, and Richard Anthony Couch, only son of Mrs. and Mrs. Charles Couch.

Given in marriage by her uncle Gordon Mitchell, from Vancouver, the fair haired bride was captivating in an elegant wedding gown of silk crystal charm over tafteta. Re-embroidered silk lace appliques adourned the medieval neckline and Empire waist of the fitted bodice and enhanced the long slim sleeves. Lace bordered the hem of the A-line skirt and full train sweeping back from the waist. A finger tip veil of silk illusion with a border of lace misted from a lace headpiece and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and stephanotis. The three bridesmaids, Maureen Mitchell, cousin of the bride, from Vancouver, Kathy McMillan, and Jane Wright wore identical gowns of chiffon floral print underlined with gold ivory and apricot and fashioned with off the shoulder ruffles which were repeated in hemline accents. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow daisies complemented with blue baby's breath. The engaging ring bearers Lionel Best, cousin of the bride, from Ottawa and Michael Oliver, nephew of the groom, from Richmond, wore sky blue jackets banded with navy blue and navy blue slacks. The groom, handsome in his navy blue tuxedo, was attended by Alan Lamb, as best man, John Parker and Bob Strachen as ushers. During the signing of the register Janet Wright sang the very appropriate "There is Love". The wedding cake made and decorated by the groom's aunt, Mrs. Ina Catterall, from Winnipeg, centered the bridal table at the garden reception held at the Deep Cove Chalet where Gordon Mitchell, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast to the bride. Guests from Ottawa, Winnipeg, Mission, Castlegar, Penticton and Vancouver joined their many Victoria friends to help Joanne and Richard celebrate the joyful day.

Following a honeymoon trip to Lake Tahoe and the interior of B.C. Joanne and Richard are now residing in Victoria.

Anniversaries

Cobham 50th

On August 29, 1978, Reverend and Mrs. Byron A. Cobham celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary. The happy day commenced with breakfast at the Empress dining room with their son, Aubrey, and daughter, Joyce, in attendance. Following breakfast they toured the city in a Tally-Ho wagon enjoying some unfamiliar scenes of the city. A reception was held at the Cobham's home at 2865 Scott Street where local friends and neighbors called in to tender warm wishes to the happy couple. Out-of-town guests were from Comox, Calgary and California, and many cards, letters and telegrams were received from all parts of Canada.

Daughter, Mrs. Joyce Daley of Chico, California, and son Aubrey of Sidney, B.C. sang "Memories are Made of This" and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" at the "At Home". The day ended with a family dinner at the Oak Bay Marina.

Reverend and Mrs. Cobham were married in Saint John, New Brunswick in 1928, and resided in Nova Scotia until 1964. From there they moved to Durham and later, Ridgetown, Ontario before retiring to Victoria, where they now reside.

Cullingford 50th

Mr. and Mrs. Frankland Cullingford celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary September 5, 1978. A dinner party was held in their honour at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Stan Gibbons, who was Mr. Cullingford's best man proposed a toast of good health and best wishes.

The happy couple danced to the anniversary waltz before the serving of the cake. A delightful evening was enjoyed by friends and relatives.

Tapes Lure Lions to Guns

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Professional big game hunters say unscrupulous competitors are using tape decks and spotlights to lure lions and other animals out of game reserves and under the guns of high-paying tourists.

Lions are reported to have been lured from famed Kruger National Game Park and Timbavati Game Park and shot just outside. Delys Taylor, wife of Timbavati's chief warden, says: "People are dragging carcasses right next to the fence to get the animals to come out."

Besides carcasses, methods allegedly used include taped animal distress calls to lure animals and powerful spotlights to blind them.

One tourist paid thousands of dollars to bag a lion on Johannesburg's outskirts, a newspaper reported. The animal turned out to be an old, lame circus lion bought for $920 and drugged so it would not wander away.

Stephen Smith, secretary of the Professional Hunter's Association of South Africa, said his group now has no power to stop the practices. "We have been involved in a long, uphill fight to get legislation to stop these reported abuses," the hunter said.

The issue attracted the attention of newspapers recently following the shooting of a rare white lion just outside the Timbavati park in the northeastern part of the country.

Smith's association numbers about 30 of the best hunters but has little clout, Smith said in an office filled with photos of big game hunts.

"For example," he said, "a European guy I knew from East Africa showed up here about a week ago. He is a hunter who has been kicked out of several countries because he has no scruples.

"He'll shoot anything. So here he is in South Africa with half a dozen European clients who have paid him big money and he's going to take them up to some private reserve here and we can't do anything to stop him. He's a dreadful fellow. He once shot a protected species of wildebeest during a job in another country in Africa so as to feed his guide boys."

Smith's association is pressing for strict regulations similar to those in other African countries. "We want professional hunters to be licensed so their licences to work can be taken away from them if they engage in unsportsmanlike practices," he said.

Administrators of the 20,000-square-kilometre Kruger Park have asked also that the province of Transvaal, where the park is located, do something also about the luring of game from the reserve. "This is not game hunting," says Dr. Uys de V. Pienaar, Krüger's chief ecologist. "It is simply game hawking."

The British Columbia Ferry Corporation is in the process of evaluating its records management policies. The Corporation invites tenders from firms with experience in the design of Corporate filing systems and the implementation of records management policies.
The consultant would be expected to identify key problem areas, recommend solutions, develop and supervise a plan for implementation of corrective procedures. Some of the general issues on which the Corporation is seeking analysis and recommendations include the following: the storage of large accumulations of old records; methods of accessing old records; a comprehensive records retention policy; the appropriate degree of standardization and centralization; the security of records; methods and procedures for dealing with specialized records such as computer printout and engineering drawings.
Preliminary submissions for this contract are to be prepared on a standard form provided by the Corporation. From these preliminary submissions a short-list will be chosen. The short-listed consultants will then be asked to prepare detailed submissions.
For additional details and forms on which submissions are to be made, please write or phone the Comptroller's Office
British Columbia Ferry Corporation,
818 Broughton Street,
Victoria, B.C.
V8W 1E4
(Telephone 387-1401).
The closing date for receipt of proposals is Oct. 19, 1978.
The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted by the Corporation.

Manhunt Cost Hits $4 Million

WAKEFIELD, England (AP) — The cost of a manhunt for a killer believed to have murdered 10 women in three years has reached more than £2 million ($4 million), the most expensive in British criminal history, police said today.

Chief Constable Ronald Gregory, head of police in West Yorkshire county who are co-ordinating the hunt in northern England for the man nicknamed the Ripper, told reporters:

"The Ripper inquiry is now believed to be the biggest and most costly murder hunt the country has ever seen. Over 250 officers are working full time to catch this man."

The killer has been named after Jack The Ripper, the notorious knifeman who butchered six prostitutes in London's tough East End in 1888 and was never caught. All but one of the Yorkshire Ripper's victims are believed by police to have been prostitutes.

They have all been battered and slashed by a knife and in each case the injuries have been the same.

Gregory said police recently have added two more unsolved murders of women to the score of the Ripper to bring the total of slayings he now is accused of to 10.

More Coffee Cuts

The second round of coffee price-cutting has begun and a third round may not be far away.

And that spells lower coffee prices for consumers in the near future.

General Foods Ltd., largest coffee roaster in Canada, has reduced its wholesale price by 10 cents a pound and other companies are expected to announce similar reductions next week.

The second round of price-cutting will be felt at the retail level almost immediately, spokesmen for Dominion Stores Ltd., Miracle Mart and Loblaws Ltd. said.

Other supermarkets are expected to follow suit.

A third round could come as early as October.

The first round came on Aug. 9 when companies knocked 10 cents off the wholesale price.

The reductions are a delayed reaction to a sharp decline in the world price for coffee beans which took place six months ago.

Beans purchased at higher prices had to be used up before savings could be passed along to customers, company spokesmen said.

Back To The Kitchen?

VANCOUVER (CP) — An insidious back-to-the-kitchen campaign is undermining the position of working women, delegates to the Womens' Rights Conference of the British Columbia Federation of Labor were told Friday.

Dr. Jane Hastings, a consultant to the Western Institute of the Deaf, said employers "need a work force that will come when it's needed and go away quietly when it's not — women furnish this segment of the work force."

Dr. Hastings said corporations were reacting to the embarrassment of high unemployment by trying to get women out of the work force.

"The unemployment situation is hitting women harder than anyone else — last hired, first fired," she said.

Dr. Hastings said inadequate day care, closure of transition houses and magazine articles championing femininity were causing many working women to feel doubts about their lives.

"The gains that are the result of womens' militancy are all melting, slipping away," she said. "Assertiveness is our best defence against this erosion."

Dr. Hastings said women are predisposed by their early training to feel guilty about working, particularly if they are mothers.

She said girls learn to put the care of others before their own needs.

"As a psychologist, I very rarely get parents who are worried about their little girls sitting around too quietly," she said.

"The message that most of us have had undermines our self-confidence and tells us someone else is number one. The message tells women not to assert themselves in trade unions, not to fight for contracts.

"The training to be nice is so severe that when we are pleasantly assertive we feel as if we're being violently aggressive."

Canada Files Claim On Fish-Rich Bank

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has served notice that it claims a larger chunk of fish-rich Georges Bank on the East Coast than it has mentioned previously.

The government said Friday that almost half the bank in the Gulf of Maine is in Canadian territory.

The U.S. government said in another announcement it continues to believe the entire bank is in American territory.

Both governments were expressing absolute positions in case their on-going maritime boundary dispute is sent to arbitration.

Special negotiators for both countries are due to meet shortly to resume talks on settlement of boundaries between 200-mile fishing limits on both coasts.

The Canadian action came in a formal announcement in the Canada Gazette, which records cabinet actions taken under various pieces of legislation.

It said that in 60 days a cabinet order given under the Territorial Sea and Fisheries Zone Act will extend Canadian fisheries jurisdiction.

An accompanying external affairs announcement said it is hoped the negotiations between Ambassador Marcel Cadieux of Canada and Morris Cutler of the U.S. that have lasted for many months will reach a successful conclusion. The Canadian government was confident the legal steps it was taking Friday would not impede these negotiations.

A map attached to the announcement showed that the proposed new boundary cuts almost through the centre of the bank. The new lines range from 22 kilometres to 43 kilometres—14 to 27 miles—south of the line formerly claimed by Canada. The former line went through the northern tip of the bank.

The government did not give the total area claimed.

But it said its new action adds 3,900 square kilometres—1,500 square miles—to its claim.

The Canadian position is well known to the Americans and a statement released by the American embassy here said:

"The United States believes the Canadian claim is without merit and is informing the Canadian government of its formal rejection of the claim."

It said the U.S. believes that Georges Bank is a "natural prolongation of the U.S."

Spending Change Impact To Be Felt in Four Months

OTTAWA (CP) — The impact of the recent roundabout of federal spending changes will be felt by most people for the first time four months from now.

It is in January that monthly family allowance cheques to 3.6 million families will be reduced, payments to 1.3 million needy pensioners will go up and insurance benefits for thousands of the unemployed will be cut — assuming Parliament approves the changes in the meantime.

Now that the dust has settled from a six-week scurry of cabinet announcements, and officials have filled in some details of promised economies, it is clear that the "reordering of government priorities" will be barely noticeable for months.

The over-all effect in the federal financial year ending next March 31 will be to trim less than one cent off every $3 of spending plans announced last April.

Total spending this fiscal year will outpace the current inflation rate of 9.4 per cent and last year's spending increase of 7.3 per cent, rising by 9.5 per cent to $48.3 billion from $44.1 billion last year.

And the government will be $300 million deeper in debt than it planned last April, with borrowing needs of $11.8 billion instead of $11.5 billion this fiscal year.

Almost all the spending changes outlined in a five-part series of announcements are concentrated in the next financial year — "paring existing programs, not new ones, not even enrichment of existing ones," says Robert Andras, minister in charge of the treasury. Even at that, spending next year will still rise by nine per cent to $52.6 billion.

The budget paring is a process that takes place every year about this time, normally in a series of private meetings inside government. Senior officers of government departments and agencies meet one after the other with treasury officials to negotiate their budgets for the coming fiscal year.

Often, it is, said, the bargaining is heated as departmental officers argue to preserve or expand their operations against skinflint treasury officials under understructions to hold total spending in check.

The first the public normally knows about this major annual feature of government is when the treasury publishes its stout blue book of spending estimates every February for the coming financial year. The dry lists of hundreds of spending items give few clues to the power struggles that produced them.

This year, for the first time, the budget-bargaining process was conducted partly in the public eye and some totals have been announced ahead of the usual February disclosure.

Prime Minister Trudeau forced the pace by proclaiming Aug. 1 that federal spending would be trimmed by $2 billion, catching most of his cabinet and the bureaucracy by surprise.

Cabinet ministers and officials had to scramble to come up with supporting details, piecing together a series of spending changes trumpeted in four major announcements.

It turns out that the $2 billion in "cuts and savings" are not outright reductions in spending compared to this year, but a reduction in the scale of the increase that the government estimates would have taken place next year without economies. In other words, Andras says, spending would have increased $6.3 billion next year without restraint, but now will go up by $4.3 billion.

Even so, many elements of the spending changes are up in the air and may not be settled until next year. About 15 cents out of every $1 in pledged economies — $300 million — have yet to be pinpointed. Another 11 cents worth, or $200 million, must be negotiated with the provinces. Other proposals will be debated in Parliament.

And there are signs that some government program directors are fighting back. Some programs lined up in mid-August for cuts — notably in consumer affairs, housing and agriculture — have already been restored.

Other changes next year:

—Monthly family allowances for 7.3 million children under 18, currently an average $25.68 and due to rise with inflation to about $28, to be cut to $20 in January;

—Monthly income supplements for about 1.3 million needy pensioners, set for a maximum $115.55 in October year and due to go up with inflation in January, to be enriched by an additional $20 a month for the neediest;

—Unemployment insurance benefits, currently a maximum $160 a week, depending on previous earnings, to be reduced in January to a maximum $144 a week. Other changes, effective next April, include increasing requirements for a second claim period to 16 weeks of work from the present 10 to 14 weeks, depending on region;

—Some families with dependent children to pay more income tax next year because of reduced allowances for children. But families earning less than $22,000 annually stand to get payments of up to $200 a child in a new tax credit.

Japan's Baths Going Private

248 CLOSED SINCE 1968

By CHIKAKO YATABE

TOKYO (AP) — Affluence and changing lifestyles may be sending another Japanese tradition down the drain — the public bath.

Many would lament the passing of what for generations has been a centrepiece of social activity and a symbol of togetherness in these islands. But the latest statistics show that in Tokyo alone, 248 public bath houses have closed down since 1968.

While 2,400 remain in the city, a number are hanging on only through side activities such as coin laundries or through the loyalty of long-time customers. And the cause behind their disappearance — rapid growth of modern apartments with private baths — continues to grow.

It is part of a trend in which reinforced concrete has put the stamp of anonymity on many of Japan's cities, and individualism is taking over increasingly from the old ways of doing things in a group.

The sento — "money bath" in Japanese — dates back more than six centuries. In earlier days, men and women used the same facility without the barrier of modesty. Outside influences and changing times brought an end to that, and today mixed bathing is found only in a few remote hot springs resorts.

Now the separate sections for the sexes each provides two huge tubs, one containing hot water and the other hotter, near scalding, to meet individual desires.

There is space outside the tubs where taps provide water for actual soaping and washing and rinsing off. This is never done in the tub itself, which is only for soaking and relaxing.

Like everything else, the cost of the public bath has gone up. Today it costs the equivalent of about 80 cents U.S. Ten years ago it cost about eight cents.

At one time there also was an extra charge for women for hair washing. That was dropped after men started letting their hair grow longer and the women cried discrimination.

But there is more to the public bath tradition than just a place to come clean. It has been a place where people meet to discuss the day's happenings, gossip about neighbors and share the feeling of being together that has been important to the Japanese.

The density of population in Japan's major urban areas has helped keep the public bath in business. While Japan's economy has boomed, housing has lagged. Millions still live in tiny houses or apartments without individual baths or sewer connections.

In most new housing developments, a private bath is taken for granted. Many Japanese aspire to such living as soon as they have the means. An ambitious five-year plan calls for 8.6 million new housing units by 1980, miniature in size, astronomical in cost, but modern.

Some people do not look lightly on the passing of the bathhouse.

WHAT Crummy Weather?

EDMONTON (CP) — On he night of Aug. 22, a torrential storm dropped a record-breaking 77 millimetres of rain on Lethbridge, plugging sewers and flooding roads and homes. Rainfall during a 24-hour period broke records dating back 77 years.

On July 11, Edmonton residents were drenched by a similar downpour that crippled the city and caused damage estimated at more than $3 million. Parts of the city reported more than 120 millimetres of rain.

The 88 millimetres recorded at the municipal airport broke a 98-year-old record for rainfall in a 24-hour period.

Last week, many Alberta farmers watched as swathed crops began sprouting in fields soaked by unusually heavy rains in early September.

Machinery for harvesting sat idle, useless because of wet fields.

While Albertans may grumble about their apparent spate of bad luck, climatologist Will Prusak of Edmonton maintains the weather has not been bad.

He points to an unusually dry and warm period from Aug. 3-12 when thousands of visitors flocked to Edmonton for the Commowealth Games. Only 10.6 millimetres of rain fell in the city during the period — half of that at night.

Although he has no records to support his suspicion, Prusak says much of the summer sunshine came on the weekends, and some of the warmest periods occurred on long holiday weekends.

In addition, the winter of 1977-78, which many Albertans cursed as cold and miserable, was near normal, says Prusak. But it followed three winters of abnormally beautiful weather.

It is difficult to argue, however, against those who complain about the weather of recent weeks.

Provincial records for the early weeks of September are not yet available, but Prusak says the situation in Edmonton reflects that of much of the province. The night of Sept. 8, 36.7 millimetres of rain fell in Edmonton — about one millimetre more than the average rainfall for the entire month.

Rain filled a ditch at a road construction site and a six-year-old boy drowned in the excavation.

Fred Boyce, a statistician with the Alberta department of agriculture, said all districts in the province reported crops sprouting in their swaths. The phenomenon lowers the grade and price of the grain and makes it difficult to harvest.

Last year, farmers faced weather problems of a different nature. Drought conditions prevailed in east-central and southern Alberta during August, but an extremely wet September delayed harvesting and left some crops on the fileds until the end of October.

Prusak attributes this year's recent dampness to a weather system that moved into California two weeks ago and spread up the coast and over much of western North America. It has not moved on.

The system's effects were amplified in Alberta where the lower levels of a circulating air mass moved westward across the province, rising with the terrain and dumping rain on the way.

"The weather behaves in a very complex manner," says Prusak, who added that he is perplexed by some of the climatic extremes he has seen in recent years.

Battle of Britain 'Myth' Shot Down

LONDON (AP) — Britons commemorating this week's anniversary of the Battle of Britain in the Second World War were told Friday by one of its veterans the heroic aerial duel for control of British skies was largely a myth.

Wing Commander H. R. Allen, a decorated flier of RAF Fighter Command, published his assessment of the conflict between the Royal Air Force and the German Luftwaffe in the summer and fall of 1940 on the traditional anniversary of the battle, Sept. 15—the day the RAF claimed to have shot down 185 German planes.

"The importance of the battle in the air has become exaggerated and, perhaps worse, has become an emotive issue."

The title was "conjured up" by wartime Prime Minister Winston Churchill, whose memorable phrase about the RAF pilots—"Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few"—helped to build the myth, Cmdr. Allen wrote in The Times.

Cmdr. Allen said only one-third of the German planes claimed by the RAF were acutally destroyed but the claims were "good propaganda" at the time.

By official count, the Nazis lost about 2,300 planes and the RAF about 900.

Cmdr. Allen said the fighting was insignificant compared with the air battles over Stalingrad and Malta, and the Luftwaffe was not knocked out of the sky over Britain.

If the RAF really had won, he argued, the Luftwaffe would not have been able to launch the night bombing of British cities that lasted until Germany attacked the Soviet Union in June, 1941.

Church services all over Britain on Sunday will remember the young Hurricane and Spitfire pilots who handed Nazi Germany its first setback of the war.

"One must keep a sense of perspective if one is making a historical appraisal," Cmdr. Allen wrote.

The Times said Allan was active in the Fighter Command in 1940, won the Distinguished Flying Cross and "went on to command more fighter squadrons than anyone else in British history."

No Terrorist Conspiracy: Expert

TORONTO (CP) — Sir Robert Mark, Britain's former top policeman, says he is convinced from his experience that there is no central international conspiracy to promote terrorism around the world.

All societies are vulnerable to terrorism, said the former head of Scotland Yard, but it would be a mistake to look on terrorism as affecting all countries equally.

Social, economic and political conditions in any country will ordinarily determine the probability or extent of terror and the success in dealing with it, Sir Mark said in addressing the Commonwealth Press Union (CPU) Friday.

RCMP Superintendent Bruce Northrop of Vancouver, who also spoke, agreed with his British colleague that co-operation is needed from the press in dealing with terrorists and hostage-takers.

Hostage-takers need the press and publicity to gain their desired notoriety, Northrop said, adding that he always tries to co-operate with the media and that the media have shown encouraging responsibility.

One of his worries, however, is that hostage-takers tend to follow press reports of previous incidents and use the results as "textbooks" for their own operations.

As the gathering of Commonwealth publishers and editors opened their three-day conference, Shridath Ramphal, Commonwealth Secretary-General, appealed to the press of the industrialized countries to show more sympathy to the needs of the emerging countries.

"This is what the New International Economic Order is all about," said the London-based Ramphal who took over as conference inaugural speaker after Prime Minister Trudeau, who had been asked to open the meeting, declined the invitation.

Diesel Rabbit Fuel Test Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a top performance of 65.6 kilometres (41 miles) a gallon, the diesel-powered Volkswagen Rabbit provides the best fuel economy of any automobile sold in the United States, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) announced Friday.

The West German-made Rabbit, equipped with a five-speed manual transmission, is followed by a diesel-powered Volkwagen Rabbit with a four-speed manual transmission, which gets an estimated 64 kilometres (40 miles) a gallon. Placing third is the diesel Volkswagen Dasher, which gets 57.6 kilometres (36 miles).

"Consistent with the trend in past years, the average miles per gallon for all 1979 models thus far tested is slightly higher than last year's," EPA administrator Douglas Costle said of the agency's annual fuel economy ratings.

Costle said the 1979 models are averaging 31.84 kilometres (19.9 miles) a gallon compared to 31.36 kilometres (19.6 miles) on 1978 models.

The VW Rabbit also won top honors last year when the EPA estimated its fuel economy at 64 kilometres (40 miles) a gallon.

The Datsun 210, a Japanese-made car, ranked No.4 with 56 kilometres (35 miles) a gallon—the highest ranking for a gasoline-powered car.

At the bottom of the list was the Aston Martin V-8, which the EPA said gets only 12.8 kilometres (eight miles) a gallon. Immediately above that are four cars listed as getting 16 kilometres (10 miles). They are the Cadillac limousine, the Cadillac with the commercial chassis, Jaguar XJ and Jaguar XJS.

All of the top 10 cars are classified as subcompacts and are either of foreign make or largely manufactured abroad by subsidiaries of U.S. auto-makers, the EPA said.

The latest lists include 96 per cent of all new cars and trucks expected to be sold in the United States during the coming year, Costle said. He said an updated list will be published early next year to include the remaining autos.

The highest-ranked auto from a U.S. manufacturer is the Dodge Colt Hatchback with a four-speed manual transmission. The EPA estimated its fuel performance at 54.4 kilometres (34 miles) a gallon.

The EPA traditionally publishes two lists. One is for cars that are sold in 49 states. The second is for cars sold in California, which requires more stringent emission controls to combat air pollution.

Production Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board says industrial production increased 0.5 per cent in August, about average for the past year and a sign that the economy is growing steadily despite a slowdown in consumer spending.

Frank Wille . . . at work.

HE'S 'HIGH' ACHIEVER

Hike Up Mt. McKinley Frank's Ideal Vacation

max low

Consider this:

You're a businessman who has worked so hard building up a successful chain of car dealerships and transmission shops and bringing up nine children that you've never taken a holiday in 20 years.

Feel tired already just at the thought of it? Yes, so do I.

Finally, you decide this will be the year you'll take a break and unwind. And so what do you do? Fly over and tour Europe? Lie on the sand in Hawaii?

No. You climb 20,320-foot Mt. McKinley, highest peak in North America!

That's what Frank Wille of Victoria did this summer at the age of 53 and he highly recommends it.

Born in Frankfurt, Germany, Frank came to Canada in 1948 and he admits that he and his wife Vera worked hard.

"When you have a lot of kids to raise and a substantial business to build up over the years, you don't think of holidays," he says with a grin. "We enjoyed all the work and we still do.

"When the kids were small, I worked 16 or 17 hours a day every day except Christmas and New Year's Day," Frank explains. "But as they grew older I took one or two days off a week and we started climbing."

Soon it became a real family affair with all the Wille children — now aged between 11 and 29 — getting into the act.

"All our spare time was spent climbing," says Frank. "We scaled the Golden Hinde which is 7,800 feet and the highest peak on Vancouver Island and we climbed both Mt. Baker and Mt. Rainier, which is over 14,000 feet."

But they were only two-day stints and small stuff really compared with what Frank had in mind for his first big vacation. He would tackle Alaska's Mt. McKinley, one of the toughest climbs in the world.

Even the preparation for his "holiday" was gruelling.

"Every night for a year I did strenuous exercise — running, bike-riding, weightlifting — to get myself in shape and on Sundays we ran up 5,800-foot Mt. Arrowsmith," says Frank. "The first time that took us about 14 hours but after six trips up we cut it to seven hours."

Then came the climb itself and Frank admits it was a tough slog.

"The mental preparation is worse than getting ready physically," he explains. "You just have to make up your mind you're going to make it to the top."

Many don't.

All 16 in their expedition including two guides (Frank was the only Canadian and most of the others were French and American climbers) made it after being flown in to a glacier at the 7,000-foot level and climbing from there.

"But another party of Japanese climbing at the same time as us lost two at the top," says Frank. "Two died in falls and a third was flown out in a coma by helicopter. So you see it's no cakewalk!"

You practically climb the mountain twice, explains Frank, as you move some of your gear up part of the way and then climb down and take the rest up.

"All the time you are roped together and it's cold (30 below), icy and daylight all night long. You have to be roped because of the huge crevasses. On the way down we had two guys plunge into a crevasse but we were able to haul them out with the ropes."

It's a young man's game, Frank concedes, and he says McKinley is so tough that probably only a handful of men his age have ever made it.

"I like to think I'm setting an example to men my age who laze around with big stomachs," he says. "I'm in pretty good shape now and yet I was very badly wounded in the war. I was shot out of a tank and you wouldn't have given five cents for me then."

The three-week adventure cost Frank Wille roughly $2,500 but he doesn't mind that.

"I've never taken a holiday nor spent any money on myself so what the heck!" he laughs.

And the next time he feels he needs a break, will he become a tourist and take a restful holiday?

"No, I'll climb a mountain," he says, adding that he'd like to try Africa's famed Kilimanjaro.

"I get a boost out of it that enables me to continue my way of living, my hard work," he explains. "Climbing is 10 times tougher than being here," he says, glancing around his transmission shop, "but I enjoy it.

"You don't think that maybe when you're hanging out there on a rock face and the air is thin because there isn't much oxygen and every step brings pain . . . but looking back on it, it's fantastic."

First holiday in 20 years.

40 JOBS

Tool Plant Goes Ahead

Dorosz Industries Ltd. will begin manufacturing rock bits at the former Ste. Michelle winery on Quadra starting in January, company spokesman Nick Liberto announced today.

There will be about 40 workers hired by year's end with plans to expand to about 300 employees as orders increase.

A lease agreement was signed Friday with Oakcrest Park Estates, owners of the property.

The manufacturing plant will occupy 32,000 square feet of the building and Dorosz has an option for 24,000 square feet more.

"The building is ideal for our purposes," Liberto said. "If we had known about this earlier it would have saved us a lot of time."

Liberto said the company has orders for $2.5 million worth of bits per month, starting in January, but has been granted an extension to begin deliveries later in the year if necessary.

He said minor renovations will begin immediately and he will begin placing orders for equipment expected to cost between $700,000 and $1 million.

The equipment should be received and installed by the end of November.

He said about 40 people would be hired and it would take at least one month to train them. Drill bits would begin to be produced by February, hopefully, he said.

The company will make a new type of rock bit that does not use ball bearings and therefore does not wear out as quickly as standard bits.

The design has been patented by Dennis Dorosz, 35, of Victoria, a former employee of Hughes Tool Co., who has lived here for the past five years.

Others associated with Dorosz include Al Hildebrandt, another former Hughes employee, and Don Dobie Sr., an engineering consultant from Calgary.

Liberto is arranging financing.

He said the company decided against going to Prince Rupert on a $200,000 federal DREE grant or going to Washington State where investors had offered financial support.

Instrumental in keeping the plant in Victoria, he said, was industrial development commissioner Barry Mayhew, who carried out feasibility studies, and Victoria MLA Sam Bawlf, who helped locate a suitable site.

The company had sought land in a proposed industrial park at Interurban Road in Saanich (a project abandoned by Saanich council) not knowing the winery building was available.

"The winery building is exactly what we need and only minor renovations will be needed," Liberto said.

It's Business As Usual

Fire hazard notices posted in the lobby of the Empress Hotel Friday have had no affect on the hotel's business.

Assistant hotel manager Fred Borg said today he's received no major complaints.

Neither have there been any checkouts or cancellations because of the notices which state that a fire safety inspection of the building was made on June 28 and a number of deficiencies noted.

"Very few people read signs anyway," Borg said. "A couple of guests have looked at them and just waked away."

There were 320 guests registered in the 425-room hotel overnight.

Meanwhile a CP Hotels engineering official is expected to arrive this weekend to meet with city fire officials and review the problems.

City fire inspector Ray Best said on Friday the hotel's alarm system is obsolete and the hotel is deficient in heat and smoke detectors. There are not enough fire doors in hallways or stairwells and the doors to all rooms should be replaced to meet current safety standards, Best said.

BALDERSON

Hotel manager Ted Balderson first refused to comment saying the matter was in the hands of CP lawyers.

However in a written statement issued late Friday he said the hotel will conform to the requirements.

He said he had attempted to meet with Fire Chief Eric Simmons without success and hoped a meeting could be arranged to determine in detail the requirements so that work could begun.

Balderson was critical of the chief and said he regretted the action "particularly in the height of the tourist season when the hotel, filled to capacity, could not possibly undertake the alterations within a 60-day time limit."

"My major concern is the unwarranted bad publicity, particularly in the American tourist markey.

"This is a shame in view of the outstanding efforts of our provincial government, the Greater Victoria Visitors Information Centre, ourselves and others to attract tourists to this world-renowned area."

The Empress was one of seven hotels and 12 apartments warned earlier this year to upgrade fire safety features.

Under the bylaw owners of buildings have 60 days following inspection to correct the deficiencies or be exposed by way of a posted fire inspection notice.

Land Removal Could Hit Fish

Environmentalists said today they fear the removal from the Agricultural Land Reserve of two parcels of land adjacent to Demaniel Creek in Sooke.

They warn the removal may have long range detrimental effects on the the fisheries potential of the important Sooke salmon river.

The two parcels, along with several several other holdings in Sooke, have been designated for removal from the ALR following a soil study to determine their suitability as farmland.

The two parcels in the creek area to be taken out of the ALR have been found totally inadequate for agriculture.

The largest parcel is situated near the mouth of the creek and the other is on its upper reaches.

Environmentalists fear that once the parcels are out of the ALR there may be pressures for development.

If this occurred, they say, it would mark the start of the creek's deterioration as as a salmon producer.

A public hearing will be held at the Sooke Community hall towards the end of October to review properties to be taken out or included in the ALR.

Commission chairman Garry Runka said under the ALR act now, the commission can do nothing to protect the fisheries resources of streams and rivers of the province.

"We can only deal with agricultural lands," he said.

Last September the Social Credit government deleted from the ALR act the commission's power to acquire land for greenbelts, land banks and recreation.

Howard English, a member of the advisory committee to the International Salmon Commission, said it was a big mistake to weaken the jurisdiction of the commission.

"There should be laws for the protection of food producing rivers, the same as there are for agriculture," he said.

MLA Predicts Year's Delay For Helmcken

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber has charged that policy and committee changes ordered by Health Minister Bob McClelland will delay the Helmcken Road hospital by a year and add $4 million to its cost.

He said ground breaking was expected in April of this year but now it looks like this work will not start before January.

An additional problem, Barber said, was McClelland's decision Aug. 29 to dismiss a Vancouver firm, Unecon Partnership, as project manager for the hospital.

Barber said the hospital now is without a project manager.

Meanwhile hospital officials will meet with McClelland Monday to express concerns about the delays in planning the hospital.

Alan Patterson, Victoria General Hospital Board chairman, said he will also ask the minister to define what powers — if any — local officials have in the planning process.

"If we have no authority, there is no point in our being there."

He said it appears the hospital board's function has been reduced to being a rubber stamp for government decisions on how hospital construction will proceed.

He said he is concerned about two things: delays in getting construction started and the disbanding of a committee set up to plan the project.

The committee was subsequently restructured with new personnel.

The committee had consisted of Gerry Fisher, manager of the provincial government's hospital construction division, Murray Halkett of the regional hospital planning commission and Garth Gloeckler of Victoria General.

McClelland disbanded the committee over the summer, replacing Fisher with Vancouver contractor John Bell and removing both Halkett and Gloeckler.

In addition, the hospital board had understood the government would accept fast-track design at Helmcken, allowing construction to begin on one phase while planning continued on secondary phases.

However, one year after it was firmly proposed by the government, McClelland in May, 1978, rejected the idea and said all planning would have to be completed before construction could begin.

Patterson said he hopes McClelland will be able to explain the changes at Monday's meeting.

VCS Gets Brand-New Look

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The Victorian Celebrations Society has voted to disband its executive structure and replace it with widely-based representation from the community in hopes of revitalizing the organization, soothing over a lot of hurt feelings and erasing a $7,500 debt.

A five-member working committee will be elected Oct. 4 but policy making will be carried out by an 18-member board of governors, 15 of whom will be appointed.

The board is a community-wide attempt to bring some order to an organization which has been under fire for refusing to co-operate with other Victoria groups in the tourist promotion field.

The VCS has agreed to have the following organizations represented on the board of governors: Victoria Chamber of Commerce, Visitors Information Centre, Downtown Business Association, Junior Chamber of Commerce, a representative from the armed forces plus city council representatives from Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

The Visitors Information Centre and chamber will have two directors each while all other organizations will have one.

The board will also consist of a full-time manager, to be hired after the Oct.4 meeting, plus the new president, vice president and past president.

VCS director Murray Gammon, who along with chamber and VIC officials helped to organize the new structure, said he is optimistic the fortunes of the Victorian Celebrations Society would improve after the Oct. 4 meeting.

"There is no question we had to do something and I think we have taken the proper first step. Things should get better now."

The Victorian Celebrations Society organizes the Victorian Days events in May but has not handled festivals occurring in the other 11 months.

Officials of the VIC and chamber had expressed concern because the VCS was the only organization set up to deal with celebrations and yet confined its activities to the single week, leaving a 51-week void.

Concern reached a head early this year when the chamber began planning a Seattle tourist blitz with the aid of other local groups and the provincial government and then learned the Victorian Celebrations Society had also planned a Seattle blitz without informing other organizations.

The chamber tourist and convention committee blasted the Victorian Celebrations Society for creating confusion in Seattle about who was representing Victoria.

The resulting debate led to the present reformation of the VCS.

VCS secretary Gerry Parker said she is delighted by the restructuring of the organization.

"A lot of well-meaning people have been putting a great deal of effort into this organization but we need to bring in people with a good business sense," she said.

"Our deficit this year was $7,500. We brought in budgets but the revenue was never enough to meet our expenses. I am confident things will improve now."

Last act of the outgoing executive will be a casino and bingo night Saturday, Sept. 30, at Cedar Hill Community Hall.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president John Ansell said the new structure of the VCS will permit the formation of a much-needed Super Committee in Victoria to coordinate all efforts related to the tourist industry.

He said co-ordination of effort had not been possible as long as one group, the Victorian Celebrations Society, went its own way.

VIC president Ted Balderson had also singled out the VCS as a stumbling block to community co-operation.

HLRA GIVEN RAP BY VGH

The Victoria General Hospital board doesn't think much of the performance of the Health Labor Relation Association.

The association is the bargaining body for all B.C. Hospitals.

The VGH board has gone on record with its disenchantment by passing a a motion stating its dissatisfaction with the general performance to date of the HLRA and specifically with the way it handled the Hope arbitration award.

The award to the Hospital Employees Union, made under the terms of the Essential Services Act by Allan Hope, a Prince George lawyer, was challenged in court by the HLRA.

The move was criticised by both the union and the provincial government.

"Regardless of whether they should have appealed the award or not, they handled it poorly," said hospital trustee Cliff Horwood.

"Surely they could have done it in a manner that wouldn't make everyone irate."

Trustee Carol Pickup said she was disturbed by the general aura that surrounded a recent HLRA annual convention.

She said it included among other things, Pinkerton guards at the door.

Mike O'Brien, a member of the HLRA board, said the organization is already considering a re-assessment of its directions and purposes.

He asked the VGH board to make positive suggestions for such changes to the HLRA.

Dief: New Goals at 83

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker, 83 on Monday, says he wants to spend the rest of his life raising hope in an age of despair.

"I have never known the feelings that exist today," the former prime minister said in a birthday interview at his Rockcliffe Park home, his perky Cairn terrier McAndy at his feet, his late wife Olive above him, in portrait.

"The fear in the hearts of Canadians . . . where are we going."

World wars and depressions of the past have never produced the feelings of despair that grip modern Canadians, he declares, his voice assuming the melodramatic platform rumble that has mesmerized audiences since he began his political career in the 1920s.

As a result, he says he wants to spend the years he has left restoring a sense of determination in Canadians, giving them reason to "raise their hearts in hope."

For some Canadians, Diefenbaker's mere presence in public life is inspiration enough. He has been elected to Parliament 12 times and is looking forward to a 13th win in his Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert. He keeps himself active — he's planning an October visit to China, then a return to the Commons — when many his age have been tucked away in homes.

Yet he has had his share of defeats. He was beaten twice in federal elections, twice in Saskatchewan provincial elections and twice for the Conservative party leadership before his 1956 win.

Lately, he has also taken a physical beating. He was put in hospital for fatigue during a recent trip to the Martimes, then flown to Ottawa where doctors removed nine infected teeth. His medical reports list hardening of the arteries and other signs of advancing age.

At times, he appears to want to regard politics in the serene rational manner one might assume of an octogenarian. But his efforts always fail.

"I've come to an age — you may not believe it — when partisanship no longer has any definite place in my general thinking," he says.

Then his eyes take on their familiar mischievious twinkle and he launches into a vitriolic attack on Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, his government and Liberals in general.

Inside the Conservative party, Diefenbaker continues to go his own way. He has never forgiven former party president Dalton Camp and others he blames for his overthrow as leader in 1967.

He never completely made peace with Robert Stanfield, the man who replaced him.

But he does get along with Joe Clark, the party's present leader. Clark, however, is 44 years his junior and the two aren't close.

He never speaks of retirement. But then, nobody even bothers to ask him about it any more.

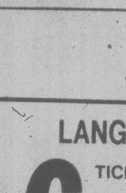
Charley's Aunt
by Branson Thomas Sept. 21 - 30
DIRECTED BY ADRIAN JARVIS
A delightful Victorian farce. Two undergraduates conspire with a friend to impersonate a wealthy aunt from Brazil. The fun doubles when Charley's real aunt arrives.



Uncle Vanya
by Anton Chekov Oct. 26 - Nov. 4
DIRECTED BY HETTY CLEWS
This touching Russian classic is Chekov at his best. Laughter and pathos, love and pain.

BOEING-BOEING.
by Marc Camoletti Dec. 7 - 16
DIRECTED BY TONY BUKOWIEKI
Three beautiful hostesses from separate international airlines, all engaged to the same man, make an unscheduled arrival at his Paris apartment, et voila! this hilarious comedy!

i remember mama
by John Van Druten Feb. 8 - 17
DIRECTED BY HELEN SMITH
1912 San Francisco setting — comedy — joys and troubles of a Norwegian family whose core is Mama.

The Late Edwina Black.
by Wm. Dinne and Wm. Moram Mar. 29 - April 7
DIRECTED BY JUTTA WOODLAND
A who-done-it with a difference!

Design For Living.
by Noel Coward May 10 - 19
DIRECTED BY BARBARA MEIKLEJOHN
Sparkling with the famed Coward wit, — a seldom-seen comedy about four international sophisticates. Possibly Coward's best play.

Nicaragua Claims Leon Recaptured

MANAGUA (AP) — Government troops smashed a week-long rebel defence of Leon and recaptured the northwestern Nicaraguan city in fierce overnight fighting, a national guard spokesman said today.

Col. Aguiles Aranda Escobar, the guard's public relations chief, refused to say how many casualties resulted from the fighting for Nicaragua's second largest city.

Aranda said troops have also retaken part of Esteli, another rebel strongold, and "cleaned out snipers who caused great loss in lives and property." He gave no casualty figures for the fighting in Esteli.

President Anastasio Somoza's ground and air forces had been pounding rebel defenders in both cities. The insurgents are led by leftist Sandinista guerrillas in a bid to drive Somoza from power.

Aranda's annoucement of the government victory followed word that Roman Catholic Church groups have appealed to U.S. President Carter to cut off aid to the embattled Somoza government.

Church groups in the predominantly Roman Catholic Central American country, led by the presbyterial council of the Managua archdiocese, addressed their appeal to Carter in an open letter dated Friday and made public today.

It asked that Nicaraguans be allowed to determine their own future, described the current government as "a regime sustained by death" and called for Somoza's resignation.

The letter, copies of which were given to reporters, noted the United States has sustained the Somoza family in power by "brute force" since U.S. Marines invaded Nicaragua in the late 1920s and helped install Somoza's father as president.

The Carter administration has suspended military aid to the Somoza government but still provides economic assistance.

Hydro to Increase Directors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Premier Bennett plans to announce soon an expanded board of directors for the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority in answer to complaints the government-owned utility is subject to control by too small a group, including its own management.

Bennett said Friday that he has almost completed a list of names for "a broader selection of directors on both geography and thought."

It will be a group of "very positive directors" who "can give encouragement to Hydro management" but also make the utility more accountable, Bennett said.

Hydro often has been criticized for having only four members on its board of directors — Hydro chairman Robert Bonner, Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, Charles Brazier and John Steele.

Bennett declined to indicate who he has in mind for directorships, or how many, but said: "You will be very pleased, as will all of British Columbia, with the broad selection of people that have agreed to serve."

Bennett said, "We are going to get some very positive directors who won't be full time, who won't be a drain on the public purse but can give direction.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver Friday the legislature's Crown corporations reporting committee was told that the B.C. Energy Commission does not have the expertise to determine if Hydro's rate hikes are justifiable.

"I would not welcome such a move," said Bonner.

Bonner also told the committee that the provincial government should allow Hydro to make long-term power export contracts with the United States.

Commission deputy chairman John Ludgate said the commission needs funds and an opportunity to begin evaluating Hydro's rate increases.

"I don't think he's correct to say we lack the expertise — it's an easy thing for Bonner to say that now, if we're not evaluating Hydro's rate increases," said Ludgate.

"We do the same thing for other utilities in the province, large and small, and the principles are basically the same."

Bonner was responding to Liberal leader Gordon Gibson who asked if he favored regulation of Hydro's rate increases by an outside body such as the commission.

"Certainly it would require more staff and more funding if we were to take on Hydro, said Ludgate. "It would be a huge workload because it's the largest utility in the province.

"But if we were asked, we would do it and it is well within our expertise."

Extradition of Proll Set

LONDON (UPI) — Astrid Isolde Proll, getaway driver of the Baader-Meinhof terrorist gang she helped found, today lost the first round of her battle against extradition to West Germany, where she claims she will be killed.

Ms. Proll, 31, was arrested Friday in a north London auto garage where she worked under the alias of Anna Puttick as a $152-a-week mechanics instructor in a government-run course.

Ms. Proll did not attend the hearing. Scotland Yard requested her extradition to West Germany where she is wanted for the attempted murder of two policemen.

A magistrate's court issued a provisional extradition warrant but ruled the West German government must submit formal evidence before the warrant can be confirmed.

She disappeared from Germany in 1974 after being freed conditionally on health grounds while awaiting trial on the charges.

Ms. Proll's love of cars dates back to her early days with the Red Army Faction, where she was reputed to be the getaway driver of the gang that terrorized West Germany from the mid-1960s.

But in a statement issued through her lawyer, Dean Sargeant, Ms. Proll said she would come "to the same sticky end as the others in Germany's prisons."

Both namesakes of the terror band — Andreas Baader and Ulrike Meinhof — died in German cells. The government says they committed suicide but supporters claim they were murdered.

McCarthy Says Pay U.S. Exchange

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said Friday she has told staff on the government-owned ferry Princess Marguerite to pay the current exchange rate for United States money.

Throughout the summer, U.S. funds were accepted at par, with change being given in U.S. currency.

Mrs. McCarthy said she thought this system was working but recently has received complaints about it.

Lengthy Strike Looms

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — A potentially lengthy and economically crippling strike began Friday when workers at the Inco Metals Co. operation rejected the company's latest offer for a one-year contract.

Picket lines went up after about 61 per cent of 10,487 workers, members of Local 6500 of the United Steelworkers of America, voted against a proposal drafted in part by Ontario Labor Minister Robert Elgie and accepted earlier in the week by the company.

There are 11,500 workers in the local.

Inco officials have said the company has a seven- to eight-month stockpile of nickel at locations across the continent, increasing the prospect of a lengthy shutdown.

Typhoon Strikes

TOKYO (Reuter) — Typhoon Irma, smashing a trail of havoc across southwest Japan, killed six people and made 3,000 homeless, police said today. Four people were listed as missing.

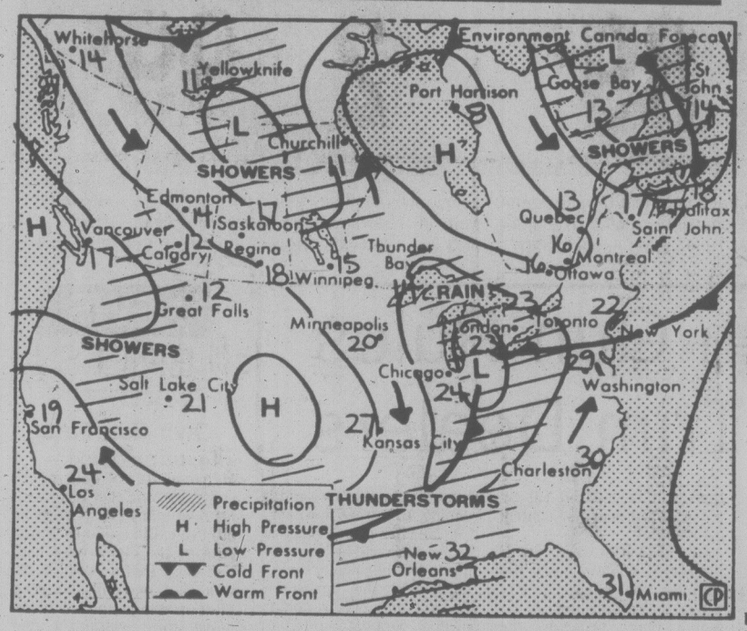
the weather



Map valid until noon Sunday

Patchy clouds and isolated showers lingered over parts of the B.C. Interior overnight behind a disturbance which passed through the province on Friday. Meanwhile another rapidly—approaching disturbance has spread more rain and showers to the north coast. The showers will spread south and eastward aross the remainder of B.C. today. Thundershowers are also likely to develop over the Interior. Unsettled cool weather will persist across B.C. Sunday.

Oaks Better Team Than Credited: Dillon

So the Shamrocks are home again and the Mann Cup is back in Eastern Canada after a four-year stay in the West. It was a good fight, mom, but they took it away from us in that sixth game. We had a five goal-lead and we couldn't hold it. That's the story of how we let the side down.

When it was all over the Red Oaks proved they wanted this one a little more than the Shamrocks.

For a team that was described as having only 10 players—five old pros and some house-leaguers—the Red Oaks did better than all right; and it makes one wonder, doesn't it, what Nanaimo Timbermen might have been like if goalie Tim Barrie had elected to stay in the West and the Wassons, Jim and Bob, had decided not to go home to Peterborough a couple of years ago.

These players were the sparks of the Red Oaks, and Barrie the series star. Barrie, it might be recalled, wasn't one of the goalkeeping leaders in the West when he played with the Timbermen in 1977. His goals-against-average was a mediocre 14.22. Larry Smeltzer of the Shamrocks was the No. 1.

Leon Hall, the Shamrock statistician, who has been a part of the club and lacrosse here as long as anyone, was saying that the Red Oaks foiled the Shamrocks with a zone defence, with the front man taking the first Shamrock down the floor and the defence sagging in as the Rocks tried to go through the middle. Shamrocks never really did fathom this manoeuvre and get the ball deep as they should have.

As a result—and this was all during the series—because of the persistent checking tactics of the Red Oaks, the Shamrocks gave up far too many turnovers for their own good and were ripe for the fast-break.

Or as coach Nirmal Dillon said: "They were an excellent fast-break team; they picked up five juniors who could run; they made the difference and they really were a much better team than people gave them credit for being."

"We lost it in the sixth game," said Nirmal. "Even after we had blown an 8-3 lead, we were ahead 11-9 and, with a penalty against us, we had four clean breaks on goal and couldn't score. They eventually scored on the power play and it was 11-10, and . . . then there was the stupid goal the referee gave them . . . (That was the controversial winning goal in the sixth game) . . . we played well for the first part of the first period in the final game, then we got behind, panicked a bit and they beat us with the fast break . . . and through the series Barrie was hot, and that surprised us."

Capsule comments only, because it's all over and it had been a good season otherwise.

The wounds will heal, and come spring the eternal flame will flicker anew. This isn't the first team to lose when everyone figured it should have won.

Elsewhere, Jack Shupe, coach of the Cougars, was saying at the Vancouver Canucks media luncheon this week that "yes, the Cougars look pretty good, especially some of the new forwards." But also Jack said he wouldn't complain if someone could tell him where to find a couple of big defencemen. That appears to be the problem area at the moment. He has the numbers, but he also values size. And the team to beat? New Westminster. So what else is new?

What else, for sure? Because Dennis Ververgaert of the Canucks was suggesting that western juniors who have graduated into the NHL in the past few years appear to be a tougher breed than their eastern counterparts; and Shupe was quick to agree that perhaps the fact that these youngsters are subject to the rigors of travel more than the players in the east, makes them travel-tough. They learn how to rate themselves by necessity and it's a good grounding for any player aspiring to be a professional.

Which is probably a good reason why the Canucks should draft more western players as they have the toughest travel schedule in the NHL. It's that simple.

And who do the Canucks have this season that might fit into this category? Bill Derlago (89-63—152) from Brandon; Curt Fraser (48-44—72) from the Cougars; Stan Smyl (29-47—76) from New Westminster; to name the first three draft choices and in that order.

* * *

And also, when it was suggested here earlier in the week that post positions made much of the difference in harness racing, the caller said: prove it. Which is easy, because in a recent survey of five of the leading half-mile tracks in the East, the results came out like this for winners from various post positions: No. 1, 21%; No. 2, 18%; No. 3, 15%; No. 4, 11%; No. 5, 11%; No. 6, 10%; No. 7, 8%; and No. 8, 6%. So there, and with no other factors being considered either. By the way have you seen the overnights?

"Today's diet, 'Twiggy.' One spoonful of peas and half a carrot."

Calgary Coach Looks For Smoke From Lions

By The Canadian Press

Coach Jack Gotta, whose Calgary Stampeders beat and tied British Columbia Lions in two earlier meetings this season, is looking forward to "a barnburner" when the two clubs clash again Sunday in Calgary.

"I expect it'll be a high-scoring game," said Gotta. "I can't see it going any other way."

The Calgary contest will be televised on the full CTV network with kickoff set for 1 p.m. (PST).

Other Canadian Football League action available on television this weekend includes Sunday's game at Montreal where CBC will televise Hamilton Tiger-Cats' encounter with the Alouettes starting at 2 p.m., and tonight's game at Winnipeg where former Blue Bombers coach Bud Riley returns as head coach of Toronto Argonauts. The Winnipeg contest was scheduled to be shown on the CTV network, starting at 3 p.m.

One other contest—Edmonton Eskimos visiting Saskatchewan Roughriders on Sunday—will not be televised.

The Stampeders, who finished last in the Western Conference last season with a 4-12 record, surprised the Lions with a 23-21 win in their first meeting last July, then played to a 19-19 tie in the return game.

Gotta expects a tough battle against the Lions, especially their defensive unit. He noted the B.C. offence has been floundering lately but is coming on with quarterback Jerry Tagge improving all the time.

"B.C. has been hurting themselves—the interceptions, fumbles, things that every club does. But on the whole, they have a good balanced attack with Larry Key running well for them. They have a lot of balance on that club and they will be tough to handle."

Good Start For Vikings

EDMONTON — The Brian Hughes—coached University of Victoria Vikings made a winning start in the opening of the 1978-79 Canada West University Athletic Association's soccer league.

Vikings, one of the CWUAA favorites, edged the always-tough Alberta Golden Bears 2-1 here Friday.

Sizzling Yanks Pull Away From Struggling Red Sox

By The Associated Press

Ron Guidry didn't have his blazing fastball—he didn't need it.

The New York Yankees ace, who stopped Boston on two hits last Saturday, repeated the feat Friday as the Yanks opened their crucial three-game weekend series with a 4-0 whitewash of the reeling Red Sox.

"I think I struggled a little bit," said Guidry, 22-2 after his eighth shutout of the season. "I depended mostly on sliders and later on changeups. I got a lot of ground balls that way."

The victory was New York's ninth in its last 10 games and fifth in a row over Boston, which has lost four in a row and 13 of 16.

"I can't quite figure out how we could have won this ball game," said Boston manager Don Zimmer. "The man pitched a two-hitter and you can't beat that. You don't see many pitchers like Guidry. He's the best I've seen since (Sandy) Koufax."

The Yankees lead the Red Sox by 2½ games in the American League East, with Milwaukee Brewers five games back after bowing 10-3 to Minnesota Twins.

Meanwhile in the West, Kansas City Royals extended their lead to 4½ games over California by defeating the Angels 3-2.

In other games, Detroit Tigers edged Cleveland Indians 1-0, Baltimore Orioles beat Toronto Blue Jays 8-3, Chicago WhiteSox topped Seattle Mariners 8-3 in 10 innings and, in a twi-night doubleheader, Oakland A's beat Texas 1-0 in the opener before losing the nightcap 5-0.

The Yankees scored all their runs in the fourth inning against Luis Tiant, 10-8.

Guidry, who lowered his earned run average to 1.71, gave up only a double to Rick Burleson in the third inning and a single to Fred Lynn in the seventh as he posted his ninth victory in the last 10 games, including six shutouts.

"The Red Sox aren't dead," said Guidry, "but they're a different team than they were a month-and-a-half ago. They aren't hitting like they were then, and when I slip and make a bad pitch I get away with it.

"A while back, when we were 14 games out, it stung our pride. We are world champions and we wanted to make it closer. Now what has happened is unbelievable."

In the National League, New York Mets shaded Philadelphia 5-4, which combined with Pittsburgh's 6-1 victory over Montreal Expos to cut the Phillies lead in the East to three games over the Pirates; Los Angeles Dodgers beat Atlanta Braves 5-0; Cincinnati Reds stopped San Francisco Giants 6-1; Houston Astros whipped San Diego Padres 8-4 and St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Chicago Cubs 6-2.

Save $100 on this queen size sofa bed

It's hard to believe this stylish three cushion sofa converts to a queen size bed. But it's beautifully true!
The sofa displays contemporary styling with the three back cushions, and the two arm bolsters. It has a select hardwood frame, thick high density foam and no sag springs. The bed has a deep scroll quilted mattress with 13 gauge construction and an extra feature in the headrest that lifts up for T.V. watching or reading.
The sofa is covered in "Stratford Sand", a beige tweed look in 45% nylon, 35% polyester and 20% acrylic. It's also available in 100% cotton in primitive or floral prints.
